Lancaster Farming

Vol. 47 No. 2 | www.lancasterfarming.com | Four Sections | Saturday, November 10, 2001 | $34.00 Per Year | 75¢ Per Copy

NEW RINGGOLD (Schuylkill Co.) — The sun casts some long shadows nowadays, and the area simply has seen too much sun and not nearly enough rain. On Tuesday, the state Department of Environmental Protection issued a drought warning for Lancaster and other counties, including York, Lebanon, Dauphin, Cumberland, Chester, Perry, and York. Ten other southeast counties, the Lehigh Valley, and the northeast have been placed on a drought watch, bringing to 55 the total number of counties on the state's drought watch list.

Despite all that, work continues, especially with the upcoming holidays.

According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, for week ending Nov. 4, soil moisture was rated 31 percent very short, 40 percent short, 26 percent adequate, and only 3 percent surplus. Harvested corn, planted winter wheat, emerged winter wheat, harvested soybeans, fourth cutting of alfalfa, and harvested apples are ahead of the five-year average. Most fruit and vegetable harvests were just about completed for the year.

The photographer captured this view of Pinecrest Tree Farms from Rt. 895 and Rausch's Road in Schuylkill County earlier this week.

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce celebrated the rich and ongoing history of local agriculture during its 25th Ag Industry Banquet here Monday evening.

Ag Services Coordinator Brent Landis announced continued success of the Chamber's Agriculture Services Program, thanking the 22-member ag comittee for its leadership.

"One of the Ag Program's primary goals is to educate the nonfarm community on the vital role Lancaster County agriculture plays in our nation," Landis told the 870 people in attendance.

The ag committee received the annual Pennsylvania Farm-City Award in January for "outstanding efforts in educating the nonfarm community about agriculture," Landis said.

Among Lancaster's Ag Program initiatives Landis discussed was a new version of the Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying interest was light to no better than fair during midweek trading as dealers continued with a cautious and selective posture. Offerings of breast items were fully adequate. Legs and leg quarters were more than sufficient. Wings were ample and discounted. Movement through retail and distributive channels remained limited as seasonal items became the focal point of consumer buying. The market tone was weak on wings, no better than steady on the balance.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was limited, and was generally noted as about normal for the period, as buyers look to build floor stocks of turkeys and other items for the upcoming Thankgiving holiday. Offerings were adequate to readily available. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights varied in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 53 to 67 cents. Trade sentiment remained barely steady to weak. In the parts complex, supplies were adequate to ample and often offered at highly competitive prices in an effort to stimulate buyer interest.

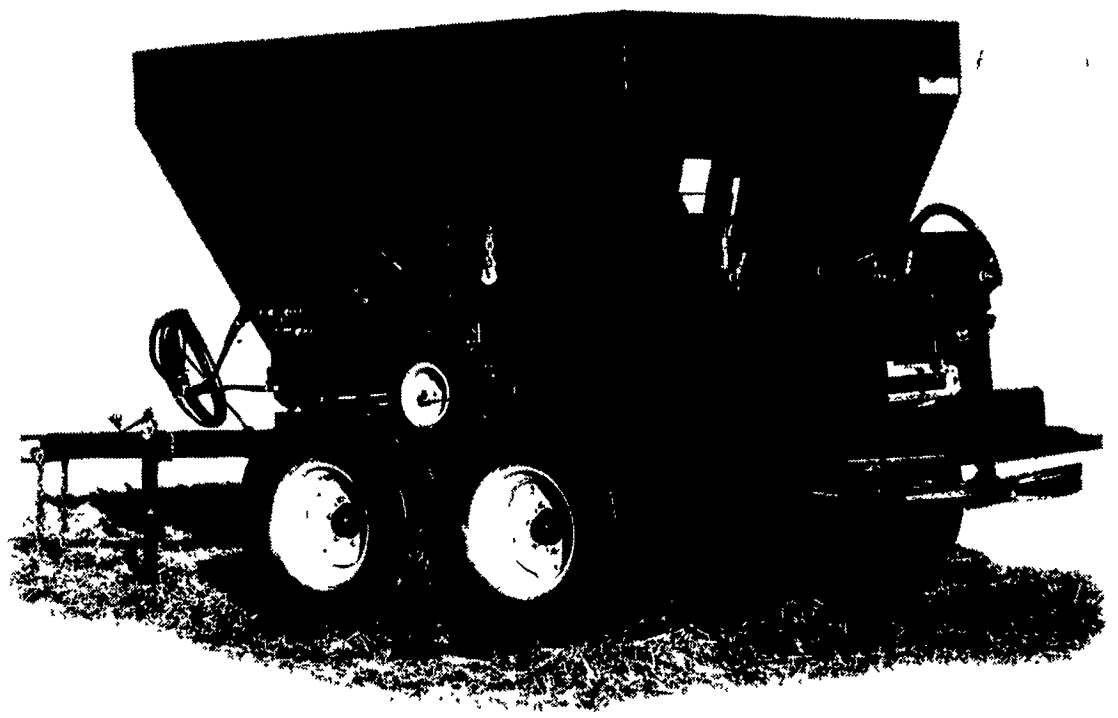
The One Spreader Rugged Enough For Lime, Precise Enough For Fertilizer.



You know how tough it is to spread wet lime. And fertilizer is too expensive to waste. Our new 56i spreader does both jobs with ease. Plus, it has no equal when it comes to spreading "sloppy" material.

Stoltzfus Spreaders have been known as unique, "top-of-the-line" ag spreaders since 1947.

- Press-wheel ground drive
- Walking-beam suspension
- Corrosion-proof steel hopper
- UHMW plastic floor
- Lime: 3 tons / acre max. Fertilizer: 125 lbs. / acre min.

Farmers are still using Stoltzfus Spreaders they've had 20 years or more. That means your investment in a versatile Stoltzfus Spreader will add up to a very smart buy indeed.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and soybeans finished slightly higher. Support stemmed from higher a soybean market and traders positioning before Friday's production report. Improved export demand for all commodities help underpin bids. Wheat bids were mixed 1 cent lower to 3 cents higher. Corn were 2 to 7 cents higher. Sorghum 1 cent higher. Soybeans 5 cents higher with Minneapolis up much as 14 cents. Wheat bids were mixed with another slow day of trading. Weather items are friendly with rains in Argentina and drier weather in most wheat growing areas.

Corn prices slightly higher due to support from soybean market. Light short covering was noted before USDA's production report. Export sales were minimal but Taiwan tender looked to be supportive. Soybean bids closed higher with strength from soybean by-products.

The Old Farmer's Almanac This Week With Almanac

NEW MOON, NOVEMBER 15

THE SAINT OF INDIAN SUMMER

The feast day of St Martin, patron saint of beggars, drunkards, and outcasts, is celebrated on November 12 Perhaps more than any other saint, his feast day is associated with predicting the conditions for the coming winter For example "If the leaves of the trees and grapevines do not fall before Martin s Day, a cold winter can be expected St Martin s is also used to mark the possible beginning of Indian summer, that period of summerlike weather following a cold spell or frost Martinmas is also linked with slaughtering time because the early-November cold days were best for killing and preserving the beef, sheep, and hogs with salt for the coming winter

If All Saints' (Nov. 1) brings out winter, St. Martin's brings out Indian summer.

TIP OF THE WEEK

EASY CHEFSECAKE

Crust and topping
1-1 3 cups fine graham cracker crumbs
1/4 cup finely crushed walnuts
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, melted

Filling
2 eggs, well-beaten
16 ounces soft cream cheese (not whipped)
1 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups sour cream

Combine crust ingredients and press into a 9-inch pie pan, reserving 3 tablespoons for topping Combine all filling ingredients except sour cream, beating until smooth Fold in sour cream Pour into crust, sprinkle with topping, and bake at 375°F for about 35 minutes, until set Chill for 4 to 5 hours

Makes 8 servings

THE OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the geese at Martin's Day stand on ice, they will walk in mud at Christmas

As November, so the following March

24 months from now you'll be mighty glad she got Purina Calf Startena today.

Proper nutrition during the first 60 days builds milking capability for a lifetime. With early nutrition so critical it's no wonder that Purina Calf Startena is the dry feed of choice on thousands of the country's best-managed dairy farms. Purina Calf Startena has the irresistible taste that encourages calves to begin eating at an early age. It has the balanced nutrition that increases weight gains...easy digestibility necessary to avoid problems in an immature rumen...and dependable scours protection.
Remember, important profit potential is being created—or lost—every day of a dairy heifer's life. That's a mighty big responsibility for a calf starter—but Purina Calf Startena is fully capable of meeting the challenge.

Purina Calf Startena features
- Balanced protein-energy builds muscle and strong frames – not fat
- Low crude fiber (not more than 8%) for more concentrated nutrition and high palatability
- Fortified with essential vitamins and minerals.
- Antibiotic protection against scours

For best results make sure you feed Purina Calf Startena along with genuine Purina Nurse Chow® milk replacer for the first 30 days

OPINION

Old Is New Again

For businesses in the late 1980s, the popular buzzword at the time was "diversification." Because of the economic uncertainty of the times, raging since the stock market crash of October 1987, businesses decided to adopt the policy of "not putting all their eggs in one basket." In other words, not producing simply one product.

The buzzword is back. What is old is new again.

Early last week a couple of Lancaster Farming representatives toured the Land O'Lakes plant in Carlisle. Speakers included Gordon Hoover, Land O'Lakes corporate secretary; Bill Schreiber, vice president, eastern operations; Chuck Cruickshank, director of procurement, member relations, and transportation; and Steve Patience, plant manager.

Land O'Lakes Mid Atlantic has 2,500 dairy-farmer members. Nationally it processes 12 billion pounds of milk annually. The Carlisle plant produces milk powders, condensed milk products, and butter, with a process capacity of 6 million pounds of milk per day. The total national cooperative serves more than 7,500 producer-members and serves family farms in 39 states, with annual sales approaching $6 billion.

The company isn't just dairy. It markets dairy, beef, and swine feed, alfalfa seed, plant food and crop protection products. Land O'Lakes, surprisingly, is very diverse — and like many companies, doesn't want to stick to a single product. They recognize that, too, in tough economic times, strength remains in market diversity.

So, too, must our farms. According to Vince Philips, government affairs representative for the Independent Insurance Agents of Pennsylvania, in a letter to U.S. Ag Secretary Ann Veneman, "Although Pennsylvania is a major producer of numerous crops, the dynamic of our farmer population is such that the farms are usually smaller and more diversified."

At a recent crop insurance seminar, Gene Gantz, president of Ag Risk Strategies Inc. president, noted that in Pennsylvania, 85 percent of the state's farms have annual gross receipts of less than $100,000.

Today's producers, for the most part, depend on a variety of income sources, including off-farm. That diversity keeps them strong.

The title of Land O'Lakes' 2000 annual report is "Building On Our Best." That "best" doesn't come from one product, but, as many producers know, from many.

To Learn To Safely Field Dress Deer

A wild game meat food safety workshop will be conducted at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster Nov. 15 at 7 p.m. At this workshop you will learn techniques to properly field-dress your deer and other game.

Proper handling of deer and other game in the field assures that the meat you bring home will be in prime, safe condition for the table. There is a $3 cost for the workshop, which covers five publications and a laminated Pocket Guide to Field Dressing Deer. Preregistration is requested and can be done by calling (717)-394-6851. Take advantage of this timely workshop before you head off to the woods.

To Count Your Chickens

In December the USDA will conduct its annual Chicken and Egg Survey to officially measure the entire layer industry in every state. This survey is a part of a national study to establish official USDA statistics for egg production and layer, pullet, and rooster inventories (excluding broilers) on Dec. 1, 2001. Hatcheries and some of the largest laying operations contribute data for monthly egg production surveys, but December is the chance to contact many more commercial operations.

In late November approximately 101 Pennsylvania poultry operations will receive surveys and, in December, nonrespondents will be contacted by phone to ask for their help. The results of the survey are used by farmers, grower associations, extension specialists, suppliers, lenders, and lawmakers when reviewing farm practices and policies. As with all surveys conducted by the National Agricultural Statistics service, individual operation information is kept strictly confidential. The individual reports are only used with data from other operations to establish state and national statistics.

The survey results will be released in the Chicken and Eggs Annual Summary report from Washington, D. C. in January 2002. All reports are available on the Internet at http://www.usda.gov/nass/. Statistics for Pennsylvania will be reprinted in the February issue of the Ag Digest.

Pennsylvania ranked third nationally for the number of eggs produced in 2000. Only Ohio and Iowa ranked higher than Pennsylvania in egg production. Laying flocks in Pennsylvania produced 6.31 billion eggs from Dec. 1, 1999 through Nov. 30, 2000. The inventory of all chickens (excluding broilers) on Dec. 1, 2000 was 30.6 million birds. Of these birds, 79 percent were hens and pullets of laying age (20 weeks or older).

To Plan For Spring Planting Of Tree Seedlings

The Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company, Spring Grove, will share the cost of tree seedlings for spring planting for interested nonindustrial landowners. Since the beginning of the program in 1951, more than 19 million tree seedlings have been furnished to landowners in 16 southeastern Pennsylvania counties.

Tree seedlings available under this year's program include red pine, white pine, pitch pine, Norway spruce, and Japanese larch. The Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources supplies all the seedlings. Orders are filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Landowners must comply with state regulations in regards to the planting of these trees. These regulations state that these trees may not be used for Christmas trees, decorative or ornamental uses, or for windbreaks. The minimum order is for 500 trees which will plant three-quarter acre. All trees become the property of the landowner who may harvest them at a future date for any wood product.

For information about placing your order, contact your Bureau of Forestry District Office or the Glatfelter Pulp Wood Company at (717)-225-4711.

Quote Of The Week:

"The very short period of my life which I have passed unconnected with public business suffices to convince me it is the happiest of all situations, and that no society is so precious as that of one's own family."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W ALTHOUSE

'MORE'— NOT 'LESS'

Background Scripture:
Matthew 5:17-48.
Devotional Reading:
Amos 5:4-16.

Recently, in the Zurich, Switzerland airport, we were among the thousands of stranded air passengers during the Sept. 11 terrorist tragedy. Valere's heart medicines would be exhausted the next day, but, going to the airport pharmacy, we were very pleasantly surprised to purchase these medicines for about one-half their cost in the USA. Getting them for less rather brightened our day.

Some look for bargains in Christian discipleship, wanting more benefits for less commitment. Recently, someone told me that Jesus had "repealed the Ten Commandments! Because of Jesus we're under grace," he said, "not the law." But Christ requires of us not "less," but "more" than the commandments. "Think not that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets," he taught. "I have come not to abolish them but to fulfill them" (5:17). "For I tell you, unless your righteousness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven" (v. 20).

This teaching runs through much of the Sermon on the Mount. "You have heard that it was said to men of old, 'You shall not kill . . . But I say to you that every one who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment'" (vs. 21,22). Jesus requires more of us than the Ten Commandments. So it is with our sexual behavior; we must go beyond not committing adultery (vs. 27,28), as well as not "swearing falsely" (v. 33).

A Hard Teaching

Most of all, however, Jesus requires us to go beyond all previous standards in regard to our enemies. "You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth' . . . But I say to you . . . if any one strikes you on the right cheek, turn to him the other also'" (vs. 38,39).

This is a hard teaching — particularly since Sept. 11, 2001. There are people demanding that we seek vengeance for these terrible atrocities. This is understandable, for it is quite human for us to react to violence with a desire to inflict violence in return, the standard, not only in the "eye for an eye" passage of Exodus 21:23,24, Leviticus 24:19,20, and Deuteronomy 19:21, but also in the Code of Hammurabi and the Roman law.

Despite 2,000 years of Christianity, it is still the code by which most people live. But Jesus calls us to go beyond this code in reacting to one's enemies: "You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you" (vs. 43,44).

Human Nature

It is difficult enough to apply that to the nasty neighbor, but seemingly impossible to even think of applying it to the terrorists who killed thousands.

Jesus should have given us an escape clause — like except when your enemy does something really evil. But there are no escape clauses in the gospel, no timeouts for revenge. It is human nature to feel the desire for revenge, but Jesus calls for us to move beyond what is human nature.

Remember, loving your enemy does not mean feeling nicely about him. For most of us that would be impossible. But Christlike love is the resolve that, no matter how angry or vengeful we feel, we will do the loving thing anyway! And doing the "loving thing" doesn't require that we should not bring enemies to justice, but that we will leave vengeance to God and not make others suffer because of our passion for revenge.

If, in order to assuage our fury at those who have done this terrible deed, we feel compelled to adopt their savage violence for ourselves, then we will have given up Jesus Christ and adopted the ways of our enemies. Let us not forget that Christ requires that we go beyond society's norms, that we give more, not less.

HELP WANTED

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"

Harold Keeney, David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill

Our original plan was to install scrapers But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

-David Wolfskill

"The answer to the most common question is 'No, there is no build-up.' "

LITTER AMENDMENT

New Poultry Guard™ Litter Amendment is a unique activated clay that delivers consistent ammonia control without the handling inconvenience associated with other poultry litter treatments

Unlike these other treatments, Poultry Guard Litter Amendment is easy and convenient to apply and needs no incorporation or activation Fewer application variables mean more consistent performance In addition, Poultry Guard can be applied up to five days before bird set, whenever it's convenient for the grower

Using Poultry Guard Litter Amendment Is As Simple As...

Apply
Simply spread over poultry litter.
- No incorporation
- No moisture activation
- No complicated instructions for heating and ventilation in conjunction with application

Bird Set
Poultry Guard can be applied when it's most convenient, up to five days before bird set.
- No application timing headaches between clean out and bird set
- No last minute application after equipment has been lowered

Control Ammonia
Poultry Guard will deliver immediate and long-term ammonia control and give birds a healthier growing environment.
- No more dangerously high levels of ammonia to stunt growth

You be the judge! We are confident this litter amendment will improve your poultry and your profits.

New Hampshire Family Wins Big E Brown Swiss Show

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Exhibitors from throughout New England and New York traveled to West Springfield in September to participate in the 2001 Northeast Regional Brown Swiss Show, but at the end of the day, it was one New Hampshire family that took home many of the awards.

The Kelly family of Winchester exhibited 16 of the large dairy breed in the show conducted week two of The Big E, which was judged by Dennis Ferguson of Dryden, N.Y. Ferguson selected animals from Kelly-View Farm as grand champion bull, junior champion female, senior champion female and reserve senior champion female. The senior champion and reserve went on to be selected as grand and reserve champion of the show.

But Kathryn and William Kelly also received awards for the junior and senior best three females, senior get of sire and dairy herd. Plus, Kelly-View was presented the banners for both premier exhibitor and premier breeder.

Reserve junior champion honors were awarded to exhibitor Jessica Dahl of Swanzy, N.H. William Kelly bred this winter yearling heifer, as well.

Corn Growers Tell 'True Story' Of Ethanol In New York

ALBANY, N.Y. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), working closely with the New York Corn Growers Association, made great strides recently telling the "true story" about ethanol to key legislators and agencies, academia and consumers in the Empire State.

Recently, a hurdle that corn growers have faced in New York and the nation was a report by Cornell University Professor David Pimentel, who positioned ethanol as an inefficient and uneconomical fuel. Corn growers met that hurdle head-on in a peer-to-peer meeting Tuesday with Pimentel.

"Our meeting was very cordial and interesting," said McClelland, who represented corn growers along with Colorado School of Mines Professor Mike Graboski. "Dr. Pimentel listened to our concerns about his report, and we are encouraged that he asked us to provide additional data so that he can re-evaluate his position."

A key concern by corn growers is that Pimentel's conclusions that corn ethanol production achieves a negative balance were based on outdated and flawed data. McClelland said NCGA will provide unbiased information from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the U.S. Department of Energy and other sources refuting Pimentel's claims.

Corn growers also met with other Cornell University professors and researchers to discuss the Pimentel report, Cornell ethanol research and the results of a rural economic impact study commissioned by the New York Corn Growers Association.

"We were very well received by the Cornell staff, who expressed a keen interest in renewable fuels and the impact the ethanol industry would have on the rural economy in New York and nationwide," said York, Neb., farmer Boyd Smith, chairman of the NCGA Ethanol Marketing Committee.

The corn growers also discussed the rural economic impact study data with New York State Sen. Jim Wright, who helped fund the study, along with key New York agency representatives.

"The rural economic impact study, which would apply not only in New York but in other states where the production of ethanol would benefit economies in rural sectors, indicates that the ethanol industry can sustain approximately 700 jobs through the annual production of 30 million gallons of denatured ethanol plus related co-products," said Kevin Swartley, president of the New York Corn Growers Association, and a corn grower from Romulus, N.Y. "It is anticipated that these jobs will sustain more than $45 million of economic activity and provide $16 million or more in annual incomes to New Yorkers."

Swartley added that a one-time benefit of about $91 million in economic activity will result from plant construction and from preparation of land for crop production.

Smith concluded that corn growers will continue to work with all of the groups they met to ensure the development of the ethanol industry in New York.

Class III, IV Prices Weakening

- October Class III is $14.60/CWT.
- October Class IV is $12.77.
- Cheese prices continue to weaken.
- DEIP program announced.

As expected, Class III and IV prices announced by USDA today are below month-ago levels. The Class III price for Octobei 2001 is $14.60 per CWT, down from $15.90 per CWT the month before. The Class IV price for October 2001 was $12.77 per CWT, down from $15.59 per CWT the month before.

The reason for this decline was a drop in the monthly average NASS (National Agricultural Statistics Service) survey prices for cheese and butter. The NASS survey average price for cheese in October was $1.5591 per pound, down from $1.7085 per pound in September. And the NASS survey average price of butter in October was $1.4701 per pound, down from $2.1198 the month before.

Dairy farmers should be prepared to see a drop of $1.30-$2 per CWT in the October mailbox milk prices they receive on November 15. The bigger drop, however, will be the November milk check. With Chicago butter prices trading at about $1.25-$1.28 per pound and block cheese prices about $1.20-$1.25 per pound, November Class III and IV prices will take a sizeable drop.

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange futures market is looking for a November Class III price of $11 per CWT and a Class IV price of about $12.20 per CWT. Dairy farmers will receive their November milk checks about December 15.

After rallying from a low of $1.16 per pound the week before to $1.2475 this Monday, Oct. 29, block cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange fell back to $1.2050 per pound by Friday, Nov. 2. USDA reports that the cheese market is "unsettled to weak." Demand for cheese from the airlines, hotels, and travel segments is obviously weak, but that was offset somewhat by holiday buying.

The butter markets were also volatile, ending the week at $1.2875 per pound. USDA reports that although churning activity is up, demand for butter for holiday promotions appears good.

Finally, there is some good news. USDA announced that the Dairy Export Incentive Program, or DEIP, is activated today. The annual allocation of 68,201 metric tons for nonfat dry milk will be the same as a year ago. This will create some activity by moving nonfat dry milk into overseas markets. Western nonfat dry milk prices were $0.92-$0.94 per pound this week and some 89,066 pounds was offered to the CCC under the dairy price support program.

It is unclear, however, what impact the DEIP program will have on domestic prices for nonfat dry milk. Remember, nonfat dry milk prices are no longer supported at $1.01 per pound. Milk protein concentrate (MPC) imports this year were down, world prices were high, and domestic use of nonfat dry milk is way up.

However, there are reports that world prices for nonfat dry milk are starting to decline. This could result in higher imports of MPCs in 2002, which could offset the price enhancing impact of the DEIP program on domestic prices for nonfat dry milk. The bottom line is, we could see nonfat dry milk prices fall to the CCC purchase price of $0.90 per CWT under this scenario in 2002.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Nov. 2. Receipts: this week 237,400; last week 260,000; year ago 237,900. Feeder cattle price trends across the country were fairly uneven, but the market was generally 1.00-2.00 lower than last week However, in certain areas where calf prices have been sharply lower, the market on lightweight cattle showed some improvement as quoted by the USDA's Livestock Market News Service. This was the case in Oklahoma, where new found demand came from growing lots and those lucky enough to have wheat pasture sufficient for grazing. Unseasonably warm weather has covered most of the winter wheat areas and moisture has been nonexistent. Receipts are turning lighter in the Southeast, where most of the better cattle have already been sold. At the same time, receipts in the Midwest and the Mountain States continue to rise with a stampede of spring calves. Yearlings made up less than 30 percent of the week's movement, for the first time this year. Corn and Soybean harvest is almost complete, which should help demand as more farmer feeders enter the market in the upper Midwest. Direct trading continues to be light, which is not uncommon in a down market. Producers would rather truck their stock to town, have a steak, and hope for a miracle when their cattle come through the sale ring.

Fat cattle prices held steady this week, after sellers held out until Friday in hopes of a higher market Feedlots have painted themselves into a corner by putting-off marketing, resulting in heavy carcasses and increased leverage for the packers. However, the DTN screen looks better to the cattle feeder as October left the board at 66.22 and we are that much closer to the 70.00 prices quoted for early next spring This week's reported volume included 29 percent over 600 lbs.

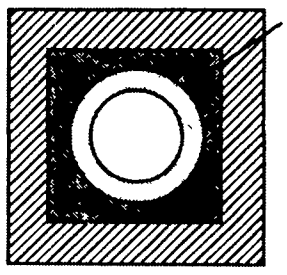
... For New Construction Why Not Examine The "Chimtek Difference."



Chimtek Inner Liners are made of volcanic pumice and high-temperature refractory cements. Its round shape provides even temperature inside flue and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gasses. The volcanic pumice in Chimtek liners adds considerable insulating value.

All three chimneyliner systems distributed by DS Machine Shop are of super design, super performance, and super value. With all their advantages these chimney systems often cost no more than ordinary chimneys. Write or call us for more specific liner information.

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb butterfat F O.B producing plants. Northeast 1.5300-1 7213 Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta 1 5300-1.7349 mostly 1.5683-1 6575.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb wet solids, F O B producing plants Northeast Class II, includes monthly formula prices 1 0000-1 1000, Class III - spot prices - 1.0000-1 1800

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK. FLORIDA This week 66; last week 100, last year 98. SOUTHEAST STATES. This week 35; last week 49; last year 50

The following are the October 2001 Class and component prices under the Federal Milk Order pricing system Class II $13.53 (down $2.71 from September), Class III $14 60 (down $1 30), and Class IV $12 77 (down $2.82) The following are product price averages used in computing Class prices butter $1 4701, NDM $0.9441, cheese $1.5591, and dry whey $.2835. The Class II butterfat price is $1 6596 and the Class III/IV butterfat price is $1 6526.

Milk production is increasing in most of the Southeast and is steady to slightly heavier in the Middle Atlantic and Northeast areas. Fluid milk supplies appear to be in an overall better balance this week Volumes being shipped into the Southeast and Florida are lighter than past weeks as their local milk production increases Bottled milk sales are reported as steady in all sections of the East. Surplus milk supplies are not as long as they have been. In the Northeast, a few cheese producers have pushed production back up to five days a week as orders for cheese are picking up for holiday needs. Some operations had been operating only 3-4 days per week for most of the past couple months. As a result of the increased cheese output, some butter/powder plants are seeing a little less milk to process.

The condensed skim market is improved this week as suppliers, basing their price on November Class III skim milk price predictions, have moved wet solids prices more in line with NDM. However, NDM is still priced below a dollar per pound Demand for wet solids has "perked up" this week particularly from the aforementioned cheese plants that stepped up output. Some plants that were drying have now stopped because of the improved demand for wet solids. Prices for condensed skim are steady to lower with Class III sales mostly in the lower portion of the range.

The fluid cream market is not as weak as it has been Supplies are in much better balance this week. Spot prices are a little higher as both the CME average butter price and multiples moved a little higher Supplies are in better balance this week Demand has improved from ice cream makers, cream cheese & sour cream producers, and bottlers. Reports indicate that the demand from bottlers has been significantly higher this week and some operations may have to add shifts or run on Saturday to fill all the orders Egg nog production has been on and off as producers make "a few batches" to fill anticipated Thanksgiving needs. Cream cheese output is increasing as producers continue to purchase spot loads of cream to supplement contracted volumes Ice cream production is heavier as plants try to build stocks ahead of Thanksgiving-week shut downs. Churning activity is steady to slightly heavier. Some operations that were not churning a few weeks ago are now making a little butter. This is often to balance their cream supply.

Oklahoma Feeder Cattle Weekly

Seminar Details Beef Safety, Marketing Issues

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "Beef 100," a one-day seminar to instruct extension agents, drew 17 participants who watched a cooking demonstration, sampled beef, and were educated about beef nutrition, food safety, case-ready beef, foodservice and retail trends, and diseases.

Conducted at the Farm and Home Center Monday, the speakers presented the program again on Tuesday at the Westmoreland County extension office in Greensburg.

The event is conducted "every few years to bring everyone up to speed on the new beef safety and marketing issues," said William Henning, extension meat scientist at Penn State.

Beef Nutrition

During the morning session Paula Leuenberger, director of nutrition and health at the Pennsylvania Beef Council, cited several studies to show beef's importance in diet and also pointed out several nutrition resources available.

Nutrition and science facts related to beef are available at www.beefnutrition.org. Food safety, recipes, and selection, preparation, and cooking information are located on the site.

The www.teachfree.com site is a site for teachers who can order online or download information and resources, especially for preschool through 12th grade educators.

The www.burgertown.com site caters to children's interests with games, nutrition fun facts and recipes shared by other children.

Important beef nutrition considerations were also part of Leuenberger's program. She cited a study that illustrated that lean beef can be effectively incorporated into a low-fat diet plan to lower blood cholesterol. The study showed no advantage for substituting chicken and fish for lean beef within the context of a low-fat diet.

Case-Ready Beef

William Henning, extension meat scientist, discussed new developments in meat packaging and merchandising. Henning opened by presenting his "case for case-ready beef," a method of bringing beef to the grocery store already cut, packaged, and ready to be merchandised.

Case-ready comes through two avenues, said Henning — centralized cutting centers or Modified Atmosphere Packaging (MAP). Chain grocery stores are looking at the benefits of having a central facility to cut, wrap, and even price the beef for all stores.

In the future, said Henning, meat cutters would be available to answer questions and provide meal solutions to consumers. In addition stores would be able to use the space to display additional products and cut down on the cost of meat-cutting equipment at each location.

The "modified atmosphere" in the package is achieved through evacuating all air from the package and flushing it with oxygen, nitrogen, or carbon dioxide combinations.

Two options are a high amount (80 percent) of oxygen to keep the fresh-looking red bloom of the meat and a smaller amount (20 percent) of carbon dioxide, which deters bacterial growth.

A MAP package such as this would have a shelf life of 14 days.

Currently, most MAP meat is ground beef, said Henning. Another MAP option is the package which has exclusively nitrogen and carbon dioxide. The package has an oxygen-permeable clear overwrap that is pulled off at the grocery store, allowing oxygen to enter and cause the familiar red bloom in the beef.

Beef pH

Since color is one of the most important sensory characteristic that makes beef desirable as food, that makes it worth attention, according to Henning.

Knowing the temperature beef should be cooked prevents consumers from "throwing beef on the grill until it is brown. Having a thermometer is a good way to prevent overcooking — you'll gauge it a lot better than just by eye," said Henning.

As a rule, pH in a carcass declines after slaughter. The extent and rate of a pH decline, said Henning, affects quality. A slow, steady decline is desirable to produce a darker color and higher water-holding capacity.

If the beef has a pH of 7.0 or higher, it can stay pink even at 165 degrees fahrenheit, so consumers cannot always apply the "cook until juices run clear" recommendation.

Meat Enhancing

A practice common to pork is now being used in beef, said Henning. "Enhanced beef" is beef that is injected with water and low levels of salt, and phosphate, which aids in water retention, to improve tenderness and compensate for overcooking.

Additionally, injecting beef improves shelf-life, color stability, and water holding capacity. If the cut is enhanced it must be noted on the label, he said.

This adds greater variety to beef selections for consumers, since a greater amount of cuts will be more tender and can be prepared in different styles.

Connecting With The Consumer

Carrie Bomgardner, promotions director at the Pennsylvania Beef Council, spoke about consumer trends in retail and foodservice channels.

"If we're going to move beef, we need to focus on convenience and nutrition," said Bomgardner.

Citing NCBA recent research, Bomgardner taught the audience about "the convenience revolution" that has occurred since nearly 60 percent of America's women are not only working, but working longer hours than in years past.

According to research, fewer dinners are being made from scratch and recipe use is declining. Also fewer homemade items and fresh foods are appearing on the table.

For trends in the retail channel, Bomgardner pointed out that for beef, the protein's share per capita expenditures has nearly doubled in the last 50 years when people eat out.

"As we look at all these trends, convenience has been identified as a major driver of beef consumption, and we take that cue from chicken," said Bomgardner. Convenience, she said, can be a marinated tenderloin or full-assembled kabobs, not necessarily just a precooked product.

In the foodservice sector, the restaurant market is growing. Half of the U.S. food dollar is now spent in restaurants, said Bomgardner. Beef accounted for 7.2 billion beef servings in commercial restaurants in 1999.

Beef Safety

Catherine Cutter, from the department of food science at Penn State, discussed pathogens in slaughter and the meat industry's efforts to produce a safe product.

Trimming, chemical dehairing, spray washing, a steam vacuum sanitizer, and steam pasteurization are all methods of reducing or eliminating contamination.

Ninety-five percent of carcass contamination comes from the hide.

Dehairing the carcass with sodium sulfide, a water rinse, a neutralizer (hydrogen peroxide) and a final water rinse reduces visible contamination and is in hospitable to bacteria growth. The process, which takes 10-15 minutes per carcass, results in improved hides and lowered contamination, but may cost more for the processor.

Spray washing cleanses the carcass with an antimicrobial water and mist. A steam vacuum sanitizer throws 165-degree water and steam at the same time onto the carcass and vacuums the moisture. Steam pasteurization, a $1 million system, is a fast steam, followed by cold water, process to kill bacteria.

Irradiation, hydrostatic pressure, electric fields, pulsed light, microwaves, and antimicrobial incorporated films in packaging are other technologies used to decontaminate carcasses.

2002 AG DIRECTORY – YOUR INFORMATION AVENUE FOR THE MID-ATLANTIC

Last year was the debut of the annual Lancaster Farming Ag Directory. The 160-page directory was called the "Yellow Pages" for Mid-Atlantic producers.

For 2002, we plan a better, expanded, updated edition of the Directory. It's more than a Yellow Pages.

The handy book will include more for today's decision-makers in agriculture. Lancaster Farming plans to include more names, addresses, phone numbers, and Web addresses than ever before.

This book will be your No. 1 source, right up next to your phone book. Nowhere are there more contact names and addresses strictly for agriculture than the Lancaster Farming 2002 Ag Directory.

Make the 2002 Lancaster Farming Agriculture Directory your avenue for information in the $48 billion regional ag industry.

Schwartz, Myers

"Lancaster County Farming Facts" brochure, which is distributed in public places and features information about the county's strong ag economy.

The brochure notes Lancaster County's first rank in the nation in number of farms preserved, nonirrigated ag sales, and number of laying hens. The county produces 90 eggs and seven gallons of milk per second. About 50,000 jobs in the county — one in five — are created by the ag industry.

Additional facts in the brochure include: More than 99 percent of farms in the county are family owned, 45,000 acres of farmland have been preserved, and 2,500 acres per year are being sold for development.

Landis also announced the Ag Program's intent to pursue economic development inititiatives.

"We plan to research and establish an economic link with the farm business sector," he said.

Other banquet highlights included the presentation of two awards, one to an individual for leadership and contributions to agriculture in the county, the other to a farm family for the longevity of their commitment to agriculture and the land.

Receiving the George C. Delp Award for "outstanding leadership and contributions to agriculture in Lancaster County" was the late Dr. John H. Schwartz.

Among Schwartz's many achievements was his service as Lancaster County Penn State extension director from 1991 until February of this year, when he accepted the position of York County extension director.

He was a member of the Lancaster Chamber's Ag Committee for nearly 10 years and a trustee of the Lancaster Farmland Trust, serving as chairman of both organizations.

Widely known for his active involvement in the poultry industry and his regular column "Now Is The Time" in Lancaster Farming, Schwartz's commitment to agriculture also touched many lives on an individual level.

"Perhaps most significantly, John was a mentor to many people in this room," said chairman of the Ag Chamber Robert Barley in presenting the award.

Schwartz's wife, Kathryn, accepted the plaque on his behalf.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes presented the 2001 Lancaster Century Farm Award to the Myers Family Farm, located on Long Lane near New Danville.

Frank and Nancy Myers and their children received the honor for continuing to operate a farm which has been in the family for more than 100 years — in this case, since 1830.

The Myers' German ancestors originally came to Lancaster County in 1710, Frank said.

His wife Nancy and their three children, John B., Mark D., and Marjorie Maisel, along with Frank's brother David, are partners in the farm operations.

Frank said that the family raises virtually a "full line of vegetables" including pumpkins, melons, cantalopes, and 24 acres of sweet corn. About two-thirds of the produce is marketed at the farm's roadside stand. They also finish about 100 head of beef a year and run 12 brood cows.

The three Myers children continue to live on the farm along with Frank and Nancy's eight grandchildren, ages 8-12.

"All of them, in their own way, help (on the farm)," Frank said.

Ken Root, former host of the nationally syndicated radio show, Agri-Talk, was the keynote speaker for the evening.

A native Oklahoman, Root spoke about the key role of technology in farming while stressing the importance of keeping production ag connected to the surrounding community.

Historically, farming was seen as a "holy and righteous" occupation, Root said. But that perception has been changing since the 1970s when a separation began to occur between production ag and farming as a way of life.

"Agriculture is a compound word," he said. "Culture is included."

While "For many, (farming) is a hobby and they will do it no matter what the economic cost," Root reminded the group that Lancaster County farmers are now competing within a global market that includes poorer countries using increasingly innovative ag production prac-

Beef Diseases

Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), or "mad cow disease," is a chronic, degenerative disease affecting the central nervous system of cattle.

Ninety percent of all cases have occurred in the United Kingdom, although it has also been confirmed in native-born cattle of other European countries.

Foot and mouth disease, known as "hoof and mouth" disease in Europe, is a severe, highly-communicable viral disease affecting cloven-footed animals. It is inactivated when exposed to a pH below 6.5, such as vinegar, or above 11.

Sufficient heating or cooking of animal products will inactivate the virus and make the products safe for human consumption.

Anthrax, a spore-forming bacterium, is highly resistant to heat, cold, chemical disinfectants, and long, dry periods. Three major clinical forms of the bacteria exist: cutaneous, inhalation, and gastrointestinal. From 1955 to 1999, there were 236 reported cases of anthrax, most of them cutaneous.

Inhalation anthrax, the most lethal form, must have 4,000-5,000 spores to cause an infection. Gastointestinal anthrax follows the consumption or raw or undercooked contaminated meat.

William Henning, extension meat scientist at Penn State, takes a pH reading on ground beef to illustrate that beef with a high pH may never be fully brown, so people may drastically overcook it.

Roland P. Freund
Regional Farm Management Agent

Editor's Note: This is the second in the series on farm business transfer. In the previous article the author posed the question: "Will your family farm continue?" and discussed the factors which might make that possible.

Building equity in the hands of the next farming generation is the most important thing that a family can do to ensure that the family farm will continue.

The farm is a very complex business. Transferring it is normally not just a matter of signing over a bunch of stock in "Farm Incorporated." In most cases we need to divide the farm into its component parts. Each of these parts can be transferred separately. A different timeframe and a different strategy can be considered for each part. The farm can be divided into some basic categories:

• The business operation. This is the heart and soul of the business. It is the annual production of crops and livestock and milk. It includes everything that we list under annual income and expenses on the Schedule F of our tax return. Inventories of inputs and product, and the accounts receivable and payable, are included. Only assets and liabilities in the "Current" section of the Balance Sheet are included.

It is possible to transfer the operation from one person to another party just by opening up a checking account and a new account book in the new party's name. All the assets listed below can be leased or hired. Feed and input inventories can be purchased as needed by the new operation from the old owner.

The next generation should get some ownership, management responsibility, and authority in the operation soon after they are committed to the farm or at least by age 30. This gives them experience in control of the production and finances of the business. How this can be organized and accomplished will be discussed in our next news article.

• Breeding livestock and machinery. These are the assets where the junior generation can easily build substantial equity. Dairy cows in a herd are turned over every 3 or 4 years. Farm machinery on average is replaced about every 10 years. Old cows and machinery can be leased by the new operation.

The business agreement can specify that from the start of the new business all heifers (calves?) born will belong to the new operation. From a specified date, all machinery will be purchased by the new operation. Then, after four years, most cattle, and after 10 years most machinery will be owned by the new business.

Roland P. Freund

• Buildings and structures. These are depreciable assets. If there is any remaining useful life, they can be leased from the owners by the new operation. The land and these structures are often owned by grandparents while grandkids are running the operation. There is nothing wrong with that.

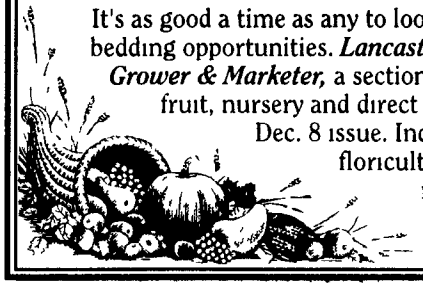
But it is important that any new facilities, built and paid for by the new operation, be owned by the new business. The structures should not add to grandparents' estate just because they stand on their land. This will require some negotiations with lenders and special legal agreements to make this possible. That's better than to make junior buy his own facility from a family estate.

• Farm residence and land. These should be the last things on the ownership priority list of the younger farm generation. They can generally be leased for a fraction of the mortgage payment to purchase them. They are good things for the grannies to hold onto for security and retirement income. Until Federal Estate Taxes are eliminated, they get a stepped-up basis in granny's estate.

When they are in a sound financial position, having built sufficient equity, the junior generation should purchase the neighboring farm — if that fits the plan for the future of the business. This will keep it totally out of the parents' estates.

• Farm transfer vehicles. In the final installment of this series, we will discuss business structures which can facilitate the transfer process. We will also talk about the implications of sales and gifts.

GROWER & MARKETER FEATURES FLORICULTURE AND IPM



It's as good a time as any to look toward spring flower and bedding opportunities. Lancaster Farming has scheduled its Grower & Marketer, a section for the eastern U.S. vegetable, fruit, nursery and direct marketing industries in the Dec. 8 issue. Included will be information on floriculture and IPM, interviews with regional growers, and tips for the upcoming planting and marketing season.

Nittany Lion Fall Classic Today In Ag Arena

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Today is the 18th annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic, beginning at 11 a.m. here at the Ag Arena. The Holstein consignment sale is one of the major events of the Dairy Science Club at Penn State. Seventy-four top Holstein consignments are being offered by many of the region's top breeders. The consignments were chosen by the Penn State students assembled here, who served on the selection committee. In photo are Sale Chair Joshua Hushon, with calf, and Assistant Chair Jeremiah Fearnley, at left. Also pictured, front row, from left, are Marie Cudoc, Lori Connelly, Nicki Over, Emily Cloninger, Doreen Delp, and Dave Miklic. Back row, Mandy Jewart, Cassie Miller, Jess Worobey, and John Couch.

Penn State Dairy Alliance Introduces Management Training

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State Dairy Alliance has developed a program to provide hands-on training in data collection and interpretation for chief financial officers (CFOs) of dairy farm businesses.

The Busines$ense program offers a unique combination of formal instruction, group discussion, and hands-on computer analysis in a small group setting, providing participants with the opportunity to learn from each other as well as the instructors.

According to Brad Hilty, information management specialist with Penn State's Dairy Alliance Program, "Monitoring business performance is critical to maintaining a competitive position in today's dairy environment." Key decision-makers of the business must know what data is important and how to interpret it. Hilty said, "The chief financial officer of the business, which in many cases is the dairy producer and farm owner or their spouse, must know how to collect, organize, process, and report data in a format that is more easily interpreted."

Instructors are Brad Hilty, information specialist for Dairy Alliance and Jeff Hyde, assistant professor of agricultural economics and farm business management specialist with Penn State's Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology. The program is being offered around the state. Each session begins at 9:30 a.m. and ends at 3 p.m.

Lancaster County Series is being offered cooperation with the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service and will be at the Lancaster County Farm and Home Center on Nov. 14, Dec. 14, and Jan. 22.

North Central (Bradford, Tioga, and Potter counties) dates are Dec. 19, Jan. 24, and Feb. 7. The location will be announced at a later date.

Northwest (Erie, Warren, Crawford, Venango, Forest, Mercer, Mercer, and Clarion counties) dates are Dec. 6, Jan. 7, and Jan. 8 at the Link To Learn Computer Training Center in the Crawford County Industrial Park in Meadville.

Program cost is $150 for all three meetings. Additional individuals from the business can attend for an additional fee of $65 each. Checks should be made payable to "Penn State University."

For more information, contact Tammy A. Perkins, Program Manager, Dairy Alliance, 324 Henning Building University Park, PA 16802, (888) 373-7232 or (814) 865-4682, fax (814) 865-4686, or e-mail tap10@psu.edu. Website is www.dairyalliance.org.

PDMP Welcomes Progressive Producers To Membership Meeting

MARTINSBURG (Blair Co.) — Want to meet and interact with other progressive dairy managers? Are you interested in the latest technology and issues?

The Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania (PDMP) and the Randy and Karen Huntsman family of Pennsylvania Fair Valley Farm in Martinsburg encourage progressive dairy managers to attend PDMP's Membership Meeting Nov. 15.

The day will start at 9 a.m. with a tour of the farm, followed by lunch at the Martinsburg Community Center. In the afternoon, Kurt Rupple of Cargill will talk about Feed Handling. PDMP will also have a discussion about "Growing Pennsylvania Dairy." Sponsors will provide lunch.

The objective of PDMP is to foster a favorable dairy business climate in Pennsylvania for progressive producers. Members are dedicated to promoting the well-being of their businesses, families, and communities. Through tours, discussion groups and workshops that address current needs, PDMP is providing opportunities for members to work collectively, support each other and share ideas.

If you would like learn more about PDMP membership, call (888) 373-7232 by Nov. 12 to make your reservation for this opportunity to socialize and learn with producers.

Advance registration is required, but this meeting is open to prospective members. You may also view PDMP's Website at http://www.das.psu.edu/user/pdmp/ for a complete agenda and directions to the farm.

Northeast Feed Company Sponsors Seminar For Potential Dairy Customers

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — A New Hampshire-based feed company, Blue Seal Feeds, Inc., sponsored a dairy nutrition conference for dairy producers at the Blue Seal milling facility here Nov. 1.

Originally launched in 1868 as the H.K. Webster feed company, Blue Seal consists of a dairy division and a specialty branch that includes feed for other types of livestock and pets. According to Vice President and General Sales Manager Randy Schwalke, the corporation seeks to expand its markets in the Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia areas.

"Although we're a 133-year old family business, we're a relative newcomer to this market," Schwalke said.

Blue Seal Feeds is a subsidiary of Varied Investments, Inc. of Muscatine, Iowa. Other companies owned by Varied Investments, Inc. include Kent Feeds and Evergreen Mills, covering states in the Midwest and Southwest.

Dairy experts at the conference presented research findings on dairy nutrition and parasite control topics. Included in the lineup of six speakers were Blue Seal's senior dairy nutritionist Dr. Clay Zimmerman, Ted Holthaus of Intervet, and Matt Schrage of Trouw Nutrition.

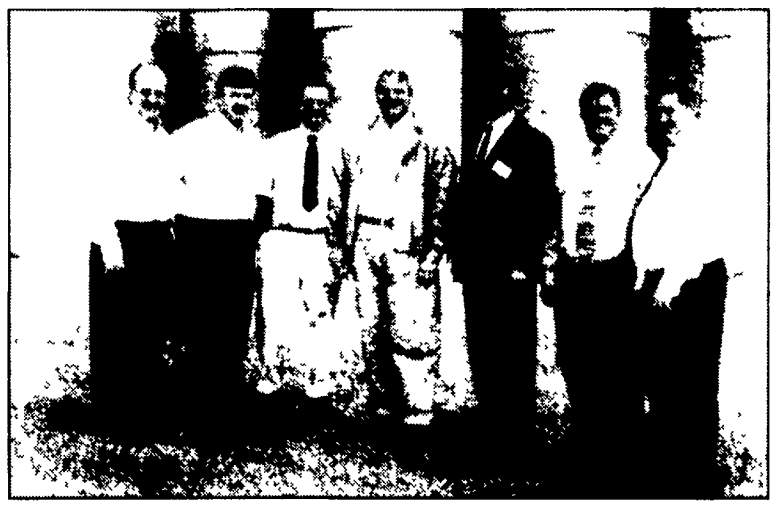
According to Blue Seal president Cecil Vandygriff, the company offers a full line of feed products to dairy producers and partners with Intervet, Trouw Nutrition, and others to provide dairy nutrition consulting services and other technical support.

The company also offers its own line of seed corn as well as carrying the Agri-Pro and Garst brands.

Of a total of nine Blue Seal mills throughout the northeast, the Hagerstown facility is a "full-line" mill generating feed products for both production animals and pets, Schwalke said.

Although Blue Seal has its greatest market share in states north of Pennsylvania, Schwalke said the company ships products as far as North Carolina.

According to Vandygriff, Blue Seal is also planning a new consumer brand pet food division.



At the Blue Seal Feeds dairy conference in Hagerstown Nov. 1 are Randy Schwalke, vice president and general sales manager; Les Berghour and Bob Rich, sales; Cecil Vandygriff, president; Matt Schrage of Trouw Nutrition; Ted Holthaus of Intervet; and Dr. Clay Zimmerman, dairy nutritionist.

Pa. Farm Bureau Conducts Internet Seminar

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — By winning a competition on how they would use technology for Web-based training, the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) was able to conduct an Internet seminar recently on animal health and biotechnology.

The one-hour program, which aired in August, was hosted by WITF, the public television station, at no cost to the Farm Bureau.

WITF had offered a prize of Web-based training to the organization that submitted the best explanation of how it would use the technology. PFB won. The estimated worth of the prize was reported at approximately $5,000. The total cost of planning, programming and producing an Internet seminar was not reported.

Biotechnology and animal health had been considered by the PFB's board of directors as vital issues for 2001. The seminar was targeted toward farmers who wanted to learn the latest information about biotechnology products, handling and safety concerns, and how to protect their farms and animals from diseases.

Crouch Named Interim Executive Officer Of American Angus Association

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The American Angus Association board of directors has named John R. Crouch, St. Joseph, Mo., interim executive vice president for the Association effective immediately. The appointment comes after the sudden death of Richard L. Spader, former Association executive vice president.

"The American Angus Association's officers and directors have unanimously chosen John Crouch to fill this position of leadership for our Association," says President Howard Hillman, Sioux Falls, S.D. "John's more than 25 years of experience with this Association have prepared him for his role in this transitional period. He has our vote of confidence, as well as the confidence and support of the employees, regional managers and staff here in St. Joseph."

Crouch has served as the association's director of performance programs since 1981 and in that time has directed programs that contributed to the formation of the world's largest database of beef cattle records. As director he oversees the Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) program and the genetic evaluation program for the American Angus Association's National Cattle Evaluation, Sire Evaluation Report and Pathfinder Report.

His tenure with the American Angus Association began in 1974 as the association's regional manager in Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina. He was inducted into the Association's Angus Heritage Foundation in 1999 for his contributions to the breed. He has worked closely with the Association's breed improvement committee and many specially appointed committees and task forces.

Crouch grew up on a registered Angus farm near Jonesborough, Tenn., and is a 1963 graduate of the University of TennesseeKnoxville, with a bachelor's in animal husbandry.

He and his wife, Judy, reside in St. Joseph, Mo., and have five children and 12 grandchildren.

Dairy Pros Get Feeding Scoop At Nutrition Workshop

Rations Affect Manure Nutrient Management

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Several hundred dairy feed consultants and scholars gathered here to learn the latest in dairy nutrition research this week at a two-day workshop conference organized by Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science.

Dr. Larry Muller, veteran Penn State dairy science professor in attendance at the seminar, said the scope of dairy nutrition has changed dramatically since his early years in the field.

"The 'science' of (dairy nutrition) is increasing, and the 'art' of it is increasing," he said.

By way of example, Muller pointed out the recent focus on managing nutritional variability of feed, "getting the feed delivered to the right cows at the right time," and controlling the amount of nutrients such as phosphorous and nitrogen in the manure.

Even with the latest scientific advances, however, Muller said dairy nutrition will always be a challenge because of factors such as individual cow differences, human variability, and the weather.

"It can never be nailed down because there are so many factors you can't control," he said.

Penn State's Peter Tozer and Zhiguo Wu presented the latest research on reducing nitrogen and phosphorus excretion in manure and urine. They observed that "almost all dairy rations have been formulated with phosphorus levels higher than recommended by feeding standards."

Dr. Norman St. Pierre of Ohio State University shared research on the economic impact of nutritional variation within a given feed ration.

Pointing out that "feed ingredients are intrinsically variable in their composition," St. Pierre proposed a feed balancing program that offsets variability as much as possible through feed analyses and through raising protein and energy levels above the average expected in the ration.

"There is no free lunch, however, because raising the average protein incurs additional feed cost," according to St. Pierre in his report. "The optimum feed level will be that at which the marginal cost of the additional protein is equal to the marginal value of the extra milk production."

Controlling protein in the diet is also important in reducing the amount of nitrogen excreted by cows in the manure, according to Zhiguo Wu and Peter Tozer of Penn State, who discussed feed balancing programs designed to reduce phosphorous and nitrogen excretion because of nutrient management and water quality concerns.

Wu pointed out that, on average, 25-30 percent of the nitrogen consumed by cows is excreted in the milk, with nearly all of the remainder being excreted in manure and urine. Strategies to reduce nitrogen excretion include reducing excess dietary protein, maximizing microbial protein production, and using "rumen-protected" amino acids for reducing the total protein that needs to be fed.

Wu, Tozer, and colleague E.B. Groff studied the cost of reducing nitrogen excretions by feeding less protein. They found that a two percent reduction in dietary protein resulted in a loss of about $245 per cow from lowered milk production (from 24,409 to 22,123 pounds at June 2001 milk prices.) Manure nitrogen was reduced by about 80 pounds per year.

"That seems a big price to pay for nutrient management," the researchers noted. "However, this cost needs to be considered in terms of the disposal of the extra nitrogen, either by spreading it on the land or removal from the farm."

Reducing phosphorus in manure is less complicated.

According to the study, "Until recently, almost all dairy rations have been formulated with phosphorus levels higher than recommended by feeding standards."

Wu and Tozer concluded that phosphorus in dairy rations can be effectively reduced without affecting milk production, reproductive performance, or bone strength, while resulting in less phosphorus coming out in the manure and lowered feed costs.

Other topics presented at the conference included the effects of feeding various fat sources on milk quality, the effect of forage particle size on cows, and new applications for direct-fed microbials and enzymes.

Attendees also participated in a variety of workshops addressing such topics as water quality, contract heifer raising, and new computer applications.

Northeast Order Uniform Milk Price For September 2001

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order for September 2001 is 417.76 per hundredweight ($1.53 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The September statistical uniform price is $17.66 for delivery to plants in New York, N.Y., and $17.56 for delivery to plants in Philadelphia.

The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks and by the location of the plant(s) to which the farm's milk is delivered.

Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for September is $1.86 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool on a hundredweight basis. The PPD, which is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components, is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant. The statistical uniform price and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the more distant the plant receiving producer milk is from Suffolk County, Mass.

The Class prices for milk pooled in August are as follows: Class I, $18.81 (Suffolk County, Mass.); Class II, $16.24; Class III, $15.90; and Class IV, $15.59. Comparable prices for September 2000 were: Class I, $15.09; Class II, $12.58; Class III, $10.76; and Class IV price, $11.94. The component values for September are protein, $2.1647 per pound; butterfat, $2.4449 per pound; other solids, $0.1520 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.8097 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 1.976 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 44.6 percent of producer milk receipts. The average Class I utilization was 49.3 percent in September 2000.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 18.0 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 30.2 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 7.2 percent of the total.

USDA Allots $1.8 Million For Animal Disease Emergency Training

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann M. Veneman on Oct. 11, 2001, announced the distribution of nearly $2 million in grants in 32 states to bolster emergency animal disease prevention, preparedness, response and recovery systems.

"These grants will be used to help various states better prepare and coordinate emergency preparedness activities and coordination related to animal disease protection," said Veneman. "Funding will be used for training, equipment purchases and to conduct emergency preparedness exercises to help strengthen these important programs."

Grants have been awarded to Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan and Minnesota. Also receiving grants were Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Grants also were awarded to the National Emergency Management Agency and several native-American agencies to assist with livestock and wildlife surveillance.

Tips for how sheep and goat producers can increase the security of their operation will appear in the November issue of the American Sheep Industry Association's monthly tabloid, the Sheep Industry News.

— News from American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) for week ending Oct. 19, 2001.

USDA Seeks Comments On Lamb Promotion Order

WASHINGTON, D.C .— The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service is seeking comments regarding the establishment of an industry-funded promotion, research, and information program for lamb and lamb products including pelts, but excluding wool and wool products.

The proposed order is authorized by, and must be consistent with the Commodity Promotion, Research, and Information Act of 1996.

An order would provide for assessments on sales of lamb and sheep, and for an industry board to carry out promotion, research, and information programs designed to increase the demand for lamb and sheep.

Under the proposed program lamb producers, seedstock producers, feeders, and exporters would pay an assessment of one-half cent ($.005) per pound when live lambs are sold. The first handler, primarily packers, would pay an additional 30 cents per head of lambs purchased by the first handler for slaughter.

The proposed Lamb Promotion, Research, and Information order was published in the Sept. 21, Federal Register. Comments should be sent to Ralph L. Tapp, Chief, Marketing Programs Branch, AMS Livestock and Seed Program, USDA Stop 0251, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, D.C. 20250-0251 no later than Nov. 20.

Comments may also be submitted electronically to ralph.tapp@usda.gov or by fax at (202) 720-1125. Copies of the proposed rule and additional information are available at that address, or by telephone (202) 720-1115.

Producers Can Sign Up For Ewe Lamb Payments

DENVER, Colo.—The American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) office has received numerous phone calls requesting details about the new breeding ewe payment program that was recently announced as part of an additional $43 million in industry assistance. ASI wants to ensure that sheep producers are aware of this new program currently under development.

The additional assistance package includes $13 million for a breeding ewe lamb payment program that will be available for sign up yet this fall to complement the current feeder and slaughter lamb payments. An announcement regarding specific payment provisions and application deadlines is expected in the next few weeks.

'This new program will provide significant payments for lambs retained for breeding or purchased for breeding," said ASI Executive Director Peter Orwick. "I would expect the application form to require a certification of the number of lambs, as well as a year rule to keep them in the herd. It is important that producers, sale barns, buyers and breeders are aware that this program is on its way."

Cornell Announces New WebsiteFor Sheep and Goat Marketing

ITHACA, N.Y. — The Northeast Sheep and goat Marketing Program at Cornell University has established a new website at www.sheepgoatmarketing.org.

The website is designed to be a library of marketing information to enable Northeastern producers to make informed decisions to improve the success of their enterprises. It has articles on marketing subjects and current marketing news items.

Lists of Northeast slaughterhouses along with information on whether they use sheep or goat are the first tools to be put in place.

Additional information on dealers and other potential buyers as well as service providers will be added soon. Links to price reports from the USDA are in place and they are working to expand reporting from important local auctions in the region.

Robert Melchior, market coordinator of the Cornell Northeast Sheep and Marketing Program, said, "We invite all Northeast producers to participate in the program by visiting the site and providing feedback and suggestions for improvements."

This program is funded through a USDA grant under the "201" Trade Action and Industry Adjustment Plan. This plan is the result of a petition filed by the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) et al to address the surge of lamb and wool imports.

Ten Pennsylvania Angus Breeders Register Most Angus

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The 10 producers who registered the most Angus beef cattle in the state of Pennsylvania recorded a total of 863 Angus with the American Angus Association during fiscal year 2001, which ended Sept. 30, according to Bryce Schumann, association director of member services.

The 10 top recorders in Pennsylvania are: Sinclair Cattle Company, Warfordsburg, 260-head; McKean Brothers, Mercer, 116; South Branch Farms, Seven Valleys, 107; Sidney Riggs, Friedens, 80; Frey Family Angus, Quarryville, 71-head; Circle Oak Farm, Gettysburg, 55; Work Land & Cattle Company, Uniontown, 49; Pennsylvania State University, University Park, 44; Samuel Wylie III, Breezewood, 41-head; Erdenheim Farm, Lafayette Hill, 40.

Angus breeders across the nation in 2001 registered 271,206 head of Angus cattle compared to 271,222 in fiscal 2000. "This is a slight decrease from a year ago, but still steady business and a successful year for the American Angus Association," Schumann said. "The year-end statistics indicate a constant demand for Angus genetics in commercial herds as producers continue to focus on end product quality and its effect on their bottom line.

Have You Thought About Year-End Tax Planning

2001 brought record-high milk prices, which means you should be thinking about year-end tax preparations. To help reduce your tax liability at the end of the year, you could make:

- pre-payments for spring operating needs or other inputs
- a large feed purchase or an other capital purchase

Agri-Financial Services offers 12-month revolving Lines of Credit that you can use to cover these purchases. Once in place, you may to draw up to your approved amount for a 12-month period, enabling you to utilize funds before the end of the year and in 2002.

Workshop Emphasizes Need For More Ethanol

EDGEWATER, Md. — Ethanol Is Good for Maryland...Ethanol is Good for the U.S. — that is what many attendees of the recent U.S. Department of Energy sponsored Ethanol Workshop learned, although many already knew it to be true.

A full slate of speakers including Congressman Roscoe G. Bartlett; Valerie Reed of the DOE's Office of Fuels Development; Bob Dineen, president of the Renewable Fuels Association; and Hosein Shapouri, of the USDA's Office of Energy Policy and New Uses, plus a host of others all convened to give their outlook on ethanol and its place in Maryland.

Participants of the workshop also heard a very enlightening talk about increasing energy security using renewable biomass from guest speaker R. James Woolsey, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency. Woolsey, expressed the need for our country to act. He stated we have had a very important "wake up call." Now is the time for the U.S. to unite.

Woolsey quoted statistics on times our nation has come together during war and other crises. Emphasizing that now more than ever we need to "wake up" and make a difference concerning renewable fuels and the impact it can make on our country.

The information presented throughout the day gave positive indications that ethanol use could and should be expanded as a fuel source for our nation. Given the present global circumstances, all speakers made specific reference that our dependency on foreign oil must lessen.

"Ethanol is a renewable fuel source our country needs. It is good for the consumers, the economy, and the environment," stated Robert Hutchinson, member of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) and a grain, hog and vegetable farmer from Talbot County. "Our Board has been working to develop an ethanol market in Maryland for about 10 years. With the recent energy crunch, rising environmental awareness, and events worldwide, the public is starting to realize how important it is that the U.S. becomes less dependent on foreign oil. Ethanol is workable solution. A solution that is good for the people and the environment."

Another highlight to the day's event were results from the Ethanol Feasibility Study contracted by the MGPUB. Al Voudrie, president of Voudrie Business Development, Inc. gave very positive findings for the probability of constructing an ethanol plant in Maryland. Their conclusions are based on a 15 million gallon per year ethanol plant, which would run on barley and other small grains including wheat. The approximate cost for constructing a plant of this size would be $30 million.

The next stage is for MGPUB to develop a business plan, do site evaluations and prepare an economic impact study so investors can realize the benefits. There will be plenty of opportunity for investors — both farmers and non-farmers — to get involved with this project.

Presently, there are more than 60 ethanol plants in the U.S. Most are located in the Mid-West. Should Maryland construct its own plant, it would be the first in the state and perhaps the Mid-Atlantic Region. Currently several states, including New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, are investigating the possibility of constructing their own and perhaps the Mid-Atlantic Region. Currently, several states, including New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, are investigating the possibility of constructing their own facilities. As the East Coast ethanol market takes off, as many are hoping it will, there will be a great need to build more facilities providing a much-needed stimulus to our lagging economy.

Hutchinson finished by saying, "I feel the day was a total success. There was a positive feeling about ethanol and its place in our economy. We all need to keep moving forward in our efforts to bring ethanol to Maryland. The Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board and its members are trying to do their part in making this a reality...but it will take the work of many!"

Best Of The Breed Challenge Begins

MANHATTAN, Kan. — Weaning time meant the start of enrollments in the Best of the Breed (BoB) National Angus Carcass Challenge. As the first pens of cattle were enrolled and tagged at Certified Angus Beef LLC (CAB) feedlots in September, prize money kept growing to a current total of $344,000 at stake.

A given pen of Angus or Angus-cross steers could claim up to $203,000 in prize money.

The latest sponsor to sweeten the pot is CAB, whose licensed feedlots in 16 states are approved BoB feeding locations.

The world's leading branded beef program has added $10,000 in prize money for the top 10 groups of BoB steers fed within CAB-licensed feedlots, regardless of location.

Enrollment, at $4 per head, started Sept. 1. Slaughter data will be accepted until Dec. 1, 2002, and the first "Best of the Breed" winners will be announced at the annual National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) conference in January 2003.

CAB-licensed yards have the advantage of being the only yards with automatic contest approval for feeding enrolled cattle, and all of the first enrollments came by way of CAB feedlots.

The contest was unveiled Aug. 7 at the NCBA summer conference in Denver.

Cattle are tracked by herd of origin in the seven NCBA regions. Total carcass value divided by pounds on the FNB (Liberal, Kan.) BoB contest grid will determine winners. The top three lots in the nation will win $100,000, $50,000 and $25,000, and the top three lots from each region will win $5,000, $2,500 and $1,000.

To learn more or to monitor results in real time, click on the BoB logo at www.cabfeedlots.com, or call toll-free 1-866-BoB-1160 for information.

'Growing New Farmers' Consortium Organized For Northeast Agriculture

BELCHERTOWN, Mass. — The New England Small Farm Institute based in Massachusetts, is a private non-profit organization that was begun in 1978 to serve small scale, limited resource and beginning farmers. With the availability of federal funds, it has expanded its base to involve farm service providers from Maine to West Virginia in a new initiative called Growing New Farmers (GNF).

GNF's goal is to provide future generations of Northeast farmers with the support and farming expertise they need to establish successful farm enterprises.

The members realize that there are people who want to farm and if they do not have family connections or access, they must overcome significant barriers to start and succeed in farming.

Traditional patterns of farm entry and farmer support are no longer adequate. In fact, they have found that farmers of all backgrounds are challenged to find the resources they need to get started in farming.

GNF is a four-year project funded by the USDA's Initiative for Future Agriculture and Food Systems, a competitive grant program. Two dozen collaborating organizations and individuals are implementing specific project components. A Project Management Team and 24-member Farmer Advisory Committee oversee project activities. New Consortium members are welcome. The Project is administered by the New England Small Farm Institute.

The Consortium is offering four competitive Initiatives (CI's) — mini-grant opportunities to encourage creative, innovative program development. Consortium members can apply for funding to support new ideas, initiatives, and collaborations that will improve services to new farmers in the four key issue (needs) areas. A total of $200,000 is available with $50,000 to be distributed in each of the four areas.

For more information, contact Kathy Ruhf, project director, at 413-323-4531 or gnf@smallfarm.org.

USDA Proposes To Pay Indemnity For Infected Sheep, Goats, Horses

DENVER, Colo. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) recently proposed an amendment to its brucellolis regulations that would allow indemnity payments for sheep, goats and horses destroyed because of the disease. This action will make it easier to eliminate affected animal flocks and herds and will encourage owners to cooperate with USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) brucellosis eradication program.

The indemnity amount will be the appraised fair market value of the animal, less the salvage value on horses.

Brucellosis is a contagious disease caused by bacteria that mainly affects cattle, bison and swine. It causes loss of young through spontaneous abortion or birth of weak offpsring, reduced milk production and infertility. While sheep, goats and horses are rarely infected with brucellosis, they are susceptible to certain strains, primarily B. Melitensis.

The brucellosis eradication program is in its final and critical stages. State, federal and industry efforts have all but eliminated most cases. Currently, no known sheep, goats or horses are infected with the disease. However, USDA's ability to pay indemnity for any infected animals would be a crucial tool in encouraging livestock owners to destroy infected and exposed animals and eliminate the last source or sources of infection.

The proposed rule was published in the Sept. 13, 2001, Federal Register, and is available for online viewing via the Internet at http://www.aphis.usda.gov/ppd/rad/webreport.html.

Consideration will be given to comments received on or before Nov. 13, 2001. Send an original and three copies to Docket No. 00-002-1, Regulatory Analysis and Development; PPD, APHIS; Suite 3C03; 4700 River Road; Unit 118; Riverdale, MD 20737-1238.

Scenic Mountain Cooperative Conducts Meeting

WYSOX (Bradford Co.) — Scenic Mountain Milk Producers Cooperative recently conducted their annual meeting at the Bonanza Restaurant here, attended by the members from Bradford and Sullivan counties. Manager LaVerne McCarty commended the members on their continued support of the cooperative and announced a successful year with a patronage dividend of 12 cents per hundredweight on last year's production paid to members.

United Ag Services' President Robert Nichols, stressed the need for additional milk supplies to meet market demands, urging members to recruit additional producers for Scenic Mountain. He also discussed the advantages of a quality premium program with declining milk prices expected over the next few months. Nichols noted that the declining number of dairy farms in Pennsylvania is making it increasingly difficult to meet manufacturers' demands. Scenic Mountain is a member of United Ag Services.

Robert Stoll, Rome, and Duane and Betty Reibson, Forksville, were the top quality award winners for 2001. Each year, United Ag Services presents awards to its member cooperative's top quality producers.

Robert Cole, Ulster, was re-elected president. Duane Reibson was elected vice president, and Judy Oliver, Meshoppen, was re-elected secretary/treasurer.

United Ag Services is a federation of dairy cooperatives that supplies marketing, accounting, quality, and payroll services to small and medium sized agricultural organizations and individual farmers.

Industry Leaders To Focus On Future Of Food And Farms

PHILADELPHIA (Philadelphia Co.) — Register now for the Third Annual Future of our Food and Farms Summit, November 29 and 30 at the Renaissance Hotel, Philadelphia International Airport. Four Secretaries of Agriculture from New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware will introduce their views about the future of agriculture in the Mid-Atlantic region at the conference.

This year's theme, "Spreading the Bounty and Safeguarding the Future" focuses on how to increase good nutrition, reduce hunger and support farming in the Mid-Atlantic region. The conference is hosted by Farmers' Market Trust and RISA (Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture).

"This year at the Summit, you will learn how changes in markets and upcoming legislation in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware and the U.S. will affect consumers, farmers, businesses and social service agencies," says Duane Perry, executive director of the Farmers' Market Trust.

A pre-conference event — the Hunger Congress — will feature state and federal legislators from the region, including Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware. "The Hunger Congress will be a forum for people to ask state and federal officials about upcoming changes in governmental policies that will affect hunger," says John Weidman, from Philabundance and the Food Resources Alliance, a cosponsor of the Hunger Congress.

Each year the Summit convenes hundreds of farming, food business, government, and anti-hunger leaders from the Mid-Atlantic region to find ways to sustain farming, educate people about the food system, improve community food security and build partnerships among businesses, organizations, public agencies, and consumers to make a affordable and nutritious food available to everyone.

In addition to the Hunger Congress, the Future of our Food and Farms Summit will offer sessions on: the future of the food industry; promoting local agriculture, food, farming and hunger policy; community food security; the new Farm Bill; land stewardship; wholesale produce auctions; ethnic foods; advanced agriculture; small vs. large farms; careers in agriculture; nutrition education for children; and much, much more.

Session presenters include experts from Penn State University, Rutgers University, Greater Philadelphia Food Bank, Ohio State University, American University, University of Maryland, and Appalachian Sustainable Development.

Also featured will be the award-winning PBS documentary, Homecoming . . . Sometimes I am haunted by memories of red dirt and clay. Homecoming is the story of African-American land loss and a chronicle of black farmers from the Civil War to the present. Producer/Director Charlene Gilbert places her own family farm in Montezuma, Georgia squarely in the historical context of the black farm movement in America. Gilbert wrote Homecoming with the assistance of writer Quinn Eli.

This year's Future of Our Food and Farms Summit will give the "Mid-Atlantic innovation and Leadership Blue Ribbon Award" to an exemplary individual, organization or business whose pioneering work, innovation and leadership have significantly improved the food and farming system in the Mid-Atlantic region. "We need to strengthen the viability of our region's farms, and ensure that nutritious and affordable food is available to everyone. Every day, people, businesses and organizations in this region are working hard to change and improve our food system. We want to recognize these leaders, and honor their work to build a better community for us all," says Perry.

In addition, on Thursday night, the Autumn Harvest Dinner will feature some of the area's greatest chefs preparing locally grown foods from the Mid-Atlantic region. Participating chefs include: Lynn Buono of Feast Your Eyes, Jill Horn of Jill's Vorspiese, Jack McDavid of Jack's Firehouse, Kevin von Klause of the White Dog Cafe, and Delilah Winder of Bluezette.

The Farmers' Market Trust/RISA is a nonprofit organization located in Philadelphia. The Farmers' Market Trusts' mission is to increase the availability of fresh foods in undeserved communities and to improve the connection between urban and agricultural communities. RISA is dedicated to supporting and promoting the food and agriculture system in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Sponsors of the Summit include: Land O'Lakes Foundation, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Pennsylvania Nutrition Education Network, and Maryland Department of Agriculture. Pennsylvania State Cooperative Extension and College of Agricultural Sciences is a contributor.

For more information on the Future of our Food and Farms summit, please visit www.foodfarms.org. Registration is $125 per person; early registration (before Nov. 1) is $105. A one-day rate of $75 is available. For registration information, contact Meredith Stone at the Farmers' Market Trust, (215) 568-0830 x10, or fmtrust@libertynet.org.

Finalists Vie For PFB Young Farmer And Rancher Award

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Finalists have been announced for this year's Young Farmer and Rancher (YF&R) Achievement Award from Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB). The winner will be decided at PFB's 51st annual meeting Nov. 12-14 at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center in Hershey.

Prizes awaiting the winner include $500 from Dodge Truck, 400 hours free use of a Kubota tractor, attendance at the 2002 PFB Leadership Conference, plus a trip to American Farm Bureau's Annual Meeting in Reno, Nev. to take part in national young farmer and rancher competition.

The YF&R Achievement Award is open to Farm Bureau members between the ages of 18 and 35. A panel of judges will select the state winner on the basis of their farming and leadership accomplishments. The winner will be named during the President's Luncheon, Tuesday, Nov. 13 at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center. The finalists are Brian and Erika Campbell of Columbia County, Michael and Jennifer Eckert of Chester County, and Joshua Grim of Lehigh County.

Brian Campbell of Berwick farms 650 acres of vegetables and grains for retail and wholesale marketing. Starting as a teenager with a "Farmer Moofy" retail farm market, Campbell began farming full-time after college in 1990 with 250 acres. Crops include pumpkins, field corn, processing snap beans, Indian corn and various other vegetables. To handle increased wholesale pumpkin sales, Campbell designed a loading facility at the farm to accommodate up to six tractor-trailers at once. High tunnel greenhouses were erected at the farm for early tomato production. "We get customers at the produce stand eating a good quality tomato right off the bat," Campbell said, "so they keep coming back year long."

Campbell modified existing silos at the farm for additional grain storage as he expanded his crop acreage. A new grain elevator was erected and the silos were converted for dry corn storage.

In addition to his retail farm market operation, Campbell also supplies pumpkins for Wal-Mart department stores. He shipped 13 tractor-trailer loads last season and hoped to double that amount this year. Campbell pursues direct marketing opportunities over the winter months. "I feel if I'm going to have any future in farming, a lot of it will have to deal with marketing and making sure I can get a decent price for my products," he said. Campbell is chairperson of the Columbia County Farm Bureau Young Farmer and Rancher Committee. He is also associate director of the Columbia County Conservation District and is president of the Columbia County Crop Management Association and the state Crop Management Association.

Michael Eckert operates a custom harvesting business in Landenberg, Chester County. Eckert focuses on keeping his equipment operational during harvest season and putting in the best possible feed for his customers. The heart and soul of his operation is a new self-propelled harvester with a processor.

He harvests 1,800 acres for clients located within a 50-mile radius. "We harvest anything from barleys, rye, triticale, alfalfa, corn silage, soybeans and sorghum," Eckert said. He concentrates on doing a "quality job — the right cut and moisture," he said.

The tail-end of his custom operation is his dump truck and dump station. The dump truck is multipurpose for loading into bunker silos or upright silos. The dump station allows Eckert to get away from towing a forage wagon as he travels highways, which can become busy in the developed Chester County countryside.

Eckert started his operation five years ago in Bradford County where he grew up. But after losing several accounts because of retirements and farmers moving out, he relocated to Chester County. After overcoming the hurdle of starting again in a new location, Eckert has re-established his custom harvesting business in southeastern Pennsylvania. Wife Jennifer, in addition to being a full-time mother for their infant daughter, helps her husband when needed and also raises calves for her parent's dairy farm. She serves on the Chester/Delaware County Farm Bureau board of directors and is the Republican committeewoman in her township.

Joshua Grim and his parents have operated and steadily expanded sales at Grim's Greenhouse and Farm Market at Breinigsville for the past 12 years. The 30-acre farm includes nine greenhouses, 10 acres of pumpkins, and 12 acres of sweet corn for the farm market which is open from Easter to Christmas.

Five years ago, Grim put in a four-acre corn maze to attract more customers and boost sales of products such as mums and pumpkins. The corn maze and weekend fall festival held in September and October now attracts 9,000 people each year and sales of mums have increased from 500 to 30,000 pots. A pick-your-own pumpkin patch also proved to be popular with families. Each year Grim adds more attractions to the Fall Fest.

Changes at the farm haven't been confined to marketing. Several labor-saving innovations have been installed at the greenhouses. An automatic ebb-and-flood watering system eliminates time-consuming hand watering of thousands of plants. It also helps reduce plant disease and recycles unused water. A custom-designed trolly-track system makes it easier when moving plants out of the 100 foot-long greenhouses. Instead of moving two or three trays at a time, family members can now move up to 40 plant trays at once.

Grim serves on the Lehigh County Farm Bureau Nursery and Greenhouse Commodity Committee and is a member of a Farm Bureau Advisory Council.

Nominations Sought For Mid-Atlantic Innovation And Leadership Award

PHILADELPHIA — The Future of Our Food and Farms Summit is seeking an exemplary individual, organization or business whose pioneering work, innovation and leadership have significantly improved the food and farming system in the Mid-Atlantic region.

The winner will be honored at the third annual Summit, Nov. 29-30, at the Renaissance Hotel at Philadelphia International Airport.

"We need to strengthen the viability of our region's farms, and ensure that nutritious and affordable food is available to everyone. Each day, people, businesses and organizations in this region are working hard to change and improve our food system," said Duane Perry, executive director of the Farmers' Market Trust, a host of the Summit.

"We want to recognize these leaders, and honor their work to build a better community for us all," Perry said.

Nominees should be from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, Pennsylvania or the District of Columbia, and have accomplished one or more of the following:

- Demonstrated a long-standing commitment to their community.
- Made a significant contribution within the Mid-Atlantic region.
- Shown outstanding leadership and innovation in their work.
- Advanced the sustainability of the food system in the Mid-Atlantic region.
- Increased food availability to those most in need.
- Promoted the value of regional agriculture.
- Improved the connection between farmers and consumers.

To nominate someone, contact Meredith Stone at the Farmers' Market Trust at (215) 568-0830, Ext. 10 or fmtrust@libertynet.org. The Mid-Atlantic Innovation and Leadership Award nomination form is also available on the Summit Website at www.foodfarm.org.

Nov. 19 Key Date For Sheep And Goat Producers

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — Here is an important alert for sheep and goat producers across the nation: Beginning Monday, Nov. 19, most sheep and some goats, 18 months and older must be officially identified (ID) and breeding sheep and goats must be accompanied by a Certificate of Veterinary Inspection (health certificate) to move into interstate commerce as part of the new federal program to eradicate scrapie in the U.S.

Those categories of sheep and goats that must be identified (ear tags or tattoos) are:

- All sheep 18 months and older;
- All breeding sheep regardless of age;
- All scrapie exposed, suspect, test-positive and high-risk animals;
- Breeding goats, except low-risk commercial goats;
- All sheep and goats for exhibition other than castrated males.

The following groups need no ID and have no movement restrictions:

- All sheep under 18 months of age moving into slaughter channels;
- All goats moving into slaughter channels;
- Low-risk commercial goats defined as those: raised for fiber and/or meat; not registered or exhibited; which have not been in contact with sheep; not scrapie positive, high-risk or exposed animals; not from an infected or source herd.
- Wethers for exhibition;
- Animals moving for grazing, if no change in ownership occurs.

Owners of commercial whiteface breeding sheep less than 18 months of age will have until Feb. 19, 2002, to comply with the ID and movement restrictions. The requirements for all scrapie-exposed, suspect, high-risk and positive animals have been in effect since Sept. 20.

"If they haven't already done so, producers should call their local APHIS office, or in Texas and Minnesota the state veterinarian's office, to be assigned an official ID number and to get free ear tags," explains Dr. Diane Sutton, national scrapie program coordinator with USDA, APHIS, Veterinary Services. Producers can find their local APHIS office by calling, toll-free, 1-866-USDA-TAG (873-2824).

More information is available on the Internet at www.animalagriculture.org/scrapie or www.aphis.usda.gov/vs/scrapie.htm.

Shaw President Of AHA

KANSAS CITY, Mo — Greg Shaw, Caldwell, Idaho was elected president of the American Hereford Association (AHA) Board of Directors at the annual meeting of the membership on Oct. 29, in Kansas City, Mo.

Shaw served as the 2001 vice president and was instrumental in implementing the whole herd reporting Total Performance Records (TPR) system for the association. Shaw has served on the board of directors since 1998. He and his wife Cleo own and operate Shaw Cattle Co.

Beau White, Valentine, Texas was elected vice president of the AHA. White was a member of the performance committee and also served on the marketing committee this past year. White is a partner and owner of the White Ranch.New faces on the board, elected by the state voting delegates for four year terms, are John Loewen, Waukomis, Okla., and Bruce Orvis, Farmington, Calif. Richard Hudson, Harrison, Ark., was re-elected after filling a one year position this last year.

Making up the remainder of the 12-member board are: Vern Raush, Hoven, S.D.; Doug Perks, Rockford, Ill.; Bob Call, Cushing, Okla.; Leon Langford, Texico, N.M.; Dale Venhuizen, Manhattan, Mont.; Kevin Jensen, Courtland, Kan.; and Tom Lane, Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Monthly Record Low Veal, Lamb Production

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Commercial red meat production for the United States totaled 3.66 billion pounds in September, down 5 percent from the 3.86 billion pounds produced in September 2000, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service.

September 2000 contained 21 weekdays (including one holiday) and 5 Saturdays. September 2001 contained 20 weekdays (including one holiday) and 5 Saturdays.

Beef production, at 2.12 billion pounds, was 7 percent below the previous year, a record September tonnage. Cattle slaughter totaled 2.81 million head, down 7 percent from September 2000. The average live weight was up 9 pounds from the previous year, at 1,240 pounds.

Veal production totaled 15 million pounds, 10 percent below September a year ago. Calf slaughter totaled 78,600 head, down 16 percent from September 2000. The average live weight was 20 pounds above last year, at 313 pounds.

Pork production totaled 1.51 billion pounds, down 3 percent from the previous year. Hog kill totaled 7.81 million head, 4 percent below September 2000. The average live weight was 3 pounds above the previous year, at 262 pounds.

Lamb and mutton production, at 16 million pounds, was down 6 percent from September 2000. Sheep slaughter totaled 243,300 head, 10 percent below last year. The average live weight was 135 pounds, up 5 pounds from September a year ago.

January - September red meat production was 33.6 billion pounds, 3 percent below the previous year. Accumulated beef production was down 4 percent to last year, veal was down 11 percent, pork was virtually unchanged, and lamb and mutton was down 4 percent.

Three Elected To American Hereford Association Board

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bruce Orvis, Farmington, Calif.; John Loewen, Waukomis, Okla.; and Richard Hudson, Harrison, Ark., were elected to the board of directors of the American Hereford Association (AHA) at the annual meeting, Oct. 29, 2001 in Kansas City, Mo.

Orvis, Loewen, and Hudson will each serve a three-year term and in this leadership position will serve to set policy and budgets for the association.

Orvis, a lifelong Hereford breeder, currently owns Orvis Cattle Co. and has served as an integral part of the beef industry. From 1959-1985, Orvis served for the California Beef Cattle Improvement Association. In 1966, he accepted a position on the California Beef Council Board of Directors. In 1993 and 2000, Orvis was named the California Beef Cattle Improvement Association Seedstock Producer of the Year.

Loewen owns and manages HVH Farms. Since its inception in 1936, Herefords have been the operations focus and have always provided a way of life for the Loewens. Loewen served as director and president of the former Oklahoma Polled Hereford Association, and currently serves as an Oklahoma Hereford Association director.

Hudson is a partner and owner of Hudson Herefords with his son, Wes. This purebred Hereford herd, founded by his father, has been in continuous operation since 1939 and produces horned and polled Herefords.

Hudson is a graduate of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture and has a major in animal science. He has judged numerous state fairs and regional cattle shows, and served as the Arkansas Hereford Association President.

UD Extension Gets Down To Business With Grain Farmers

Counseling, Technical Assistance Help Farmers Market Crops

NEWARK, Del. — "Amber waves of grain" paints a prosperous picture of American grain crops, yet the reality does not live up to this rich imagery. Grain farmers must press every advantage to make a profit in today's commodity markets.

Recognizing this, Carl German, Cooperative Extension marketing specialist for the University of Delaware, helps Delmarva grain farmers remain competitive in a fluctuating marketplace.

"No two marketing years are alike, no two crop seasons are the same, and there is no margin for error in making sales decisions. Yet if farmers have a basic understanding of how the commodity market works, they can make educated business decisions based on up-to-the-minute information," said German, who regularly provides marketing information and market expertise to local growers.

Extension's grain marketing resources are invaluable to First State grain farmers, German says, primarily because row crops produce the greatest cash value to Delaware — more than any other agricultural product. Of those crops, soybean production ranks first in number of acres grown, while corn tops the list in terms of profit.

"Basis — an economics term meaning the difference between the price of grain at the Chicago Board of Trade and the local price — requires local interpretation for farmers to make the most profit," German said. "Every weekday I track the commodity futures market in Chicago. After analyzing the data for its relevance to area grain growers, I pass the information on."

German provides current market information in a number of ways including a column, "Grain Marketing Highlights," which appears in Weekly Crop Update, a newsletter published by UD Extension during the growing season. He also holds workshops to teach farmers how to improve their marketing skills, minimize price risks and increase market understanding. His firsthand marketing analysis and impartial position as an Extension professional are helpful to local grain farmers, whether they sell a few hundred or several thousand bushels.

"One-on-one counseling for making market decisions such as when to sell is provided," the marketing specialist says. "I give technical assistance to farmers who are deciding upon the right market alternative such as the type of sale contract."

Three years ago German initiated an Internet discussion group designed to give grain producers, traders, industry representatives analysts and educators a regular forum for addressing grain marketing issues.

"Participants sign on to get information on any and all aspects about grain markets, marketing alternatives and marketing strategies," says German of the online group with 75 subscribers. "It is an electronic form of what's known as a Grain Marketing Club, a service Extension has provided since the early '80s."

In the plans is a workshop — "Using Options on Futures" — which will be conducted in Dover in December. For more information about the workshop or Extension grain marketing resources, contact Carl German at the University of Delaware in Newark, (302) 831-1317 or clgerman@udel.edu.

Sept. 1 Cattle On Feed Inventory 1 Percent Higher Than Year Ago

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the United States for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 11.1 million head on October 1, 2001. The inventory was 1 percent above October 1, 2000 and 8 percent above October 1, 1999, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

The inventory included 6.63 million steers and steer calves, up 1 percent from the previous year. This group accounted or 60 percent of the total inventory. Heifers and heifer calves accounted for 4.45 million head, up 1 percent from 2000.

Placements in feedlots during September totaled 2.14 million, 20 percent below 2000 and 23 percent below 1999. Net placements were 2.09 million. During September, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds were 528,000, 600-699 pounds were 447,000, 700-799 pounds were 559,000, and 800 pounds and greater were 602,000.

Historic 7 States Up 1%

Cattle on feed October 1, 2001, in the historic 7 States for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 9.61 million, up 1 percent from the previous year and 9 percent above October 1, 1999.

The inventory included 5.69 million steers and steer calves, up 2 percent from the previous year. This group accounted for 59 percent of the total inventory. Heifers and heifer calves accounted for 3.88 million head, up slightly from 2000.

Gelbvieh Ends Fiscal Year On Upswing

WESTMINSTER, Colo. — As the American Gelbvieh Association closed it 2000-2001 fiscal year, all leading indicators were positive for a steady, continuous growth. Cattle registrations, transfers, memberships and inquiries all posted higher numbers than last fiscal year.

The American Gelbvieh Association posted a 10 percent increase in cattle registrations and a 2 percent increase in cattle transfers over last year. Despite slightly smaller active cow numbers, AGA members continue to increase the percentage of cattle that they register and document.

The American Gelbvieh Association saw a 14 percent increase in adult memberships. This reverses a slight downward trend the American Gelbvieh Association has experienced the last two years.

During this fiscal year, the American Gelbvieh Association launched its most aggressive marketing plan ever with the Gelbvieh Fit and Balancer ads to promote the SmartCross program. This resulted in an 18 percent increase in inquiries, the highest number of inquiries since 1995-96.

Six Conservationists Recognized At Lebanon District Banquet

MT. GRETNA (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon County Conservation District recognized six individuals for their outstanding efforts of conservation in Lebanon County at their annual planning meeting and awards banquet. Special recognition was awarded to two farmers, an educator, an attorney, an employee of Hershey Foods Corporation, and a longtime conservation district employee.

Earl and Pat Ziegler were recognized for their efforts in soil and water conservation on their 113-acre farm in Bethel Township when they were awarded The Clean Water Farm Award. Earl and Pat became cooperators with the Lebanon County Conservation District in 1961 and have continued the family tradition of conservation farming.

The Zieglers practice contour strip cropping with rotations, cover crops and residue management. They maintain a Chesapeake Bay Agreement and have instituted a plan incorporating: a manure storage facility, a concrete barnyard, nutrient management plan, surface water control measures, and stream bank fencing with two livestock crossings are planned. The farm was preserved in 1994 through the County's Agricultural Land Preservation Board.

Robert "Bob" Arnold of Lebanon was named Conservationist of the Year for his years of conservation volunteer efforts. Long before the recent interest in protecting watersheds, Bob was assisting with fish habitat improvement structures during the early 1970s.

In the 1980s, Arnold worked with Palmyra area groups to help with the Quittapahilla Creek Improvement Project installing further fish habitat improvements. For 21 years, Arnold has helped Hershey Foods maintain environmental compliance.

Mrs. Lynn Aponick, a biology, environmental ecology, anatomy and environmental science teacher with ELCO High School, was awarded the District's Educator of the Year award. A resident of Myerstown, Lynn has taught for 20 years at ELCO High School. Her efforts have had a major impact on the science department at ELCO.

Recruited by the conservation district in 1989 to gain participation from ELCO schools in the Envirothon (a hands on environmental competition covering forestry, soils, aquatics, wildlife and current issues), Aponick took on the challenge. Starting with two envirothon teams and 10 students, the ELCO Envirothon has grown to six high school teams and two middle school teams, totaling over 50 students.

In 1999, a middle school Envirothon Team was started. This team serves as a training ground for students and a feeder system for the high school teams. Aponick's studentsdo water testing in local streams for the Leaf Pack Network and assist with activities involving the Middle Creek Wildlife Management Area and the Nature Conservancy. This past spring her students assisted on a Tulpchocken Creek stream restoration project lead by Mark Chegwidden of the Lebanon County Conservation District.

Aponick's students coordinate outdoor and nature activities for the ELCO Elementary fifth grade camping days.

George C. Bowman Jr. of Lebanon was chosen to receive the Landowner of the Year award. Bowman is a conservation-minded individual who has a history of sound soil and water stewardship on his 170 acre tract including a tree farm and agricultural land.

Bowman became a conservation district cooperator in 1975 and has operated a state registered tree farm since 1964. He has been named District Tree Farmer of the Year by the Commonwealth in 1980 and 1985, receiving the Maurice K. Goddard award in 1984.

Forty-five percent of his land is farmed with special attention paid to nutrient management while the remaining 55 percent of the land is a woodlot managed for timber, wildlife and recreation. The state has used Bowman's tree farm to conduct scientific tree species' tests and his forestry practices have been used as examples by service foresters for others. Bowman has opened his land for hiking, hunting, snowmobiling, jogging, and horseback riding, and the Boy Scouts of America have conducted a forestry project on the land while Cub Scouts and Webelos have taken tree, plant, and wildlife identification walks.Charles V. Henry III, an attorney, was honored for his outstanding support of community recreation and conservation. He has donated many hours of professional legal services to organizations such as the Lebanon Valley Rails to Trails, Swatara Creek Watershed Association (formerly Citizens Coordinating for Clean Water), Lebanon Valley Conservancy, Inc., Quittapahilla Watershed Association, Tulpehocken Study Group and the Save The Rexmont Dam. He was and continues to be available to conservation groups having legal questions.

Charles Wertz is the district manager of the conservation district and was recognized for his work at the district for 17 years. He has been instrumental in developing and conducting the Farm Preservation Program and the Lebanon Valley Conservancy here in Lebanon County. He is dedicated to both of these new programs and has recruited board members for both groups.

Wertz conducts farm site inspections for preservation consideration; works with DEP, landowners and attorneys explaining the Farm Preservation Program; acquires deeds, and fights for increased funding from our County Commissioners and our State Legislators in support of farm preservation. Since 1991, over 5,000 acres of farmland have been preserved in Lebanon County.

The Lebanon County Conservation District was also recognized for its work in groundwater education and conservation. Groundwater Guardian is a program of the Groundwater Foundation of Lincoln, Nebraska that supports, recognizes and connects communities that are protecting their groundwater resources. It is not a regulatory program, rather it relies on voluntary steps developed at the community level to address local groundwater protection priorities.

Linda Shultz, secretary, was recognized for her 10 years of service to the Lebanon County Conservation District. Shultz has presided over front office operations during an unprecedented period of growth in district programs and responsibility. Charles Wertz, conservation district manager, said, "We would simply be crippled without Linda's dedication." She provides administrative and logistical support to all staff in their programs to make sure office operations proceed smoothly and goals are met.

Record Farm Price Drop Signals Needed Policy Reform

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Using last month's record commodity price drop as an example, National Farmers Union (NFU) reiterated the need for an adequate safety net for farmers and ranchers to offset severe price fluctuations.

USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service reported Nov. 1 the largest one-month decline in farm-gate prices since the department began recording the statistic 91 years ago. The 9.5 percent plunge from the September index reflects downturns in prices for milk, soybeans, hogs, corn, broilers, cattle and lettuce, along with seasonal changes in the marketing of commodities.

"There is tremendous uncertainty among producers and their lenders because of the volatility of agricultural markets," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "This proves the need for an adequate safety net for farmers and ranchers, which current farm policy lacks.

"These unprotected dips and dives in the market hurt our farmers and ranchers and the rural communities that depend on them," Swenson said. "We need a safety net provision that helps farmers when prices are low and that is based on what producers are doing today. This safety net is a vital part of the Farm Bill that must be completed this year."

Drought Warning Issued For Nine Counties In Southcentral Pa.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On Tuesday, Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Secretary David E. Hess issued a drought warning for nine counties in southcentral Pennsylvania. These nine counties were previously under a drought watch.

Hess also announced that 10 Pennsylvania counties in the southeast, the Lehigh Valley, and the northeast have been added to the state's drought watch list because of deteriorating conditions.

"Precipitation deficits continue to mount, particularly in southcentral Pennsylvania, causing record-low stream flows for this time of year in some areas and dwindling groundwater supplies," Hess said.

"For this reason, we are asking people to step up their conservation efforts to reduce their water consumption."

The nine southcentral Pennsylvania counties upgraded to a drought warning are Adams, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Lancaster, Lebanon, Perry, and York. Precipitation deficits in these counties range from nine inches to as much as 12 inches below normal. In addition to scant precipitation, groundwater levels continue to drop, which is of particular concern to owners of private wells.

"People should be prepared for what could be a lengthy drought," Hess said. "Cold weather is approaching. And once the ground freezes, there will be little opportunity for groundwater levels to recharge until spring."

The 10 counties added to the drought watch list are Bucks, Carbon, Delaware, Lehigh, Monroe, Montgomery, Northampton, Philadelphia, Pike, and Wayne.

A total of 55 counties are under a drought declaration, nine under a drought warning, and 46 under a drought watch.

A drought watch is the first of the three drought stages under the state's drought-operating plan. It calls for a voluntary five percent reduction of nonessential water use.

A drought warning, the second stage, calls for a 10-percent to 15-percent voluntary reduction in water consumption, and a drought emergency, the third and most severe stage, imposes mandatory restrictions on water use. A drought emergency requires a declaration by Gov. Mark Schweiker followed by action by the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Council.

"The single biggest thing people can do to reduce the amount of water they use inside the home is to repair leaks," Secretary Hess said. "A leak as small as the head of a pin can waste 188 gallons per day. A quarter-of-an-inch hole in a pipe can waste nearly 12,000 gallons per day — enough water to supply 193 people in one day."

Some other water-usage reduction tips include:

Install water-saving plumbing fixtures such as low-flow showerheads and aerators on faucets;

Run dishwashers and washers only with full loads;

Take shorter showers, and don't let water run when brushing your teeth or shaving; and Replace your old appliances like washers or dishwashers with newer, more efficient models.

The latest drought information, including precipitation tables and water-conservation tips, is available through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.dep.state.pa.us (directLINK "Drought").

Agri-Energy Conference Nov. 12-13

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The West Penn Power Sustainable Energy Fund (WPPSEF) will be sponsoring an Agri-Energy Conference here Nov. 12-13.

Conference topics will focus on discussing potential market opportunities for the Pennsylvania agriculture industry in an emerging sustainable energy market.

The costs and security risks of petroleum imports, environmental concerns with increased pollution and with global greenhouse gas emissions, and the desire to improve the rural economy have stimulated growing interest in the development of bioenergy technologies which utilize domestic, renewable feedstocks.The agriculture industry can help meet the nation 's clean energy needs.

Is Pennsylvania ready? Timely-placed investments and increasing the coordination of activities will help ensure that Pennsylvania is strategically positioned to take advantage of an emerging bioenergy market.

The WPPSEF Agri-Energy Conference will provide an ideal forum for attendees to network and listen to speakers discuss the latest bioenergy technologies, market opportunities, and policies that utilize agricultural products and by-products to produce fuels, materials, chemicals, electricity, and heat. Ample time will be provided to exchange ideas, formulate strategies and potential partnerships, and identify early markets.

For accommodations, contact the Penn Stater Conference Center at (800)233-7505 and ask for the THE1111 group rate of $89/night.

To learn more about the seminar and for registration information, visit the WPPSEF web site at:http://www.wppsef.org/agri-energy.shtml.

PDMP Hires Special Projects Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The board of directors of the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania (PDMP) has announced the hiring of Beth Moore as special projects coordinator.

Moore comes to PDMP with a wide variety of experiences and knowledge of the dairy industry in Pennsylvania. Her primary responsibilities include promoting PDMP at conferences and workshops, and increasing membership. In addition, Moore will coordinate efforts for educational programs and workshops.

Moore is eager to take on her new responsibilities and to encourage more progressive producers to become a member of PDMP. 'I'm thrilled to have this opportunity to work with progressive dairy producers to help them grow PDMP into an organization that can address their needs both on farm and throughout their communities," she said. 'Pennsylvania is a great dairy state and by working together, the members of PDMP will make it better."

The role of the special projects coordinator is made possible through a partnership between the College of Agricultural Sciences at Penn State University and PDMP. Moore will work closely with the board of directors for PDMP to grow the organization and to ensure the educational and networking needs of progressive producers within Pennsylvania are met.

Dave Hileman, Vice President for PDMP, Hilecrest Farms, Tyrone, acknowledges, "Beth brings to PDMP fresh ideas and innovative thinking that compliment her knowledge and understanding of the Pennsylvania dairy industry."

For more information, Moore can be reached at (717) 375-2910 or e-mail beth@innernet.net. Or call Tammy Perkins toll-free at (888) 373-7232 or e-mail tap10@psu.edu.

Schweiker Administration Seeks Nominations For 2002 Agribusiness Awards

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced the department is accepting nominations for the 2002 Agribusiness Achievement awards.

The Agribusiness Achievement awards program recognizes companies in three categories based on gross annual sales: under $15 million, between $15 million and $50 million, and more than $50 million. One winner is selected in each category.

Companies are chosen based on sales, employment, contributions toward development, and expansion of Pennsylvania agribusiness within the company's area of expertise, and adherence to state and federal standard inspection requirements.

Winners will be announced on Jan. 4, 2002, at the annual Agro 2002/Farm Show International Celebration Dinner in Harrisburg.

Nominations must be received by Nov. 26. For nomination forms, call Carl Muller at (717) 787-6041, or write to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Domestic and International Business Development, Room 310, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408. All nomination information is treated as confidential.

20-Year-Old Pa. FFA Member Is National Regional V.P.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The National FFA Organization has selected 20-year-old Elio Chiarelli, Jr., McDonald, Pa., as the 2001-2002 National FFA eastern region vice president.

Chiarelli is a member of the H.G. Parkinson FFA Chapter. His parents are Elio and Nancy Chiarelli and FFA advisers are T. Lee Carter and Jodie Chadwick.

Chiarelli was one of six individuals chosen for a national officer position out of a field of 41 candidates. The Penn State University sophomore, who is majoring in agricultural education, hopes to work as an agricultural and environmental science educator.

As an FFA member, Chiarelli participated in three different supervised agricultural experience programs (SAEs). An SAE is a work-based learning experience conducted by a student outside of the classroom and overseen by an agriculture teacher or FFA member. Chiarelli's SAEs included poultry and vegetable production.

Outside of FFA, his activities have included undergraduate research in poultry science, membership on the varsity golf team, and international study abroad. The young man will now be one of only six students who have the rare distinction of serving more than 457,000 FFA members for the next year.

After returning home to take care of personal and school affairs, these six members will spend a year traveling the U.S. and world. They will become premier representatives of agricultural education and FFA, meeting with top executives throughout the agricultural industry. In addition, these young people will meet thousands of their peers in FFA chapters throughout the country, sharing their needs and ideas with the National FFA Organization.

According to the Pennsylvania FFA Website, Chiarelli was also very active in his home chapter by serving as treasurer for three years and president his senior year. He has qualified for national contests twice, once for parliamentary procedure and the second for prepared public speaking. He was also selected for three state winning proficiency awards and two national proficiency awards. Also with his record books he was selected as the Western Region Star in the area of production.

In his local chapter, Chiarelli was selected for the star chapter award, the Penn West Region III Farm Credit Award, The Dekalb Award, and many others too numerous to mention.

While serving as Pennsylvania FFA state president, Chiarelli has been selected for the Big E State President Internship and the chairman of the National FFA Publications Committee. Chiarelli has also been awarded more than $15,000 in college scholarships.

Program Features Methods To Till The Soil Of Opportunity

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — "Tilling the Soil of Opportunity," A NxLeveL™ Training in Business Planning for Entrepreneurial Farmers, has been launched to teach small to mid-scale farmers and agricultural professionals needed business skills.

"We recognize the great need to make this kind of business training available to the future stakeholders of Pennsylvania agriculture," said Russell Redding, deputy secretary of agriculture.

NxLeveL™ Training will be administered through the Penn State University Cooperative Extension system. The NxLeveL™ program was developed by the University of Colorado at Denver and the University of Nebraska. This program was adopted by Cooperative Extension this past year.

The course is taught in 12, three-hour sessions, helping farmers scrutinize mission and goals, marketing strategies and financial statements, and other critical components of a comprehensive business plan.

The Cooperative Extension is partnering with farm support organizations, banks, and educational institutions to deliver this new training opportunity.

"We think the program is of value, especially with the trying times farmers are having now," said Dave Smith, at Mid Atlantic Farm Credit. "Opportunity abounds. Many producers are learning to succeed by taking control of their own marketing efforts, and meeting the demands of consumers."

The NxLeveL™ training program helps farmers to evaluate strategies such as developing new enterprises and direct marketing, in order to improve farm profitability.

NxLeveL™ students include a wide variety of agricultural entrepreneurs, including truck farms, wholesale growers, and commodity farmers. Courses are adapted region-to-region based on crops grown and marketing outlets.

The new training program was developed with the support of the USDA Sustainable Agricultural Research and Education program. It is available to all farmers and agricultural professionals.

Existing small farmers and related businesses are eligible to sign up for the classes at select centers in Pennsylvania. Currently, there are classes scheduled for:

- Gettysburg: Tuesday, Jan. 15 through April 3, contact Lynn Kime, (717) 334-6271.
- Milton Hershey School: Monday evenings, Jan. 21 through April 8, contact Ed Herrmann, (717) 270-4391.
- Garden Spot High School: Tuesday evenings, Jan. 15 through April 3, contact Ed Herrmann, (717) 270-4391.
- Allentown: Tuesday evenings, Jan. 8 through March 26, contact John Berry, (610) 391-9840.
- Lewisburg: Tuesday evenings, Feb. 12 through April 30, contact Ken Balliet, (570) 837-4252.

USDA Awards $20 Million To Promote Risk Management

WASHINGTON, D.C. — USDA Secretary Ann Veneman announced funding awards nationwide totaling almost $20 million in 27 states. The projects are authorized under the Agriculture Risk Protection Act of 2000 for the development of new kinds of crop insurance plans and for ways to educate producers about crop insurance and other ways to lessen the risks of farming.

The awards, administered by the Risk Management Agency (RMA), were given in several categories.

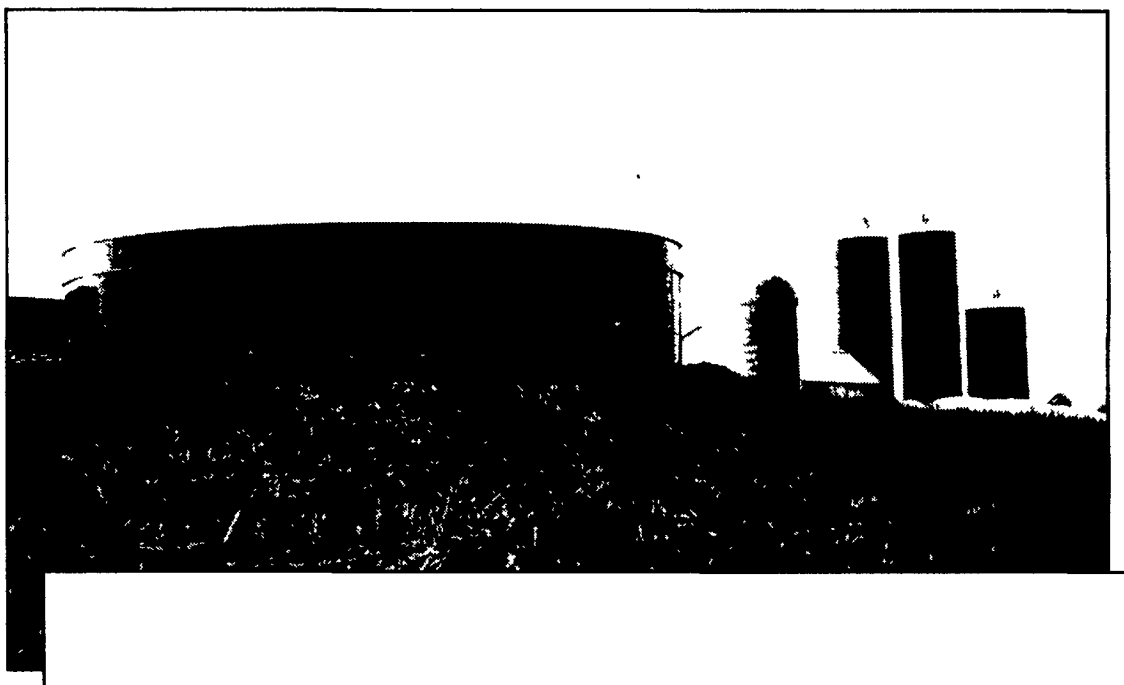
"I wanted storage I could depend on in years to come."

Tom Hartle



Thanks and congratulations to the Hartle Family of Bellefonte, Centre Co. on the recent construction of their new 92'x19' Slurrystore® Structure!

Joe Hartle and Lori & Tom Hartle

Tom Hartle's father Joe erected the first of the farm's three Harvestore® structures in 1976. When it came time for the family to install a manure system, Tom says they wanted dependable, positive containment and something that could be expanded in the future. Lori wanted to make sure it would also look attractive, especially to non-farm people who might visit. Their choice was a new 92'x19' Slurrystore System. Tom said Penn Jersey's building crew did an excellent job. "The footer crew works just like me--from daylight to dark!" he laughed.

Your seed dealer will work closely with you to develop a flexible portfolio of NK® Brand NutriCrop™ silage and dual-purpose hybrids. The result? More forage yield, more NDF digestibility and better herd health for more milk production. And you won't just fill her stomach, you'll fill her needs. Together, we'll meet the requirements of your herd and your farm. Because when all is said and done, better milk production begins with the right hybrids.

New York Actress Becomes Lancaster County Dairy Farmer

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — As a former New York actress, Debra Benner faced numerous adjustments and culture shock after marrying Lancaster County dairy farmer Arlin Benner. One of the biggest shocks was noticing the amount of money deducted from each milk check for something called the "dairy checkoff."

She made lots of phone calls to find out exactly how the money was being spent and why.

As a former actress and employee of the largest advertising firm in Texas, Debra was well acquainted with the need for advertising and the high cost attached to it. But what floored Debra were some of the ads appearing on television and in magazines.

"I was sitting in a chair at my hairdresser flipping through People magazine. I saw this photo of a celebrity with a milk moustache. The provocative pose would make any dairy farmer blush. I was appalled by the ad and I come from New York City," Debra said.

Why should dairy farmers be paying for an ad for a wholesome product that looks anything but wholesome? In addition, anyone who knows that actress, knows that she is anorexic. Debra said, "She doesn't even drink milk."

Although Debra recognizes the need for advertising to be on the cutting edge and that high-profile actresses grab viewers attention, she also knows that messages can be parlayed just as effectively without paying lots of money to use celebrities demanding top dollar.

Debra made more phone calls. "I know how hard we (farmers) are working for our dollar," she said.

"If we use celebrities, we should use wholesome ads—not those that make dairy farmers blush."

Phone calls such as these were placed often by Debra, who has firm opinions about advertising and promotion. A few months ago, Debra made another phone call after reading of the need for a person to be elected to a board that determines how milk advertising dollars are spent.

This time, she asked if she could nominate herself to the board. She faxed her application, business experience, resume, and a summary of what she and her husband Arlin did with their dairy operation.

In October, Debra was notified that she had been elected to a three-year term — as one of 36 people to the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board monitored by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. The board met this week in Orlando, Fla., with affiliates from the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East and Dairy Management, Inc. This means she will work with the board that implements dairy promotion, education, and research programs nationwide. She will help determine how those checkoff dollars are being spent.

Debra and Arlin Benner, center, consider employees of Yippee Farms as family. With them are full-time employees Chuck Tadych, Mark Howard, Bryan Allman, Dave Unruh, Steve Diener, Mike Hall, Ron Shirk, Enrique Lopez, Venancia Martinea, and Juan Mendoza. Yippee Farms milk about 595 cows, raise replacements, and farm 700 acres.

Debra knows every calf by name and claims she can even distinguish their cries—quite an accomplishment for differentiating the 85 calves that often fill the pens.

Debra has drawn upon her chemistry and premed studies in caring for calves and assisting with veterinary work on the farm.

"I'm excited to meet the board. Some incredible advertising has been done already, and I don't want to negate that. I'm not saying my ideas are best. I'm just a cog in the wheel with a different perspective — and I'm eager to share that," Debra said.

Plenty of creative ideas are flowing through Debra's head. She has kept in contact with many of her former friends tied to the advertising world and has run some ideas past them. At the same time, she realizes that decisions must be a board agreement.

Debra's lifestyle is far different from her childhood and that as a New York actress. Her career has taken many different twists and turns, and yet seems to be drawing together all the experiences she has garnered along the way.

Debra, one of seven children of a surgeon, was expected to follow family tradition by attaining a degree in the medical field. For awhile she pursued premed studies at Texas A&M. But when it came to dissecting animals, she decided that wasn't for her and switched to the goal of becoming a psychologist. After one year at graduate school, she decided pschology didn't appeal to her either. She went to work for the largest national advertising firm in Texas where she learned about advertising and helped with some of the firm's largest accounts.

When she moved to New York City as business manager for an ad firm, her childhood dream to become an actress was revived. Soon Debra was busy doing television and print commercials and stage work. She read about the need for actors and actresses for the stage perfomance of Noah put on by Sight and Sound (now Millenium Theater).

She was excited to work as an actress for a Christian organization. But coming to Lancaster County was a bit of a shock and she didn't intend to stay long.

Through a chance meeting, Debra met her landlady's nephew, Arlin Benner. Within a short time, both were convinced that their marriage was ordained by God and they married within three months of meeting each other.

The couple had the preconceived idea that Arlin could take care of the dairy farm while she pursued her acting career. But life didn't turn out that smoothly.

Debra recalls that the day they returned to the farm after their marriage was the same day the biggest snowstorm of the century hit Lancaster. The electric had been turned off and Arlin needed her help in the barn. She wore her fashionable name-brand snowboots and suede jacket to go to the milking parlour.

"Arlin didn't tell me that I'd never be wearing them again in public," she recounts with a laugh.

Although Debra took over the farm bookwork immediately because she had accounting experience, her exposure to farming was severely limited and the lifestyle that she was to adopt was greatly altered.

For two years after their marriage, the couple maintained their separate careers, but the strain such diverse lifestyles placed on their marriage forced them to reevaluate. Debra bid her acting career farewell and started working on the farm.

Milking wasn't an undertaking she wanted to pursue, so she started out feeding calves. Getting up and going to the barn early in the morning was an adjustment, but Debra fell in love with the furry creatures and soon turned them into pets. Her premed background has helped and she thrives on assisting the veterinarian in the barn.

When she first started, Arlin was milking 150 cows on the family farm that he had purchased from his parents. Three years ago, the couple purchased an additional farm and rent a third with a total of 700 acres. They have expanded to 595 milking cows, about 500 replacements, and 85 calves.

"The calves are my babies. When I'm mixing the feed, and hear one cry I know exactly which one is crying," she said.

The Benners have eight full-time employees and eight part-time. Three of their employees are Spanish-speaking. Debra's fluent Spanish (she had pursued Spanish studies as a student in Spain) is a plus in the workplace.

Passersby who notice the large farm sign that reads "Yippee Farm, Mal. 4:2," are often puzzled.

The couple eagerly explain that they wanted a trade name that gave God credit and portrayed their beliefs. The passage of scripture refers to "those who revere my (God's) name will go forth and skip about like calves from the stall."

To Debra, the most delightful aspect of farming is seeing how so many scriptures are tied into what happens in farming.

"The calves are stuck in their little hutches for eight weeks, and when they are released in the barn with all that room, they run, skip, and kick up their heels.

"We are so blessed to be farmers. I see the word of God come alive in ways I never experienced before."

The words bubble over as Debra recounts incidents such as tractor drilling, and digging up the dirt is like God plowing up the fallow ground of hearts. "It's so painful, because our hearts are

Dietitians Informed About New Research On Protein

DENVER, Colo — Through the beef checkoff, dietitians attending their national convention got a chance to learn groundbreaking new information about protein. The information was presented October 21 at the American Dietetic Association's 2001 Food and Nutrition Conference and Exhibition in St. Louis, Mo.

Scientific research has shed new light on the emerging role of moderate protein diets in metabolic control and dietary compliance, according to key nutrition authorities.

"Consumers are inundated with mixed messages about extreme macronutrient diets, particularly those very high in protein, leaving them to question what really is the most beneficial balance of protein and carbohydrates," said Hayes, a member of the beef checkoff-funded Council for Women's Nutrition Solutions.

"Currently there is little data on protein diets," Hayes said. "But some new, thought-provoking research explores the emerging role of moderate protein diets in weight management and blood glucose control."

Hayes is referring to a study led by Dr. Layman demonstrating that increasing the proportion of protein to carbohydrates in the diet, with extensive use of beef and other animal products, can have positive effects on the health of adult women.

Layman's study examined the value of two diets with modified ratios of protein and carbohydrates to produce changes in body weight, body composition, blood lipids and appetite in adult women. After 10 weeks, while both groups lost weight, the women on the moderate protein diet lost more fat tissue and maintained more muscle tissue compared to the women on the higher carbohydrates diet.

This is significant information, Hayes said, considering:

- Nearly 55 percent of U.S. adults are overweight, and more than 22 percent are obese;
- Health care costs directly attributable to obesity amount to $100 billion per year; and
- Obesity is a major contributor to illnesses such as hypertension, type 2 diabetes, coronary heart disease, stroke, osteoarthritis, and breast, prostate and colon cancers.

This information was shared with dietitians at one of four educational sessions sponsored at the health conference by the beef industry, which also operated an exhibit booth and was the main sponsor of the convention's Foundation Gala Dinner.

Free Service For Disabled Sportsmen

FAIRFAX, Va. — This fall and winter, more than 550,000 sportsmen will take to the forest and field with some level of physical disability due to an injury, illness, or birth defect.

In addition, there are almost as many disabled citizens who would like to participate in outdoor sports and recreation activities, but do not know anyone in their immediate area from whom they can obtain information. Sensing a valid need on the part of many people with a disability, the National Rifle Association's Disabled Shooting Services is introducing a new service to help guide this growing segment of our population in their pursuit of hunting and shooting sports.

Since every persons' disability has uniquely individual qualities to it, the prospective sportsman is invited to call and explore his or her options with Dave Baskin, manager of NRA Disabled Shooting Services. Each caller will be able to benefit from Baskin's wealth of knowledge gained through having been the head coach of the United States Disabled Shooting Team for 14 years, chief technical officer overseeing the shooting events at the 2000 Sydney Paralympic Games, and 33 years of experience with an engineering firm that designed adaptive medical equipment.

Over the years, Dave has advised thousands of sportsmen on how to successfully meet their personal disability related hunting and shooting sports challenges. This valuable service for citizens with physical disabilities is free of charge and available to both NRA and non-members alike. Dave Baskin can be reached by calling NRA Disabled Shooting Services at (703) 267-1495.

Balmy November.

Just doesn't sound right, does it? Balmy seems more fitting when teamed with, say, May. Or September.

Still, on this stunning night early in our 11th month, our comical parade sets out on a flashlight adventure on what can only be described as a balmy evening. Actually, no flashlight is needed because the countryside is lit with high-powered moonbeams.

This moon wattage highlights the creamy-white coat of chief walking companion, Derra Dog. It also pinpoints two accompanying cats, each with bright white fur mottled with calicoes of black, gold, and gray. Third feline trailing along with our parade is Tiger Cat, a diminutive, dark-striped buddy. Moonlight has little effect on her visibility; she's hard to see and persistently underfoot.

Little wonder the gentle evening is split with an occasional high-pitched, ear-splitting scream, as Tiger Cat crisscrosses the path in front of my feet and I trip over her. After about the third time of being stepped on, she figures out just how close she can walk without a collision.

Not only must I watch for shadowy, dark-colored cats darting across my feet, but for several single strands of fencing crossing the trail as well. Normally this field road through the meadow is wide open, and the only places one must step carefully are across the cattle-guard crossings, which permit equipment passage but deter heifers (that's how it's supposed to work, anyway).

With the hillside planted to grass for grazing, strands of temporary fence not only outline the boundaries, they also stretch across the field road at several spots. Conveniently, the glimmering moonlight reflects in the shiny wire at a certain angle, so the fence more or less points itself out.

Derra has already gone bopping along well ahead, nose busy at the meadow's buffet of scents, as I duck beneath three successive fence strands within a couple hundred yards below the house. The cats race along, oblivious to fences, pausing often to sniff at grassy clumps and patches of dried weeds, then dashing by my feet again in shadowy streaks.

Though fall has past its halfway mark, a few persistent "night bugs" chirp as we enter the mid-meadow woodlot. The moon's full, white face plays peek-a-boo through the stately skeletons of bare treetops and backlights a ragged remnant of a squirrel's leafy bower in a tall, old oak. Light fluttering sounds hint that we've disturbed some small bird in the thick fencerow as we emerge on the far side of the woodlot.

A minute's brisk walk takes us down the grade to where two small brooks, one from each section of the pasture, join forces. In one wide, mirror-like pool, the moon admires its brilliance, marred only by barely visible riffling from gentle breeze. Slipping from the pool, the small flow gurgles on, a ribbon of silver through the dark meadow.

Our entourage crosses a second cattle guard and climbs the far hill. Only a few ragged cornstalks rustled by the breeze mark harvested strips of corn and soybeans flanking the dirt road. Even these meager remnants, mere nubbins of ears eeked out by straggler plants clinging to the stony bank's edge, will feed birds and deer.

Lights wink in all directions from the top of the distant hill, comforting in their familiarity. Cozy pale-yellow squares hint of neighbors snuggled into their homes for the night, reading to children, perhaps snoozing with a newspaper collapsed across their laps. Glow-yellow lights shine from a nearby small utility outpost and bluish-white night lights mark the dairy barn, a good half-mile back across the meadow.

A shortcut through the pasture shortens the return trip, on a narrow cow path, packed and worn from heifers plodding daily from meadow to feed bunk. Wind has picked up its pace, rustling and rattling the leafless trees in the fencerow. A low spot under the permanent fence provides handy crawl space beneath, and fast access back to the ponds below the house.

Cats, dog and I pause for awhile on the pier of the big pond, reluctant to abandon this lovely night for the confines of the house. Rising wind textures the water's surface, stirring the long, yellow reflections of distant house lights. Edges of shadowy water lily pads turn up with the wind's teasing and the stars wink overhead.

Thoughts of a hot shower (and a snack) finally send me home, but the memory of the lovely night will linger.

Maybe I can retrieve it some 10-degree night in January.

Allied Announces Scholarship Winners

CANTON, N.Y. — The scholarship committee of Allied Federated Milk Cooperative, Inc. met recently to review the 43 applications received. Eleven scholarships were available to applicants this year.

Applicants must have parents who ship milk through a cooperative or marketing division affiliated with Allied. Applicants submit their grades, a brief appraisal by their high school or college adviser, their proposed major and an essay which tells how their education and farming background will be used in the future. High school seniors and college students who have not yet received a bachelor's degree are eligible to apply.

Scholarships are donated by member cooperatives as well as Allied and a number of processors and industry people Allied works with. The Allied Federated Milk Cooperatives started their scholarship program one year after their formation with the first two scholarships being awarded a year later. Their commitment to the program has continued with both the number of scholarships being awarded increasing as well as the amount of the scholarship value. This marks the 35th year Allied Federated Milk Cooperatives has awarded scholarships.

The following recipients were awarded their scholarships at the annual meeting in August at the Elks' club in Lowville, N.Y. The Theodore and Doris Gibson Scholarship established by Allied are awarded to Karen LaVack and Charity West this year.

Karen LaVack, daughter of Alton and Ellen LaVack, members of the St. Lawrence Valley Bulk Milk Producers Cooperative, Inc. is in her third year at SUNY Cobleskill. She received her AAS degree in dairy production and management this year and is now pursuing her bachelor of technology in dairy. She plans on returning to the family farm as a partner when she finishes her education.

Charity West, daughter of Alan and Suzanne West, members of Westco Milk Producers Cooperative is enrolled at Buffalo State College. Charity West is in her third year of college where she is majoring in biology. When she receives her bachelor's degree, she expects to continue on to study veterinary science.

Two new scholarships this year were established to honor Allied's founder Merton Evans. Recipients of the Merton Evans Scholarships are Terri Fefee and Melissa Morrison. Terri Fefee is the daughter of Terry and Bonita Fefee, members of North Lawrence Producers Cooperative. Terri is attending Clarkson University while majoring in management information systems. She plans on being able to provide farmers with a consulting service after graduation. Melissa Morrison began her first year at SUNY Cobleskill this past year. Daughter of Carl and Karen Morrison, members of Deer River Milk Cooperative, she is majoring in dairy production and management and hopes to own and operate her own farm in the future.

Losurdo Creameries provided a scholarship that was presented to Amy Blood, daughter of Jeffery and Ethel-Rita Blood, members of Schoharie County Cooperative Dairies. Amy is attending SUNY Cobleskill taking several science courses. She would like to help develop vaccines to prevent diseases in cattle. Her ultimate goal is to gain her Ph.D. in biochemistry. She will begin her second year at SUNY Cobleskill this year.

Don Gladle Associates provided two scholarships to Allied members this year. The recipients are Sarah Head and Elizabeth Vargulick.

Sarah Head, daughter of William and Caroline Head of Preble Milk Cooperative, is enrolled at Cornell University where she is entering her senior year. She has concentrated on animal science courses with the intention of working as an animal nutritionist or continuing her education at graduate school for nutrition. She spent a semester in New Zealand studying their agricultural systems.

Elisabeth Vargulick, daughter of William and Christina Vargulick of Deer River Bulk Milk Cooperative, will be a student of SUNY Oswego in September. She has been accepted in the education program and plans to concentrate on vocational-technical education.

ConAgra Foods provided a scholarship which was awarded to Jennifer Washburn, daughter of Charles and Donna Washburn, members of Marble City Bulk Milk Cooperative. She is currently attending SUNY Cobleskill majoring in beef and livestock studies and has been accepted in the agriculture business enterprise program.

Suprema Foods provided a scholarship which was awarded to Jason Parent, son of David and Susan Parent, members of Marble City Bulk Milk Cooperative. He is beginning at Clarkson University this fall and plans on majoring in science engineering.

McCadam Cheese Company, Inc. provided a scholarship which was awarded to Peter D. Smith, son of Peter S. and Sondra Smith, members of Northern NY Bulk Milk Producers Cooperative. He is attending Cornell University as a biology major and plans to enroll in veterinarian medicine to become a large animal veterinarian in northern New York.

The final scholarship awarded comes from a member Cooperative, Jersey Country. This scholarship was awarded to Sarah Knapp, daughter of Peter and Patty Knapp, members of Preble Milk Cooperative. She plans to attend SUNY Cobleskill and study hotel management.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions.

Check the Safety of Home Canned Foods

Now that cold weather has arrived and less fresh produce is abundant, many home canners are starting to use the products preserved during the summer. Before using home canned foods be sure to check the quality and safety of the product. Examine each jar carefully to be sure that the jar still has a vacuum seal.

Spoilage produces gases that cause lids to swell and break the seal. If the lids are not curved down slightly in the center or if the lid comes off without having to pry them off, the seal is broken and the food is not safe to use. Also check the jars for other signs that indicate food has spoiled including mold, rising air bubbles, cloudiness, spurting liquid when the jar is opened, seepage, yeast growth, fermentation, sliminess, and disagreeable odors. It is also possible for a food to be spoiled and show little evidence of that spoilage.

Do not taste food from a jar with an unsealed lid or food that shows signs of spoilage. All jars of low acid foods suspected of being spoiled should be treated as having produced botulinum toxin and disposed of properly to ensure the safety of people and pets. If suspect jars are still sealed, place them in a heavy garbage bag and place the bag in a regular trash container or bury it in a nearby landfill. If the suspect jars are unsealed, open, or leaking, they should be detoxified as follows. Place the suspect containers, lids, and contents on their sides in a large stock pot or boiling water canner. Carefully add water to the pot to completely cover the containers with one to two inches of water. Avoid splashing the water or food product outside the stock pot. Place a lid on the pot and heat the water to boiling. Boil 30 minutes to insure detoxifying the food and all container components. Cool and discard the containers, their lids, and the food in the trash or bury in the soil. Disposal of all suspect product should be handled so that no human or animal will come in contact with the product.

It is also important to rid surfaces of bacteria that may have been occurred from contact with the spoiled food. Thoroughly scrub all counters, containers, and equipment including can opener, clothing, and hands that may have contacted the food or containers by washing in hot soapy water, rinsing, and wiping with a bleach solution of one tablespoon chlorine bleach to a gallon of water. This includes the stock pot or canner used in the detoxifying process. Discard any sponges or wash cloths that may have been used in the cleanup. Place them in a plastic bag and discard in the trash.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesdays 9:00 a.m.- 1:00 p.m., call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Rd. Rm. 1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

Insulated Bags Keep Milk Cold At School

PHILADELPHIA — Maryland school students are enjoying cold milk for breakfast thanks to a contribution made to the state's classroom breakfast pilot program.

The American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic has delivered more than 600 insulated bags to schools participating in the Maryland Meals for Achievement (MMFA) pilot program. MMFA offers school breakfast daily, at no charge, in the classroom to more than 22,000 students.

The lightweight, one-crate bags are custom designed and feature a "got milk? get breakfast" message. They help assure that milk stays cold and is easily delivered from the cafeteria to the classroom, where breakfast is served free to all students.

Studies have shown that kids will drink milk if it is cold. And that is the main goal behind the insulated bags.

"We want to encourage children to drink milk," said Ellen Fuller, director of nutrition education and marketing for ADA/DC Middle Atlantic. "Serving it cold in schools is one way to help ensure that children get the calcium and the other nutrients milk provides."

Mydina Thabet, dietitian for Prince George's County Public Schools, agrees. "The bags help to maintain the quality of the milk, which in turn increases consumption," she said. "Using the bags helps kids meet their calcium needs."

Robert Wempe, food service director for Allegany County Schools, said he is grateful to have the insulated bags for the school breakfast program. "We have a much easier time keeping the milk cold since receiving the bags," he said.

Cold milk is just one component of the classroom breakfast. The meal also features two or three items from different food groups, including a grain or protein and fruit or juice.

The benefits associated with children eating a nutritious breakfast are well documented. Researchers from Massachusetts General Hospital and Harvard Medical School, who have evaluated the Maryland Meals for Achievement program, said the program has helped to improve students' test scores, behavior and well being.

A young girl reaches into the insulated bag for a carton of cold milk as she and her classmates prepare for their classroom breakfast.

"We are pleased to participate in Maryland's Meals for Achievement pilot program," Fuller said of ADA/DC Middle Atlantic's contribution. "The program is not only improving students' academic performance and behavior, it is boosting their calcium intakes, too."

The American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic is a regional milk promotion organized funded by dairy farmers to increase dairy product demand in the Middle Atlantic region through advertising, communications and nutrition education programs.

GROWER & MARKETER FEATURES FLORICULTURE AND IPM

It's as good a time as any to look toward spring flower and bedding opportunities. Lancaster Farming has scheduled its Grower & Marketer, a section for the eastern U.S. vegetable, fruit, nursery and direct marketing industries in the Dec. 8 issue. Included will be information on floriculture and IPM, interviews with regional growers, and tips for the upcoming planting and marketing season.

Potatoes Provide Tasty Meal Ideas

BARBECUE BEEF POUCH

1¼ pounds (4 medium) potatoes, cut into ½-inch cubes
1 pound lean ground beef
1 small green bell pepper, coarsely chopped
1 cup prepared hickory-smoked barbecue sauce
4 sheets (12 inches square) heavy duty aluminum foil

Heat oven to 450 degrees. In bowl, mix all ingredients; divide equally among foil sheets (about 1 ½ cups each), placing mixture on right halves of foil squares. To seal each pouch, fold left side of foil over mixture. Fold in right edge ½ inch; fold again.

Fold top and bottom edges the same way, leaving room for heat to circulate inside pouch. Place on baking sheet and bake in center of oven 35 minutes. To open pouches, with scissors, cut a cross in the top of each, then pull back points, being careful as steam is released.

ULTIMATE POTATO SOUP

2 stalks celery, diced
1 onion, chopped
3 cloves garlic, minced
8 potatoes, peeled and cubed
4 cups chicken stock, or enough to cover potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup all-purpose flour
1 cup heavy cream
1 teaspoon dried tarragon
3 teaspoons chopped fresh cilantro salt and pepper to taste.

In a Dutch oven, cook the bacon over medium heat until done. Remove bacon from pan, and set aside. Drain off all but ¼ cup of the bacon grease.

In the bacon grease remaining in the pan, saute the celery and onion until onion begins to turn clear. Add the garlic, and continue cooking for 1-2 minutes. Add the cubed potatoes, and toss to coat. Saute for 3-4 minutes. Return the bacon to the pan, and add enough chicken stock to just cover the potatoes. Cover, and simmer until potatoes are tender.

In a separate pan, melt the butter over medium heat. Whisk in the flour. Cook stirring constantly, for 1-2 minutes. Whisk in the heavy cream, tarragon and cilantro. Bring the cream mixture to a boil, and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir the cream mixture into the potato mixture. Puree about ½ the soup and return to the pan. Adjust seasonings to taste.

SHRIMP POTATO SALAD

10 large baking potatoes, scrubbed
12 eggs
3 bunches green onions, chopped
6 dill pickles, chopped
4 ounces canned shrimp
4 ounces canned small shrimp, drained
2 cups low-fat mayonnaise
salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons celery salt
2 tablespoons paprika

Place potatoes in a large pot and cover with water. Boil until soft. Remove from water; set aside to cool. Peel, and then chop into bite size chunks.

Place eggs in a saucepan, and cover completely with cold water. Bring water to a boil for one minute. Cover, remove from heat, and let eggs stand in hot water for 10-12 minutes. Remove from hot water and cool. Peel and chop.

In a large bowl, combine potatoes, eggs, green onions, dill pickles, and cans of shrimp. Mix in mayonnaise, celery salt, and paprika. Season to taste with salt an ground black pepper. Chill for 2 hours and serve.

ANGELA'S POTATOES

2 pounds potatoes, peeled and sliced
3 tablespoons water
1 pound processed cheese
½ cup butter
1-ounce package dry ranch-style dressing mix

Place potatoes and water in baking dish and cover with aluminum foil. Bake in the preheated oven one hour. In a medium saucepan over medium heat, melt together processed cheese and butter. Stir in dry ranch-style dressing mix and milk.

Pour the processed cheese mixture over potatoes. Return to oven, reseal and continue cooking 30 minutes, until potatoes are tender and processed cheese food mixture is bubbly.

BAKED POTATO PRIMAVERA

4 potatoes (about 8 ounces each)
4 cups fresh vegetable pieces (choose from broccoli florets, sliced carrots, red pepper squares, sliced zucchini and peas)
1 ¼ cups prepared alfredo sauce
2 teaspoons dried basil leaves
¼ teaspoon red pepper flakes
Salt and pepper, to taste

Prick each potato several times with fork. Arrange spoke-fashion in microwave oven.

Microwave on high 14-16 minutes until tender. Meanwhile, in two-quart saucepan, bring one cup water to boil. Add vegetables, cover, and cook over medium-high heat about five minutes, just until crisp-tender; drain thoroughly. Add sauce, basil and red pepper to vegetables in saucepan. Heat to simmering, stirring. Season with salt and pepper.

Split and fluff potatoes; place on four serving plates. Spoon vegetable mixture over potatoes, dividing equally. (Chunks of cooked chicken, turkey or ham can be added to vegetables with sauce.)

CRUNCHY SEASONED OVEN FRIES

1 egg
¼ cup cornflake crumbs
6 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoons Italian herb seasoning

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Coat two baking sheets with vegetable cooking spray.

Lightly beat egg in shallow bowl. In another shallow bowl, mix Parmesan cheese and Italian herb seasoning. Dip potato wedges into egg; coat completely with crumb mixture. Arrange in single layer on baking sheets.

Bake 20 minutes, then turn potatoes over and continue to bake 10 to 15 minutes longer, until potatoes are browned and crisp and insides are tender when tested with pick. Serve immediately, plain or with ketchup.

POTATO PANCAKES

2 cups mashed potatoes
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon butter

In a medium bowl, mix together potatoes, beaten egg, salt, and cheese. Melt butter on a large griddle atmedium heat.

Drop potato mixture onto griddle ¼ cup at a time. Flatten with a spatula to ½ inch thick. Fry approximately 5 minutes on each side, until golden brown. Serve hot.

Makes 10 pancakes. This is a good way to use leftover mashed potatoes. This recipe is very versatile: you can add minced garlic, chives, or ¼ cup of any shredded raw vegetable, or substitute the cheese with a tablespoon of sugar and serve with maple syrup.

ROASTED THREE POTATO SALAD

vegetable cooking spray
2 ½ pounds mixed potatoes, red, white and yellow
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 ½ teaspoons lemon pepper seasoning
¾ cups red onion, diced
¾ cups celery, sliced
¼ cup fresh parsley, chopped
½ cups prepared honey-mustard salad dressing.

Heat oven to 425 degrees. Lightly spray shallow baking pan with cooking spray. Cut potatoes into chunks about 1 ¼ inches in size. Arrange potatoes in single layer on baking pan. Sprinkle with olive oil and lemon pepper seasoning, tossing to coat potatoes.

Bake until potatoes are tender and golden, about 30-40 minutes, stirring halfway through cooking time. Remove from oven and cool 10 minutes. Transfer potatoes to a bowl. Add remaining ingredients and toss gently. Store covered in refrigerator. Let stand at room temperature before serving.

Serves 8 to 10.

- Inca Indians in Peru were the first to cultivate potatoes in about 200 BC.
- In 1536 Spanish Conquistadors conquered Peru, became aware of the potato, and carried them to Europe.
- Potatoes arrived in the Colonies in 1621 when the Governor of Bermuda, Nathaniel Butler, sent two large cedar chests containing potatoes and other vegetables to Governor Francis Wyatt of Virginia at Jamestown.
- The first permanent potato patches in North America were established in 1719, most likely near Londonderry (Derry), NH.
- A. A. Parmentier helped King Louis XIV popularize the potato in France in the 18th century. Parmentier created a feast with only potato dishes, a concept he realized was possible while being imprisoned in Germany and fed only potatoes. Benjamin Franklin, ambassador to France, was in attendance of Parmentier's feast in 1767.
- French Fries were introduced to the U.S. when Thomas Jefferson served them in the White House during his presidency of 1801-1809.
- In 1845-46 a fungus destroyed the potato crops causing the disaster of the Irish Potato Famine
- During the Alaskan Klondike gold rush, (1897-1898) potatoes were practically worth their weight in gold.

Baked Potato Topper Ideas

- Chili-Topped Potato

Sprinkle with shredded Cheddar cheese and chopped green onion. Dollop with sour cream.

- Ham & Cheese Melt

Add a little Dijon-style mustard, if desired. Sprinkle with shredded or sliced Swiss cheese and microwave until cheese melts.

- Athenian Baker

Toss together chopped tomato, sliced olives, finely-chopped red onion and oregano; spoon onto split baked potato. Top with crumbled feta cheese and a spoonful of plain yogurt, if desired.

- Baked Potato Reuben

Fill split baked potato with strips of deli corned beef and rinsed and drained sauerkraut. Add a little Russian or Thousand Island dressing, if desired. Top with shredded or sliced Swiss cheese and microwave until cheese melts.

- Slimmed-Down Baked Potato

Serve baked potatoes rich and creamy, but lower in fat using plain fat free yogurt instead of sour cream.

- Spaghetti-Style Potato

Brown ground beef or Italian sausage until cooked; add prepared spaghetti sauce and heat through. Ladle over split baked potato; sprinkle with shredded mozzarella or Parmesan cheese.

Slow Cooker Safety

Most people have used a slower cooker at one time or another. Slow cookers are frequently used because of the convenience they provide. Just throw some meat and vegetables in the cooker in the morning, go to work all day, and when you return home, a wonderful meal is waiting. I have received many questions from people who are concerned with the safety of foods that have been prepared in a slow cooker.

First, I would like to point out positive uses of these appliances as far as food safety is concerned. Slow cookers are used at picnics and gatherings to keep hot foods hot. This is especially good at events lasting many hours where food is often left out at room temperature. Plugging in a slow cooker to keep hot foods from cooling off and entering the temperature danger zone is essential to slow bacterial growth.

Slow cookers are economical in that cheaper, leaner cuts of meat can be used because the longer cooking time and low heat helps to make these cuts more tender.

One thing I would recommend doing with your slow cooker is testing it to be sure it is capable of heating food to safe temperatures. To do this, fill the cooker with 2 quarts of water. Set the temperature on "low." Allow the water to cook for 8 hours. Check the water temperature using a thermometer as soon as the lids is removed. The temperature should be somewhere between 185 degrees and 200 degrees Fahrenheit. Higher temperatures may indicate a product will be overcooked after 8 hours. Lower temperatures mean the product may not be heated quickly enough for the food to remain safe.

If a food is already cooked and you are using the slow cooker to keep it warm, the food should be at least 140 degrees Fahrenheit or higher. Cooking temperatures for raw foods are higher than 140 degrees Fahrenheit. Contact your local extension office for specific cooking temperatures.

Settings on your slow cooker will not correspond with a given temperature. If you question whether a product is the proper temperature, the best way to tell is by inserting a stem type thermometer into the food.

The following are tips from the USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline for using your slow cooker:

Always begin with a clean cooker, clean utensils and clean hands. When purchasing a slow cooker, you may want to consider how easy it will be to clean.

Keep perishable foods refrigerated until it is time to use them to reduce the time they will spend in the temperature danger zone.

Always completely thaw meat or poultry before putting it in a slow cooker. Thawing should be done in a refrigerator, in a microwave, or under potable, running water of less than 70 degrees.

Choose a recipe or food that is high in moisture or add a liquid such as broth, water, or barbeque sauce. This will help to keep your food from drying out while it is cooking.

Cut food into chunks or small pieces. Never try to cook an entire roast or a whole chicken in a slow cooker because you cannot be sure the entire portion will be thoroughly cooked.

The cooker should be at least half full, but no more than two-thirds full.

Place vegetables on the bottom or sides of the cooker because they will take longer to cook than meats. Leave the lid on as much as possible to reduce heat loss.

If possible, put the cooker on the highest setting for the first hour, then turn it to low or the setting the recipe dictates for the remaining time.

Do not reheat leftovers in a slow cooker. Leftovers need to be taken to a high temperature in a short period of time and a slow cooker may not be able to do this. Instead, reheat leftovers on the stove or in the oven or microwave, then place them in the slow cooker for holding.

What To Do When Sibling Conflicts Occur

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — Try to figure out what the child(ren) wants: Do they want some attention from you? Is one child jealous of a special privilege given to another child? Do they need to get outside or away from each other? Are they anxious or upset over something? Depending on what is happening, you may need to adjust your reactions.

Try simple things first: Give kids some time to figure it out themselves, suggest another activity, use your sense of humor to help them see the lighter side of the situation, or spend a few minutes playing with them until the situation is better.

Remember the more their fighting bugs you, the more they will do it. If they get a lot of attention from you when they fight, they will more likely continue to do it.

Try not to get involved in every little argument: Don't try to get to the bottom of every problem. Don't allow children to draw you into a pattern of spending lots of time and energy trying to straighten out their disagreements. Give them notice they have a few minutes to work it out before you step in. And then, sometimes you need to just put a quick end to the situation by using a separate, quiet time for everyone. It is often impossible to figure out who "started it" so a quick, equal separation is often the best answer.

Help children control their anger and use their words: Teach children to try to talk things out instead of using a physical reaction. This will take many, many, years and much attention, but it is important. Help them to express verbally that they are angry, sad, upset. Help them understand their feelings and each other.

Remember your rules for interacting: Do not allow children to physically hurt each other, and watch for excessive verbal attacks on each other. No matter what the old saying said, words do hurt, and adults should not allow children to continuously tear each other down.

Remember the advantages of sibling rivalry: Children learn a great deal about negotiation, reconciliation, sharing, problem solving, and maintaining long term relationships from their siblings. Make a point to enjoy the beautiful moments between siblings, and treasure these memories.

Do You Suffer From Fibromyalgia?

When I was introduced to New Image I was 50 pounds over weight and suffered from fibromyalgia I was so depressed and in pain the majority of the time I was taking steroids and four other medications, one of which made me so 'groggy' I could hardly get out of bed and another gave me ulcers I began taking New Image secretly because I thought my family would make fun of me After a month, I discovered I had lost eight pounds and seven inches Wow! Then it dawned on me, I was feeling better, the depression and pain were gone In two months I was off all medications "I feel SUPERIFIC!" Now, two years later I have lost 43 pounds and 30 inches Thank you New Image for giving me a new life again Judy Swift - Mt Washington, KY

ANSWER — Maggie Keeler requested recipes for making jams and preserves from zucchini, summer squash, and tomatoes. A reader contributed this recipe for tomato butter.

Tomato Butter

12 cups tomato pulp
7 cups sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
½ teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves

Wash and chop firm, ripe tomatoes. Cook until soft. Press through sieve or food mill. Drain off juice. Measure pulp and add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1 to 1½ cups sugar to each pint (2 cups) pulp. Boil rapidly until thick. Pour hot, into hot jars. Process pints and quarts 10 minutes in boiling water bath.

ANSWER — A reader requested a reprint of a kiwi jam recipe printed earlier this year.

Kiwi Jam

3 cups chopped kiwi
1 package powdered pectin
1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
4 cups sugar

Combine kiwi, pectin, and pineapple juice in a large saucepot. Bring quickly to a boil, stirring constantly. Add sugar, stirring until dissolved. Return to a rolling boil. Boil one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim foam if necessary. Ladle hot jam into hot jars, leaving ¼-inch headspace. Wipe jar rims and adjust lids. Process 10 minutes in a boiling water bath.

ANSWER — Anna Bryan wanted a recipe for freezing cole slaw. Pamela Fisher contributed the following.

1 large head cabbage
½ onion, chopped
1 cup celery, chopped
1 green pepper, chopped
½ cup carrots
1 teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon mustard seed
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup vinegar
2 cups sugar

Shred or blend first five ingredients. Mix together with celery and mustard seed. Boil together last three ingredients. Let cool before pouring over slaw. Mix, put into containers, and freeze.

ANSWER — Debbie Nolt wanted recipes using only pure fruit juices for sweetening. Cindy Simpson contributed these.

Bran Muffins

⅔ cup raisins
1 cup apple juice concentrate ¼ cup orange juice concentrate
1½ cups whole wheat flour
½ cup wheat germ
1½ cups unprocessed bran
2 teaspoons baking soda
½ cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1½ cups buttermilk
2 egg whites (or one egg), slightly beaten
⅓ cup instant nonfat dry milk
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine, cooled

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Simmer raisins with ¼ cup apple juice concentrate all of the orange juice concentrate in a small saucepan for about five minutes. Combine dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. In another bowl, beat together the remaining apple juice concentrate, butter milk, egg, milk, and butter. Combine the flour mixture with the buttermilk mixture, blending thoroughly in a few quick strokes. Fold in the raisins and their cooking liquid. Fill greased muffin tins ⅔ full. Bake about 20 minutes until toothpick comes out clean when inserted. Remove from tins immediately.

Fudge Brownies

1 cup whole wheat flour
½ cup wheat germ
2 teaspoons baking soda
1½ cups apple juice concentrate
½ cup butter or margarine
6 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa
½ cup low-fat buttermilk
1 egg
2 egg whites (or just two eggs)
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
½ cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine ingredients in a large bowl. Combine juice concentrate, butter, and cocoa in a small saucepan. bring to a boil, stirring frequently. Add to the dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Add the buttermilk, egg, egg whites, and vanilla. Beat until just mixed. Gently fold in walnuts. Pour the batter into a greased 15x10-inch jelly roll pan or a 9x13-inch pan. Bake about 20-25 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean. Cool before cutting. Makes about 35 2x2-inch brownies.

Pizza Crust

1 package active dry yeast
1 cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
2½ cups all-purpose flour (if self-rising, omit salt
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Dissolve yeast in warm water in large bowl. Stir in remaining ingredients. Beat vigorously for 20 strokes. Let rest for five minutes. Divide dough into half. Pat each half into 11-inch circle on greased sheet. Top as desired.

Lebanon County Dairy Maid Jessica Bross contributed this recipe for blueberry-cream cheese pie.

Blueberry-Cream Cheese Pie

24 Graham crackers
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup melted butter
2 eggs
½ cup sugar
8 ounces cream cheese
1 can blueberry pie filling whipped cream

Crumble Graham crackers. Mix in sugar and melted butter. Place in bottom of two-quart glass cake pan. Beat together eggs, cream cheese, and sugar. Pour on top of crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees until solid like custard. Cool. Pour blueberry filling on top. Spread with whipped cream and sprinkle with more Graham cracker crumbs. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Serves 12-14.

60 Percent Of Nutrition Bars Fail To Meet Claims In Consumer Lab Tests

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — ConsumerLab.com, an independent evaluator of dietary supplements and nutrition products, released results recently of its Nutrition Bar Product Review.

Often marketed as protein bars, energy bars, meal replacement bars, or diet bars, these products have become as ubiquitous as snack or candy bars — although nutrition bars are generally larger and claim to contain significantly more protein.

Neither the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) nor any other federal or state agency routinely tests nutrition bars for quality prior to sale. ConsumerLab.com purchased 30 products and tested them for the accuracy of their label claims of calories, fats, carbohydrates, sugars, proteins, cholesterol, and sodium.

An alarming 60 percent of the products did not meet their label claims upon testing, with only 12 products passing the review. Undeclared carbohydrate was the most common problem. In fact, 15 of the 30 products tested exceeded claimed levels of carbohydrates — often by as much as 20 grams, despite claims by some to be "Low Carb."

One possible explanation for this discrepancy may be the practice of some manufacturers not to count the ingredient "glycerin" as a carbohydrate on nutrition labels. Glycerin is commonly used in bars to add moisture and sweetness, and the FDA requires that it be counted as a carbohydrate on labels. However, this rule is not always followed and the FDA has, in response, sent warning letters to some manufacturers to correct their labels or face legal action. In addition, the FDA has warned manufacturers that the term "Low Carb" is not an authorized nutrient content claim and should not appear on labels.

Sugars (which are a type of carbohydrate) were found to be higher than claimed in eight products. These products contained, on average, an extra eight grams of sugar — equivalent to about two teaspoonfuls.

The testing also found that seven products contained more sodium than stated on the labels — some with more than twice the claimed amount. Two products exceeded the claimed amount of fat, respectively, by three grams and one and one-half grams.

Four products had higher than claimed amounts of "saturated" fat (associated with an increased risk for heart disease). One bar, for example, claimed one gram of saturated fat but had nearly three times that amount. All of the products were within range of their protein and cholesterol claims.

Other than for the 12 products that met their claims, consumers must take nutrition bar label information with more than just a grain of salt," cautioned Tod Cooperman, M.D., president of ConsumerLab.com. He advised: "If a bar claims less than 15 grams of carbohydrates, be skeptical; if it claims only two grams, don't believe it. If you're diabetic, know that the amount of carbohydrates coming from sugar may be much higher than the label indicates.

If you're concerned about salt, assume that you may be getting two to three times what it says on the label.

If you eat a lot of nutrition bars, try to minimize the saturated fat intake in the rest of your diet, as you may be getting more than you expect from the bars. And know that some bars contain additional ingredients, such as caffeine or even ephedra, so be cautious — particularly before offering them to kids."

Festival Features Easy, Cheesy One-Dish Recipes

PHILADELPHIA — Food enthusiasts got a taste of several cheese-based dishes and learned about the wide variety of American-made cheeses during the recent "Book and the Cook: October" festivities at the Reading Terminal Market, Philadelphia.

The American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic joined the festivities by promoting easy-to-prepare, one-dish recipes loaded with cheese. Created by five renowned chefs from across the country, the "Simply American" recipes feature regional twists on traditional dishes and include at least three varieties of cheese.

Philadelphia Chef Jim Coleman, a spokesperson for the "Simply American" program, prepared his Yankee Noodle Dandy Cheese Bake recipe at the Reading Terminal Market's demonstration kitchen. The appreciative crowd enthusiastically sampled the recipe and other cheese-based dishes offered at the festival.

In describing his recipe, Chef Coleman noted that it is a combination of traditional chowders and casseroles found in the region. "It features Monterey Jack, Cheddar and farmer cheeses, but you can substitute your favorite domestic cheese," he said. "Just about any combination can work."

During the demonstration, consumers learned about regional cheeses and cheese pairings. They also learned that cheese is a versatile, easy to prepare and delicious food that enhances the taste of meals. According to a Dairy Management Dinner Study (1999), 63 percent of Americans agree that adding cheese to a dish gives it more flavor. In the Northeast, American, mozzarella and Cheddar top the list of favorite cheeses used in baked dishes.

"It's easy to jazz up a traditional family dish by simply adding cheese," said Deanna Rose, communications specialist for ADA/DC Middle Atlantic. "With more than 300 varieties of domestic cow's milk cheeses available, the possibilities are endless."

YANKEE NOODLE DANDY CHEESE BAKE
Chef Jim Coleman
Philadelphia

Serves six to eight
Prep time: 20 minutes
Cook time: 45 minutes

- 4 bacon slices, coarsely chopped
- 5 green onions chopped with some of green tops
- 6 eggs, separated
- ½ cup finely shredded Cheddar cheese
- ¼ cup finely crumbled farmer cheese
- 2½ cups cooked egg noodles
- 1 cup heavy cream
- ¼ cup fresh parsley, chopped
- 1 tablespoon fresh thyme, minced
- ½ teaspoon cayenne pepper
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Cook bacon in a skillet until crispy. Remove and drain the bacon. In the skillet with bacon drippings, saute green onions for two minutes. Remove and set aside.

In a mixing bowl, beat the egg yolks. Add three cheeses, green onions, bacon, noodles, cream, parsley, thyme, cayenne, salt and pepper. Set aside.

In another bowl or mixer, whip the egg whites until they form stiff peaks.

Fold the egg whites into the egg yolk mixture. Pour the mixture into a 1½-quart casserole dish that has been coated with non-stick spray.

Bake the casserole for 30 to 45 minutes, until firm. If the top starts to brown before the cooking time is finished, cover the dish with a piece of aluminum foil.

Streams and Lakes Great Gift!

Stream MAPS

of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Michigan and New England (CT, MA, VT, HR, RI)

Why every fisherman and boater needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the anglers catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into - there's a sure way to up your odds - simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few ever fish.

Pennsylvania is loaded with great fishing waters - many of them overlooked. From Lake Erie tributaries to the Delaware River - thousands of miles of streams, lakes and rivers are now easy-to-locate on one map.

Professor Higbee's STREAMS

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible - a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3x5 map.

The map sold extremely well – until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is amazingly detailed and names some creeks in the Mohawk Valley that can't even be found on topographic maps."
- John Pitarres, OBSERVER-DISPATCH-Utica

"If you're looking for the most definitive maps ever created depicting every single creek, river, stream, pond and lake...then "Professor Higbee's Stream Maps" are without question the finest."
- Howard Brant, THE NEWARK STAR-LEDGER

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman."
- Joe Gordon, TRIBUNE-DEMOCRAT-Johnstown

City Kids Hear About Farm Life

They had many opportunities to learn about agriculture. Among their many experiences were watching bees make honey, learning about soil and water issues, and even milking a cow.

Dear Twig: What's the glop inside pumpkins called?
Well, I've always called it glop, too But I checked with my scientist friends and they told me the technical term is "endosperm." Endosperm is the flesh around fruit seeds
What does that mean? It means that a pumpkin is a fruit. Yep! Specifically, it's a type of fruit called a pepo ("pee-poe"). Pepoes are fleshy with a hard rind and many seeds, which, if you add "orange," describes a pumpkin to a T.
The part of the rind that you cut through when carving a jack o' lantern is the mesocarp The inner part of the rind is the endocarp The endocarp is where the seeds and the endosperm are produced. Juice is made here, too The juice makes things slimy. The slime makes things gloppy The result is sticky fingers
What does endosperm actually do? It might protect and nourish the seeds, an important job And it might make the fruit more attractive to animals, who, in eating the fruit, help spread the seeds around.
Not all pumpkins are gloppy inside. Ripe ones are pretty dry. And some varieties are gloppier than others How do you know which is which, since all of them are orange? Cut one open and reach inside. If the sound you hear is "splort" you'll know!

Dear Twig: I've heard that turkeys have beards. Is that true? Don't they shave? Ha ha ha.
Ah, that's a good one. In fact, it's true that many turkeys have beards. And it's also true that they don't shave, mainly because they don't have fingers to push the top of the shaving cream can.
The beard of a turkey is actually a cluster of bristly, hairlike feathers. But it's not on the face or the chin. It hangs on the front of the chest. It looks like a tail that's on the wrong end.
The beard appears on male turkeys, or toms, when the birds are about 11 weeks old. It's designed to help them attract females, or hens. Conversely, the beard on male humans is designed to attract pizza sauce.
In the wild, almost all toms and a very few hens have a beard A few toms have such a very long beard that it actually drags on the ground! That's the sign of a big, old gobbler, one who rules the roost
It's different on the farm. Some toms don't have a beard, some hens do, and in either case it's shorter than those on wild turkeys.
What do you know when you see a big bearded bird? It's probably a male turkey. And it might be in ZZ Top. Mercy!

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

ROBESONIA (Lebanon Co.) — Competing on livestock judging teams impacted Clyde Brubaker's life so positively that he was thrilled when his son Ken and daughter Sarah also had the chance to win state competition and proceed to the national level.

Next Tuesday, Brubaker will experience another thrill when his grandson Kyle Fleener, 17, competes on the national level in Louiville, Ky. The advent revives many exhilarating emotions for Brubaker and his offspring.

"We are supportive of him, but we don't want him to feel the pressure to perform," Sarah said of her son. She and her husband Tim Fleener have been instrumental in passing on their passion for livestock judging. They are sheep breeders, 4-H leaders, and active in many agriculture endeavors. Tim is a livestock judging coach and officiates at the college level.

The family saga began in 1952, when Clyde's Lancaster County 4-H team won at the state level, with Max Smith as coach. The national competition was conducted in Chicago during the international livestock show and 4-H Congress.

That was 49 years ago. Team members Harold Rohrer, Lampeter; Woody Good, New Holland; Walter Augsburger, Reinholds; and Brubaker made up one of the 29 teams that competed. They came in third, and Brubaker was also named third in individual judging. "I missed second by two points," Brubaker said.

Livestock judging requires evaluating several species. And horses were included at the national event, which was the first time, Brubaker had ever judged horses. He came in 12th in the horse category, a commendable standing for such a tough competition.

For his third place win, Brubaker took home a plaque and $100 scholarship.

Brubaker had grown up on a fruit and grain farm. His family (Daniel and Amy Brubaker), were named Pennsylvania Farm Show Family of the Year. Brubaker's dad was a 4-H leader and encouraged his son's involvement in many different projects.

To advance to national competition in livestock judging requires dedication, and hard work. In this family, Kyle Fleener, kneeling, is the third generation to attain this accomplishment. He follows in the footsteps of his granddad Clyde Brubaker, his uncle Ken Brubaker, and his mother Sarah Brubaker Fleener.

After Brubaker was graduated from high school, he worked on a registered Shorthorn cattle farm where he prepared animals for showing and fitting. For most of his life, Brubaker was involved in the feed industry, working for Vigortone Ag Products for 24 years, but he also became a nationally known Hampshire sheep breeder and judged sheep all over the country.

Today the family raise about 75 breeding ewes on 60 acres.

Brubaker's son Ken was determined to outdo his dad when he was named high individual and high team in junior competition in 1975. The problem was that only senior teams can advance to national competition and not enough people signed up for the team when Ken was old enough to compete.

> "It's almost like a sport. You must be focused because other teams try to psych you out."
> Kyle Fleener
> Lebanon County Livestock Judging Team

Nevertheless, Ken talked some buddies into competing. His coach was also Max Smith. Sure enough, Ken had the distinction of being named second high individual and his team also placed second in the nation in 1976.

Ken met his wife Ginger in a livestock judging event. He said, "She was the only person who ever beat me (at judging). He went to college, became a farm broadcaster for AgriNet, and for the past 22 years has been a livestock auctioneer.

He and his wife raise Angus cattle, coach teams, and are proud to have a 10-year-old son who judges animals.

"That's a prerequisite—to grow up learning," Ken said.

One year after Ken's team proceeded to the national level, Sarah joined. A state regulation does not allow members to compete again after they have the opportunity to judge at the state level. So the new team was made up of entirely new members who had never before judged. No one expected them to win at the state level. But they did.

The young team proceeded to national competition. But the novice team was unnerved by the brash style of many of the teams from other states.

"It's sort of a psychological thing. Other teams try to intimidate you by stating their reasons in a loud, commanding way.

"I enjoy the competition but I wish that I had been older," Sarah said.

Her husband Tim never competed on the team, but he became adept at judging, and now coaches his son's Lebanon County 4-H team along with Brian Kreider. In addition to Kyle, team members include Nate Tice, Travis Adams, and Tim Shaeffer.

Kyle won highest individual in the junior state contest in 1999. His mother was happy for his success but concerned that he might be too young to compete at the national level the following year.

She need not have worried. The following year, not enough kids signed up and Lebanon County did not have a team.

But this year, Kyle is ready and eager. And so are his teammates. "It's really a neat thing," Kyle said. "We judged four contests this year, and a different member of our team won high individual at every one."

That means team members are well balanced. All are committed and eager to do their best — a necessity. In fact, they often go to events just to judge livestock for fun.

"It takes a team to win. If one member isn't committed, it hurts the whole team," he said.

Cooperation among family and team is paramount.

Different species will be brought into the ring for judging. Performance data, information on birth rate, bulls, replacement heifers, and milk EPDs are included as part of the judging criteria.

Criteria changed since his grandfather, uncle, and mother competed. Terminology for oral reasons has changed. Animals today are bred to be better and they keep improving, but the basics of structure, soundness, and breed type prevails.

Public speaking is required as members are judged on they content and delivering when presenting oral reasons.

"It's almost like a sport. You must be focused because other teams try to psych you out," Kyle said.

His dad, who has officiated for collegian teams, said that it is possible to determine what team a member is part of by they way they deliver their reasons.

"You don't need to shout to get your point across or do something ridiculous," Tim said of some teams that try to psych themselves so they don't feel nervous.

In addition to written and oral judging, members are also asked questions and receive points if they mention identification marks while answering.

"Some kids just give a canned set of reasons. If you don't know, say so. Don't lie to me," Tim said of his philosophy. He is pleased that the Lebanon County team is very competitive."

"They use creative terms that college students use when competing. They try to keep up with the latest terminology."

Sarah said she is a nervous mom when she attends Tim's judging events. "I want him to do his best, but I don't want him to feel pressure to win."

She believes the experience can benefit kids indefinitely. It did for her. She said that she was very shy. As a team member, Sarah was forced to stand up in front of 100 people and speak.

Kyle said that he often feels nervous before he gives his first set of reasons, but after than, he calms down and rolls through.

"Yep, we're going to win," is Kyle's last words to his mom before heading off to competition. "We might not judge the classes the best, but our reasons will win. That's where we overpower the competition," Kyle said.

Kyle is accustomed to wins. He won FFA regional competition last year, but dropped out so it wouldn't conflict with his 4-H judging schedule. He received the Top Gun award at the American Junior Sheep Show, and was second in individual division and showmanship champion at the National Junior Shorthorn Show.

At the Lebanon Area Fair, Kyle shows cattle, sheep, and swine and has had champions in all the breeds, and been named champion swine showman for the last two years. He likes showing cattle the best.

He plans to study ag business at the Penn State Berks Campus so that he can remain at home and continue to raise cattle and sheep.

Kyle and his dad Tim Fleener discuss judging techniques. Although Tim never competed on judging teams as a youth, he has honed his judging skills for many years. Tim has officated for collegian teams and as coach for livestock judging teams.

Bedford County 4-H'ers And Others Honored

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Bedford County's Penn State Extension honored 4-H members, clubs, leaders, and advisors at a recognition dinner held on November 4 at the 4-H building.

Even the building was recognized for its 20 year anniversary.

Receiving special recognition as the outstanding 4-H members were Kelly Lindner, outstanding senior girl; Travis Gould, outstanding senior boy; Samantha Weaver, outstanding intermediate girl; Andrew Nave, outstanding intermediate boy; Meghan Barkley, outstanding junior girl; and Nathaniel Cromer, outstanding junior boy.

Lindsay Clark received the horse and pony scholarship award of $250. With the help of money donated by County Commissioner Dick Rice, the county 4-H was able to hand out two $150 4-H Development Fund Scholarships instead of the usual one. Recipients were Amber Peterson and Heidi Shryock.

4-H County Council Officers for the coming year are: Kelly Linder, president; Crystal Bowater, vice president; Catherine Albright, secretary; Travis Gould, treasurer; and Louis Martin, reporter.

Leaders of various 4-H clubs were recognized for five, ten, 15, 20 and 25 years of service. "And the grandparents of us all," said Dwayne Hay of the Bedford County Extension office, "are Skimmer and Mary Wilson who have been leading square dancing clubs for 35 years."

Other awards were presented for: Teen Retreat, Presentation Contest; Fashion Revue; Horse Camp; Regional Camp; Performance Horse Show; Production Horse Show; Dairy Day Camp; State Trail Ride; District & State Dairy; State Achievement Days; State & National Forestry Contest; Ambassador Conference; and the Scrapbook Contest.

Bedford County 4-H members participate mostly (55 percent) in animal science. There are 27 percent in science and natural resources; eight percent in family and consumer science; and five percent in school enrichment.

More then 300 Bedford County youth participated in the Bedford County Fair with livestock, food, vegetable and plant entries.

often so hard. But God needs to break up that hardness so that he can plant the seed of the truth of his word in our hearts."

The couple takes every other weekend off. Otherwise, Debra goes to the barn about 6:30 a.m. and estimates that she works a 10-hour day.

It's quite different from the wealthy lifestyle of her childhood, where maids did the manual work and she was given a Porsche for her 16th birthday.

"My husband is a visionary, he keeps seeing possibilities," Debra said of the farm operation.

Arlin will accompany Debra to the national dairy meeting in Orlando. She was told that other spouses shop and see the sights during the sessions. "But Arlin would much rather attend the meetings than anything else," Debra said.

Debra's career path is turning out to be a lot different than she had planned. She's excited that her appointment to the National Dairy Board may allow her to draw on her experiences with acting and advertising.

"Dairy farming is a vertical curve—never flat. We're constantly learning and growing," Debra said.

Recognize this person? As a New York actress, Debra often posed for television commercials and print advertisements in women's magazines. Two years after her marriage to Arlin Benner, a Lancaster County farmer, Debra gave up her acting career to work full-time on the farm. Recently she was appointed to the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board, which determines how dairy checkoff dollars are spent.

Experience Life Outside The United States

GREAT FALLS, Mont. — Do you believe there is life outside of the United States? Let AgriVenture "Put the World at Your Feet" and show you it's true like they did for Shannon Holtzinger.

Shannon is the daughter of Kevin and Karen Holtzinger in East Berlin.

Shannon along with several other young people from the U.S., is headed for New Zealand and Australia this fall. She will be living and working with Chris Stevens and Chris Howarth, on a 270 hectare (675 acres), dairy and cropping operation learning how things are done in that country.

Shannon's host family run about 500 head of dairy cattle as well as growing hay and producing silage. She will stay in New Zealand for six months and then move on to Australia with a new host family for another six months. Shannon won't just be a tourist, she will be part of a family and able to get a real feel for their culture. Shannon believes that traveling to another country and seeing first hand the farming and ranching operations will help further her career in the agricultural field.

AgriVenture assists young people with all the preparations to work and travel overseas. The organization arranges for the international airline ticket, 24 hour a day medical/travel insurance, host family placement, necessary work visa/permit, orientation in the host country and supervision. AgriVenture is administered by the International Agricultural Exchange Association and has 27 years experience as a safety net for its participants.

The host families are carefully selected and approved. They are expected to provide a friendly, family type atmosphere, help with training, a standard allowance and time off to see the sites. Host families also benefit by having a trainee offer a fresh outlook on their operation as well as having an extra set of hands for haying, calving, shearing, etcetera. An AgriVenture contact person is assigned to each traveler to insure that both the trainee and host family are happy with the placement.

AgriVenture offers a number of programs to several different countries, as well as varied lengths of stay. Most programs can be tailored to fit most any need, whether it is to work around a school or employment schedule.

Shannon is not only going to be having an incredible experience, but she will be making new friends that will last a lifetime. If you are interested in life outside of the U.S. contact: AgriVenture/IAEA, 1000 1st Ave. S., Great Falls, MT 59401 U.S.A.; phone: (406) 727-1999; fax: (406) 727-1997; e-mail: usa@agriventure.com; and Website: www.agriventure.com.

Cumberland County 4-H Leaders Recognized For Service

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Volunteers play a key role in carrying out the mission of Penn State University Extension Service. Penn State Extension faculty is given this opportunity to work with hundreds of outstanding volunteers providing vital support from many educational programs in Cumberland County. These volunteers provide a learning partnership with the extension service with a proven record dating back to the early 1900s.

In Cumberland County, there are over 75 4-H adult leaders giving thousands of hours each year. These 4-H leaders volunteer as community club organizational leaders, project and activity volunteer leaders, 4-H Camp counselors, for 4-H special events and on committees supporting many 4-H opportunities at the county, state, and national levels. 4-H volunteer leaders have touched the lives of thousands of Cumberland County youths, helping to "Make the Best, Better."

At the Cumberland County 4-H Achievement Night Banquet, 4-H leaders celebrating an anniversary year were recognized.

First year 4-H leaders include: Sandy Futon, Newville, Mifflin 4-H Club; Emilee McGinnis, Carlisle-Hickorytown Tailors 4-H Club; Paul Garrett, Mechanicsburg, Green Team; Deb Stuber, Carlisle, Cumberland County 4-H Rabbit Club; and Heidi Evelhoch, Shippensburg, and Debra McLaughlin, Newville, representing the Cumberland County 4-H Horse Club.

The leaders celebrating five years of service to the 4-H club program include: Dottie Delbaugh, Carlisle, Funky Fingers 4-H Club; Marel Raub, Duncannon, and Elizabeth Walton, Carlisle, with the County-Wide 4-H Dairy Club. Cumberland County 4-H Horse Club leaders Anita Smith and David Evelhoch, both of the Shippensburg area.

Anita Long, Carlisle and Sherry Koppenhaver, Newville are celebrating 10 years of service to the Cumberland County 4-H Horse Club.

Kathy Walton, Carlisle area was recognized for 15 years of service to the Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Club program.

Recognition of 20 years of service to the program was given to Sharon Giselman, Mt. Holly Springs. Sharon has been active with the County-Wide Dairy Club.

Janet Holston, Shippensburg, was recognized for providing 25 years of service to the Cumberland County 4-H Horse Club.

Two 4-H Dairy Leaders, John Ocker III, Shippensburg and Mark Naugle, Carlisle were recognized for providing leadership to the County-Wide 4-H Dairy Club program for 30 years.

Barbara Rebert, Carlisle, working with Cumberland County 4-H Horse Club was presented a 4-H Afghan at the Cumberland County 4-H Achievement Night Banquet for her 35 years of service.

What's Ahead For The Next Decade?

According to Elizabeth Sloan, president of Sloan Trends and Solutions, Inc., in the next few years, the food industry will be challenged by the most mature, wealthiest, and sophisticated consumer in history.

In an article in the April 2001 issue of Food Technology Magazine, the top 10 food trends that should stimulate thinking and guide the food industry and food educators into the decade ahead were described.

Consumer food preferences will be more complex, and perhaps more contradictory, than ever before. Americans will seek out lower-fat foods that are higher in fiber but at the same time, are more flavorful and fun to eat. Consumers will experiment with new international ingredients that offer excitement but will continue to look for seasonal and regional "comfort" foods. They want fresh foods that are easy to prepare and gourmet foods that are reasonably priced and convenient. The trends outlined below should give you an idea of the challenges that await the food industry in the coming years.

• Trend 1: "Do-it-for-me" Foods

American consumers increasingly have less time to prepare home-cooked meals. One in four women work more than 40 hours per week, 44 percent of workers come home exhausted, and three hours of leisure time in each week have been lost within the last three years.

Consumers want meals that are quick and easy to prepare or take out foods from supermarkets and restaurants that are ready to heat and serve at home.

• Trend 2: Super Savory and Sophisticated

Consumers today are more educated and well traveled than at any other time in history. As the "baby-boomers" age and their children begin to move out on their own, they will have more disposable income and less resistance from the kids to try new more sophisticated meals with exotic flavors suitable for adult palettes. Expect supermarkets and restaurants to offer even more choices among Italian, Mexican, Japanese, Thai, Caribbean, and Middle Eastern foods.

• Trend 3: Balance

At the same time, Americans want to simplify and moderate their food choices and will avoid extreme no-fat, no-red-meat, high-fiber diets for more moderate food choices. Many consumers will continue to eat hamburgers and French fries, often in super-sized proportions. Others, though, will seek out hearty, but more balance meals, with flavorful combinations of meat and vegetables that are attractive that offer a complete package of minerals, vitamins, and fiber.

• Trend 4: Bits, Bites, and Bags

Bite-sized appetizers and snacks will continue to be popular with consumers. Alongside traditional finger-food like French fries and chicken nuggets, and international mini-meals are fast becoming bite-sized favorites, too. Look for tapas, dim sum, potstickers, and spring rolls along with mini-skewers, including satay, skewered meats/sausages, and grilled veggies.

• Trend 5: A New Kind of Home-Spun

Socializing with family and friends is not a factor in food choices. Expect more home-style traditional meals served at restaurants with mashed potatoes, meat loaf, and slow-cooked barbecued foods on the menu. They offer the comforts of home without the long hours of preparation.

Chocolatefest Weekend Benefits Children And Family Services

It seems as though I am always buying a roll of 100 stamps. There are dozens and dozens of names in my birthday book. Usually these people get not only a card, but a letter too. And, when it is one of our grandchildren who have a birthday, we send a check.

When I have a film developed, I get a double set of pictures so that I can mail some to our children. This takes a lot of stamps, plus all the bills that my husband pays. But, it is cheaper than a long telephone conversation.

When my husband and son go to Tioga County to build a cabin in the woods, I am left alone for a few days. I can always find plenty to do as the house doesn't keep itself clean. And, I can always think of something that I want to bake. However, the hours do stretch on and on.

Sometimes the grandchildren come for a few hours. I enjoy cooking for them. We often clean the fishbowl as they enjoy trying to catch the three goldfish to transfer them to the clean water. And, baking cookies is a surefire activity. Then there are the tapes, which they never seem to tire of watching.

My husband likes to go deer hunting far from home. But he does not see any to shoot. While here at home, our son saw six deer grazing in our alfalfa field. Up until recently, we very seldom saw any deer. One winter, many years ago, we had a wild ram live in our woods. He was very wily and almost impossible to catch. No one ever claimed him.

So, I guess we must just expect to feed a number of wild animals on our farm in addition to a lot of heifers.

Montgomery County 4-H Agents Seeking Oldest 4-H Alumni

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — More than 45 million people in the United States are 4-H alumni. As 4-H approaches its national centennial, the organization hopes to reestablish contact with members and volunteers from years gone by.

"We have been touched by the stories of people who had 4-H experiences that altered the course of their lives," says Marilyn Corbin, assistant director of cooperative extension and State Program Leader for Children, Youth and Families. "While we have been able to keep in touch with many alumni, we know there are countless others with whom we've lost contact. I think they would be pleased and proud to see what 4-H is doing in our communities now, and their insights could benefit today's youth.

During the Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg during January 2002, 4-H will recognize the oldest 4-H alumni in the state. The organization is asking for help to locate 4-H alumni. If you or someone you know has ever participated in 4-H, the organization wants to provide information on the upcoming centennial, which will be celebrated throughout 2002.

If you think that you might be a contender for the "oldest 4-H alumni" please contact Helaine Brown or Nancy Kadwill, Montgomery County 4-H agents, at (610) 489-4315. You can also call them to get more information about 4-H in Montgomery County.

You can also contact the Pennsylvania 4-H Program on the Internet at http:/pa4h.cas.psu.edu/4halumni.html or by writing to Pennsylvania 4-H, The Pennsylvania State University, 323 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

Triangle Series Continues As World Changes

NEW LONDON (Chester Co.) — Youth sporting activities resume as families try to make life normal again for their children, but there were some differences at the opening of the September 23 Triangle Series Horse Show held at Grazing Acres in New London.

Green and yellow jumps had been re-painted red and white; flags and red, white, and blue flowers were displayed; and the event opened with period of silence and the Pledge of Allegiance.

It was, in other ways, a normal day and resulted in some top rides, including the awarding of the championship in pleasure horse to Two Steppin Tommy, ridden by Stephanie Comestock, Cochranville, and the championship ride in open equitation also to Comestock.

The pleasure horse division was the largest of the day. Capturing reserve champion in pleasure horse was Indian Jane, ridden by Bethany Moore, Landenberg.

Moore was also awarded the medal and championship in the junior medals competition. Moore and Comestock were the day's top money winners.

Reserve champion in open equitation was Jessica Hinderer, Landenberg, riding Cruising Bay.

In pleasure pony, the championship went to Without a Doubt, ridden by Lauren Brunovszky, West Chester, with the reserve ribbon awarded to Treasure Island, ridden by Bryn Powell, Christiana.

For baby green hunter, the championship went to Flashy Girl, shown by Belinda Manchio of Cochranville. The reserve championship placing went to Zophirushah, ridden by Devon Steen, New London.

In the leadline division, the championship was awarded to Christine Jameison, Kennett Square, riding Fresh Paint, with the reserve championship in this division to Hunter Tomlinson, Oxford, riding Royal Rhia.

In beginner rider, the championship went to Beth Peters, Boothwyn, with the reserve to Amber Kreps riding Nevada.

Champion of the mini mini division (for riders 8 and under) was Monica DePaul, Aston, riding Royal Rhia. Reserve champion was Caitlin Jackson riding Rosenharley Romello.

In the mini division, for riders 10 and under, the champion was David Deets, Coatesville, riding Hildy. Reserve champion was Lauren Brunovszky.

In short stirrup, Emily Shaffer, West Grove, riding Low Down Louie, was champion of the beginner division with advanced champion being Ashley Dafermo, Chadds Ford, riding Bentley. Reserve champion of the beginner division was Devon Steen, with reserve champion in advanced short stirrup awarded to LeAnne Buckley, Atglen, riding Knights Rebel.

Judge was Melanie McCarthy. Ringmaster was Loretta Underwood of Cochranville. Announcer was Marie Lettman of West Grove; show secretary was Jeannie Moore of Landenberg; and prize coordinator was Nancy Gardiner of Hockessin.

The next show in the series is Sunday, October 14, at Shady Home.

Pleasure pony walk/trot-jog: 1. Lauren Brunovszky. 2. Brynn Powell. 3. Chelsea Lynch.

Junior medals: 1. Bethany Moore 2. Ashley Dafermo. 3 LeAnne Buckley.

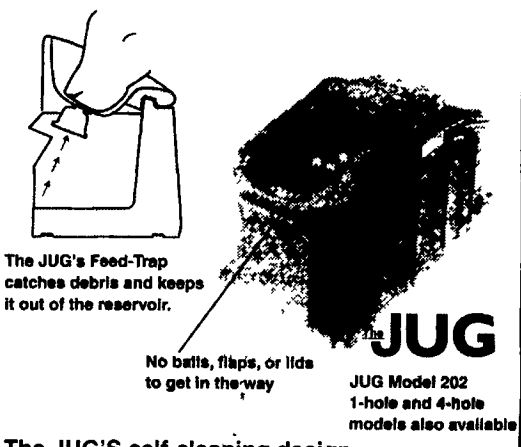
The JUG Livestock Waterer Cleans Itself - so you don't have to!



The JUG's Feed-Trap catches debris and keeps it out of the reservoir.
No balls, flaps, or lids to get in the way
The JUG
JUG Model 202
1-hole and 4-hole models also available

The JUG'S self-cleaning design
The JUG'S Feed-Trap™ design prevents feed and other debris from entering the reservoir tank Each time the animal drinks, any debris in the Feed-Trap is removed The tank stays clean!

No Algae - No slime
Since the JUG's reservoir is light-tight, no algae will grow in it That means no slime build-up

Clean Water = productivity
You know that animals will drink more when the water is clean And more water consumption yields more productivity.

Tough, long-lasting construction
The JUG is made of tough, roto-molded plastic. It stands up to abuse dished out by livestock It won't chip and pit like concrete

Soap Hollow Becomes Legend For German Furniture-Making

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

DAVIDSVILLE (Somerset Co.) — Through sprawling glades and glens, Soap Hollow in southwestern Pennsylvania had been simply named "Schmierseiffe" for its Pennsylvania German soap-making operations.

But this rural roadside community nestled in northern Somerset County became widely known as the home of one of America's most valuable country antique treasures.

Eight cabinetmakers spanning the generations from the 1820s to the early 1900s have been identified as Germanic cabinetmakers whose handcrafted, traditional folk furniture has not only brought top dollar at sales throughout the countryside but also created a historical legend.

"I remember selling my first piece of Soap Hollow in the early '50s for $27.50," said local auctioneer Merle Mishler of Davidsville, who grew up a few miles from Soap Hollow and still lives on a nearby farm on Campus Avenue. Last year, Mishler auctioned off 10 pieces of furniture for a total of $142,000. At that sale, the Dutch cupboard alone went for $28,000 and a mini-blanket chest brought $10,000. At the end of September of this year, he auctioned a mini-blanket chest for $14,000, a chest of drawers for $8,500, a blanket chest for $4,400, a baby cradle for $850, and a comb case for $250.

"It's not just ordinary folk furniture," said Mishler. "It's very ornate and decorated. These men were craftsmen. I've sold pieces to people throughout the United States." Mishler said the market has always remained constant for Soap Hollow, and every year he auctions anywhere from one to five pieces. He relates that many pieces went west and many people still have an item and may or may not be sure what they have.

The late Robert B. Myers of Davidsville, the community next to Soap Hollow, and the late Edna V. Brendlinger can both be given credit for discovering the history behind what was first thought to be Johnstown (a city in neighboring Cambria County) furniture. As a pair of avid antique collectors, Myers and Brendlinger started gathering Soap Hollow furniture in the 1970s and '80s and documented its style and craftsmanship. At first, they thought the furniture was made by one person, but they later identified several others.

In the October-November 1980 issue of "Ohio Antiques Review," Myers and Brendlinger related their discovery of eight cabinetmakers in the Soap Hollow area and more than 24 examples of furniture styles.

After the 1980 article, an exhibition in Pittsburgh and two in Johnstown cataloged specific pieces from private collections and the legend of the cabinetmakers' 19th century lives grew as legend into the 20th Century.

Myers, who died in 1995, related in a telephone interview a few months prior to his death that "articles made all the difference in the market," and it was a tool to educate others on the value of this country antique.

Altogether, there were eight Mennonite cabinetmakers who lived in the Soap Hollow area of Conemaugh Township primarily during the 19th Century and handmade this exquisite-style furniture.

The cabinetmakers were John Sala (1819-1882), Joseph Sala (1847-1912), John M. Sala (1855-1932), Christian C. Blauch (1828-1899), Jeremiah H. Stahl (1830-1907), Peter K. Thomas (1838-1907), Tobias Livingston (1821-1891), and John K. Livingston (1842-1917).

The 63-page book "Manufactured By Hand, The Soap Hollow School," published by Southern Alleghenies Museum of Art, Loretto, in 1993, completely details the lives of each of the cabinetmakers and the Mennonite community, using both genealogy backgrounds and facts about their lives.

According to "Manufactured By Hand," John Sala, the earliest Germanic cabinetmaker and most well known in Soap Hollow, probably taught his sons Joseph Sala and John M. Sala, how to make furniture, as well as Christian Blauch (now often spelled Blough).

The following information about the cabinetmakers has been taken from "Manufactured By Hand," 1993:

Christian C. Blauch's great-great-grandfather Christian Blauch, emigrated to America from Canton of Berne, Switzerland in 1750. His family moved from Lancaster to Somerset County, first to Brothers Valley, then to Hooversville, and then to Soap Hollow. It is believed he and Jeremiah Stahl learned the craft from John Sala. Peter Thomas served in the 88th Regiment of the Pennsylvania Infantry during the Civil War. In 1867, he and his family moved to Bowne Township, Mich.; however, his furniture pieces remained behind. John Livingston is believed to only have made one piece, a chest of drawers.

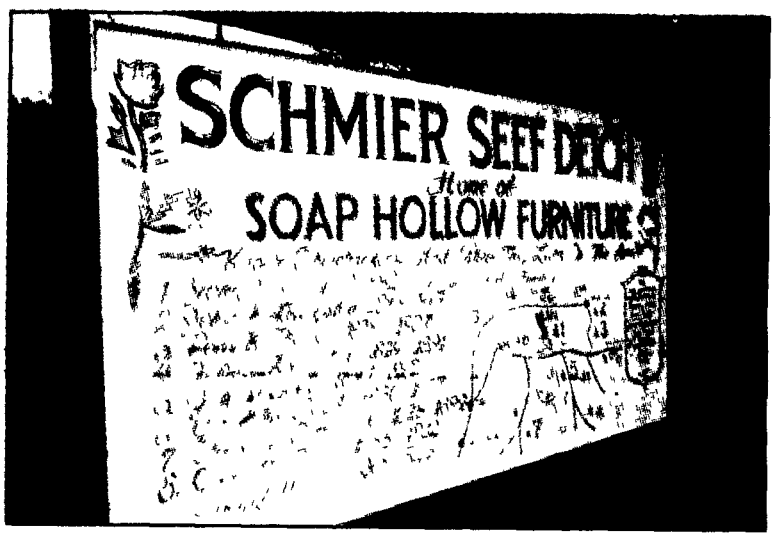
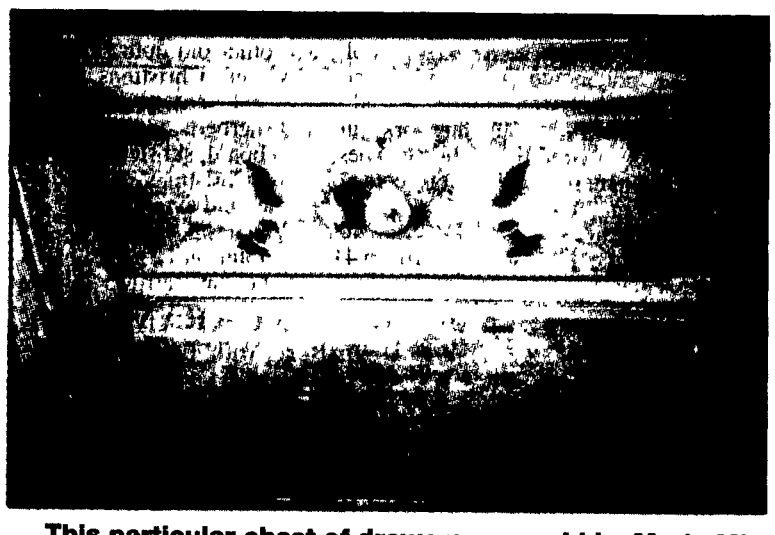
Merle and Esther Mishler look over some photographs of Soap Hollow furniture. Merle has auctioned several pieces of Soap Hollow furniture over the years and believes it to be a "high quality" antique. He and his wife went to a one-room school in Soap Hollow and she still has valentines he gave her when they were elementary school children.



Schmier Seef Deich, of Soft Soap Hollow, was home to a group of eight known cabinetmakers who handcrafted exquisite Germanic-style furniture. This sign is erected in Soap Hollow to explain the fascinating legacy of the area.

This is a Soap Hollow cupboard that Merle Mishler sold last year. Pieces like this one have been known to bring anywhere from $20,000 to $50,000.



This particular chest of drawers was sold by Merle Mishler in late September for $8,500. Mishler says he sells anywhere from one to five pieces a year and a full year never goes by when he doesn't auction off a piece.

Soap Hollow features dominant shades of either red, maroon, brown and black, depending on the piece, along with decorative painting, stenciling or decaling of traditional Pennsylvania Dutch symbols. It is also personalized for the owner and signed by the cabinetmaker. This one was crafted in 1871.

shine, Gobbler's and Govier Hollows, in Conemaugh Township, which was established Feb. 1, 1801. Soap Hollow area quickly became home to many Mennonite immigrants, most of whom either emigrated to America in search of religious freedom or whose ancestors traveled to America for religious freedom.

Generations later, Conemaugh Township area is still home to many of Mennonite faith. The original Stahl Family Meeting House, now a residence, is still located along Soap Hollow Road. It was the first Mennonite meeting house, or church, in Soap Hollow. Now, the Stahl Mennonite Church is located prominently on a hillside overlooking the hollow.

"Although soap making was not distinct to Soap Hollow, the practice of this Mennonite community producing a soft soap called 'Schmierseife' was probably how the area got its name," according to "Manufactured By Hand, The Soap Hollow School," 1993.

"Although soap-making in Somerset County was not confined to this valley during this period, the communal practice of women going from farm to farm to help neighbors make soap may well be the origin of the name," according to "Manufactured By Hand, The Soap Hollow School," 1993.

While the women's practice of making soap became a commonality, the men's furniture making became another distinction of the area.

Soap Hollow furniture has dominant shades of either red, maroon, brown and black, along with decorative painting, stenciling or decaling of traditional Pennsylvania Dutch symbols. Each piece has individual designs with special personalization with initials of the owner and the date of manufacture.

"It's good quality furniture," said Mishler. "Years ago, you could buy a piece of soap hollow for maybe a few hundred dollars but people are always quite amazed at how much the pieces bring now. Whenever I auction any Soap Hollow, I usually have a good crowd. It's beautiful furniture and makes a very good investment. The market has always been strong for Soap Hollow. I've never seen it go down."

Antique Glass Chandeliers Costly But Charming

Whether they are 18th, 19th or 20th century, chandeliers are being bought to add a finishing touch to homes and offices. As a recent Red Baron Atlanta auction proved, even old theatre lights qualify prices between $2,000-$3,000. Price depends on age, design, and materials. For instance, a neo-classical chandelier in dore' bronze, with a cut and etched crystal globe and garlands, with three pairs of crossed torches had an estimated value at the Red Baron auction of $3,000-$4,000.

Once upon a time when houses built in the early 20th century were demolished the light fixtures were trashed or found their way to salvage yards. These days they end up in high priced architectural salvage shops. Be they art deco or 1950s modernism, there will be a buyer.

Attribution to a known European glass house adds to the value of 18th and 19th century pieces. Among the top names selling often in five figures are Baccarat in France, Waterford in Ireland, and the Spanish factory La Granja de San Ildefonso, along with makers in Bohemia, Murano Italy, England, Sweden, and Russia.

Considered among the most beautiful and the earliest are those made since the 18th century in Venice. They can be recognized by their use of clear and colored glass, richly adorned with blown glass leaves, flowers, and fruits. Many were as large as eight feet in diameter.

Less familiar are the 19th century cut-glass chandeliers of Russia, which had been so popular, that they were shipped to the major cities of Europe.

Designated "masterpieces" however, are the chandeliers created in 18th century Bohemia. Most famous is the ornate "Maria Theresa" chandelier that consists of layers of cut crystal drops and beads, hanging from every inch of tiered brances in the Rococdo style. They used combinations of colored glass, elaborate engraving, and gilt decorations with cased (cut in layers) glass.

Even 18th century England deterred from their usual brass chandeliers when glass chandeliers became fashionable about 1745. These followed the prevailing rococo styles with cut-glass pendant drops. At the beginning of the neo-classical period, in the late 18th century, the shafts were urn-shaped and the drops were pear-shaped, wired into chains and hung on branches. Probably the most often copied were those from the Regency period (1810-20) when pendant drops hung in tiered sheets.

CLUES: By the mid 19th century, American glass houses, such as the New England Glass Company, Boston and Sandwich, and Gillinder of Philadelphia created lavish cut glass and crystal chandeliers that today can be mistaken for those costly Bohemian, English, and Irish. This is especially true of some of the colored overlay pieces made in the 1840s, by the Boston and Sandwich company, in the style of Bohemian glass.

Since there is such a wide variance of prices for the authentic pieces, get advice from an expert before spending too much. When you spot a chandelier you like, don't be afraid to ask the dealer how they know the chandelier is really Bohemian or 19th century Murano. If the chandelier is tagged "attributed to" that's a red light for "we're not really sure."

Another problem comes when you buy what you think is a chandelier with crystal prisms and they are acrylic. Twang the crystals. They should have a ring.

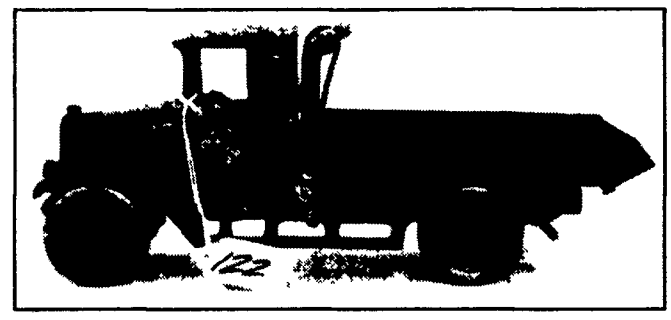
PUBLIC TOY & TRAIN AUCTION

A 30 Year, One Owner Collection

10 A.M. • SATURDAY, NOV. 17, 2001

Ridge Fire Co., Blue Room



Along Rt. 23, Between Phoenixville, PA & Rt. 100.

Exhibition: 7-9 P.M., Friday 8-10 A.M. Saturday.

It would be an education to be able to retrace this indefatigable collector's steps over the past 30 years. A man of many interests, he gathered toys & trains the way a boy gathers stones or a girl picks flowers - as a pass time. He found all kinds of lead figures, mostly Barclay & Manoil, then he added in a few Tootsie toys. He liked cast iron, any size, but the best are an 11 in. I.H. red baby truck and an 8 in. Kenton fuel truck. Many trains are here strongly pre-war (even Lionel 00 Gage) and standard gage, but as the years went by he did not refuse post war Lionel either. 542 lots to sell - you will be amazed at the diversity. If you come, I'm sure you'll buy!

REAL ESTATE AUCTION!

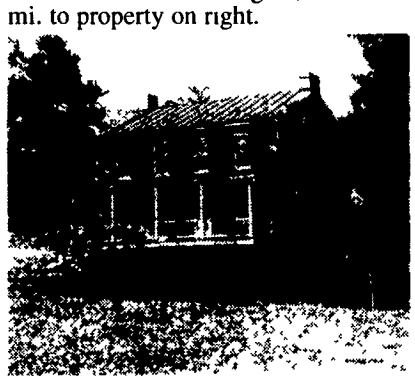
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8, 2001
10:00 A.M.

On the premises at 580 Cool Creek Rd., Wrightsville, York County, PA. Follow Rt. 30 east or west to the Wrightsville Exit. Go south on Cool Springs Rd. 1/2 mi. to traffic signal, continue straight ahead on Cool Creek Rd. 3/4 mi. to property on right.



A gentleman's farm of singular beauty, which pre-dates the Civil War, with frontage on both sides of Cool Creek Rd., consisting of 48 acres, m/l, of which 38 acres are tillable farmland and the balance is woodland and lawn area around the buildings Improved with a stately 2 1/2 story Pennsylvania German style brick and stone dwelling with central air-conditioning. The first floor has a large eat-in kitchen, living room with fireplace and dining room with fireplace. The second floor has 3 bedrooms and bath, and a storage area by the stars to the attic.

An open basement with lovely pointed stone foundation has a family room with fireplace, half-bath and storage and laundry areas. Other features include oil FHA heat, oil-fired water heater, 200 amp. electrical service and never-failing water well and on-site septic.

There is a large bank barn built in 1859, a corn barn, wagon shed and other outbuildings. The property is enrolled in the PA Clean and Green Tax Program. This is a near once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to own a beautiful showplace for horses or other uses limited only by your imagination. Public water, sewer and gas lines go right through the farm parallel to Cool Creek Rd. Interested parties should also investigate the development potential.

INSPECT: Open House Sessions will be held Saturday, Nov. 17th from 9:00 A.M. until Noon, and Sundays, Nov. 18th and 25th from 1:00 to 4:00 P.M. For a private showing, Phone: 717-244-0295. Sellers Disclosure Statements will be on display at Open House sessions. The property is being auctioned to settle an estate and is being offered in as-is condition.

TERMS: A non-refundable down-payment of 10% of the gavel price is required on day of auction. Balance due in-full on-or-before February 8, 2002 at closing.

AGRICULTURE
THE GRAIN OF OUR ECONOMY

Sec. Veneman Releases Report On Food And Agricultural Policy

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman released the Bush Administration's review of the food and agriculture system with a view toward identifying critical needs for the new century Sept. 19.

The report, "Food and Agricultural Policy: Taking Stock for the New Century," details the enormous changes that have taken place in agriculture which continue to accelerate across the American food and farm sector. Given the enormity and pace of change, the report recommends that policy makers take stock to examine past policies and programs and, where necessary, define anew goals and principles that can best guide the future growth and development of the farm, food and agriculture industry in the new century.

"Our challenge today is to address the vital forces of change while at the same time modernizing the foundations of our farm and food system to ensure continued growth and development for the 21st Century," said Veneman. "Farmers today operate in a global, technologically advanced, rapidly diversifying, highly competitive environment that is driven by increasingly sophisticated consumers. The various policies, programs, and supporting infrastructure that serve our food system will require updating to meet future needs."

The report recognizes that U.S. agriculture is driven by basically the same forces shaping the U.S. economy — globalization of markets and cultures; advances in information, biological and other technologies; and fundamental changes in the workforce and family structure. It examines the enormous changes faced by today's food and farm system as well as the lessons learned from more than seven decades of food and farm policies.

While describing the background of today's policies, the goals they were designed to serve, as well as the enormous changes that have occurred through the years of growth and development, it also suggests that past policies designed for narrower purposes in an isolated economy simply cannot meet the current needs of our modern, rapidly expanding food and agricultural system.

The report offers a set of principles to guide policy development for trade, a farm safety net, system infrastructure, conservation and environment, rural communities, nutrition and food assistance, and program delivery. The following is a summary of the key principles:

- Farm policy and programs must be tailored to reflect wide differences among farms with respect to production costs, marketing approaches, management capabilities, and household goals.
- Farm policy, including providing a safety net, must promote more sustainable prosperity for farmers through market orientation without engendering long-term dependence on government support. This does not rule out helping farmers and ranchers when unexpected events beyond their control occur and cause output or income to plummet.
- Trade policy must focus on gaining access to foreign markets through tariff reduction and the elimination of trade distorting subsidies and be supported by domestic policy that meets our existing international obligations and provides ample latitude to pursue ambitious goals in trade negotiations. Domestic farm policy must not inadvertently reduce competitiveness at the same time that trade policy seeks expanded export market opportunities for farmers. The infrastructure that supports market growth and efficiency, which includes everything from border inspection services to research endeavors, must be renewed and reoriented to fit today's realities, with input and cooperation from every link in the food chain.
- Conservation policy must pursue a portfolio of instruments, including stewardship incentives on working farmland or retirement of environmentally sensitive land to respond to Americans' growing expectations about agriculture's role in promoting and protecting environmental quality.
- A strong commitment to ensuring the access of all Americans to a healthy and nutritious food supply must continue, with particular attention to improvements in the delivery of food assistance to low-income families.
- Recognition of emerging diet quality issues is of paramount importance, as the nation's concern shifts from underconsumption and undernutrition to that of the proper variety and quantities of foods and nutrients that promote health and well-being. Rural America is diverse, and tailored policies must create conditions that will attract private investment, encourage the education of the rural labor force, and promote alternative uses of the natural resource base, including through development of renewable energy sources and carbon sequestration to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Systems must be integrated to assure coordinated and collaborative delivery of food and farm programs and to citizen access to public services.

"This report suggests that fundamental, far-reaching changes in policy, programs, procedures and institutions may be required to best prepare our farmers, ranchers and food industry as a whole for the new world marketplace," said Veneman. "It is this broader vision that we want to encourage and support, and to help bring into focus in the months and years ahead."

Farmers Union Planning Centennial Celebration In March

AURORA, Colo. — Celebrating a century of service to rural America the National Farmers Union is planning for its 100th anniversary convention March 1-4 in Irving, Texas, where the group will mix historic reflection with current business.

Founded in 1902 at Point, Texas, the family agricultural organization will return to its roots for the 100-year celebration. Convention activities will be held in Irving, Texas, with a special trip to Point on March 2.

Activities at Point will include ceremonies at the Smyrna Church, the site of the first public meeting of the Farmers Union, and at the Lone Star Cemetery where founder and first president Newt Gresham is buried.

The celebration will continue with a Texas barbecue on the site of the Point Railroad Depot, circa 1902; a historic snapshot, and a depiction of the first Farmers Union meeting presented by the NFU Senior Youth Advisory Council. A number of special guests have been invited to speak.

In addition, reunions and receptions will be held for: former NFU youth leaders, Torchbearers, All-States campers and education directors; former Farmers Union officers and staff; past "Washington Campaigners" and fly-in participants, as well as current and former cooperative board members.

10 Former Ag Secretaries Announce Support For Trade Authority

WASHINGTON, D. C. — In a strong show of bipartisan support for increased trade opportunities for American agriculture, ten former U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretaries spanning forty years of agricultural leadership have announced their unified support for Trade Promotion Authority (TPA) and are urging the Congress to pass legislation that would increase opportunities for American agriculture around the world.

Former Secretaries Dan Glickman (1995-2001) and Clayton Yeutter (1989-1991), August 27, presented a signed letter of support to current Secretary Ann M. Veneman and joined her for a live nationwide radio broadcast from USDA headquarters. The letter also was signed by former Secretaries Mike Espy (1993-1994), Richard Lyng (1986-1989), John Block (1981-1986), Bob Bergland (1977-1981), John Knebel (1976-1977), Earl Butz (1971-1976), Clifford Hardin (1969-1971), and Orville Freeman (1961-1969).

"I welcome the strong bipartisan support for trade from my predecessors, who represent more than four decades of leadership at USDA and come from key agricultural regions across the country," said Veneman. "It clearly shows how important trade is to our farmers and underscores the need to expand world markets for food and agricultural products so our farmers can better compete in today's global marketplace."

According to Veneman, the U.S. is not keeping pace with many of its competitors in regard to free trade agreements and, as a result, American farmers are being left on the sidelines. Today, there are more than 130 free-trade agreements in force around the world with the U.S. party to only two of them. The European Union has twenty-seven. Last year alone, the EU reached new free-trade agreements with South Africa, Mexico and Morocco, and an agreement with Egypt was signed just last month. Fifteen more are under active negotiation by the EU, including ones with Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Chile, and parts of Africa and the Caribbean.

Glickman added, "No country in the world can boast of better products or more innovative and efficient producers and processors. But without market access, we won't be able to compete. America's traditional leadership in agricultural exports is being threatened today as our competitors increase their market share and their access through new preferential trade agreements."

Agriculture is more than twice as dependent on exports as the overall U.S. economy. In the last 15 years, agricultural exports have increased from about 18 percent of U.S. producers' cash receipts to nearly 30 percent today. This year, a projected 53 percent of the U.S. wheat crop will be exported, 47 percent of cotton, 42 percent of rice, 35 percent of soybeans, 21 percent of corn, 62 percent of cattle hides, and 71 percent of almonds.

"TPA is all about our ability to maintain leadership of the global trade agenda, advance U.S. trade interests, and write the rules of the game for the 21st century," said Yeutter. "From today's sales of U.S. beef to Japan to our large sales of corn to Mexico, many of today's export opportunities for U.S. farm products can be traced back to market-opening bilateral, regional, and multilateral trade agreements."

Pennsylvania Continues To Lead In Farmland Preservation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recently announced that 35 farms totaling 3,718 acres in 12 counties were approved for preservation by the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Board.

Pennsylvania leads the nation in farmland preservation — keeping more than 200,000 acres from commercial development or other land encroachment.

"Pennsylvania makes products for the planet, and we need to preserve our ability to feed, clothe and shelter the people of our state and our nation," Secretary Hayes said. "Pennsylvania has some of the most productive farmland in the world. Our preservation program guarantees that we will be able to build on our strong agriculture heritage for years to come."

With this latest preservation of 35 farms, Pennsylvania has preserved a total of 1,730 farms totaling 208,704 acres in 51 counties.

The Ridge Administration supports the preservation of farmland through its historic $650 million "Growing Greener" initiatives. "Growing Greener" — the state's largest-ever environmental investment — includes $100 million for farmland preservation.

Created in 1989, the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Board purchases development rights, referred to as easements, protecting farms from development or commercial encroachment and preserving them for future generations.

The following is a list of state easement purchases by county:

Berks County

• Truman Ray and Virginia Hertzler, Robeson Township, 216 acres, $322,869.

• C. Celeste Manbeck and George Manbeck Estate, Marion Township, 116 acres, $231,400.

• Herman and Connie Manbeck, Marion Township, 46 acres, $92,200.

• Ralph and Crystal Moyer, Bethel Township, 128 acres, $256,400.

• Clarence and Marlene Sattazahn, Marion and Tulpehocken townships, 180 acres, $360,800.

• Pauline Seidel, Longswamp Township, 33 acres, $65,000.

• Paul and Marilyn Sonnen, Marion Township and Jackson Township in Lebanon County, 197 acres, $394,400.

Chester County

• David Halladay, Upper Oxford Township, 145 acres, $535,294.

• Bettina Jenney, Londonderry Township, 269 acres, $1,373,007.

• Thomas and Jennie McQueen, Upper Oxford, 110 acres, $427,399.

Cumberland County

• Anthony and Robert Leo, Penn Township, 178 acres, $321,066.

Dauphin County

• Richard and Ronald Conley, Jackson Township, 141 acres, $165,017.

Lancaster County

• Nancy Balmer, Warwick Township, 49 acres, $177,478.

• Nancy Balmer, et al., Warwick Township, 60 acres, $193,980.

• Henry and Marsha Barley, Manor Township, 166 acres, $630,800.

• James Charles, Manor Township, 105 acres, $445,626.

Lebanon County

• John and Edna Starner, South Lebanon Township, 96 acres, $144,240.

• Stanley and Ella Mae Zimmerman, South Lebanon Township, 126 acres, $189,030

Lehigh County

• Deborah Dershem, Lower Milford Township, 50 acres, $150,630.

• Harold and Imogene Fenstermaker, Lynn Township, 149 acres, $259,972.

• Junge Farms, Lynn Township, 128 acres, $256,312.

• Barbara Mest, Lower Milford and Upper Saucon townships, 73 acres, $218,735.

Lycoming County

• Harry Drick, Washington Township, 59 acres, $53,010.

• Melvin Swisher, Jordan Township, 115 acres, $103,860.

Monroe County

• Wilmer and Elizabeth Kreger, Polk Township, 47 acres, $114,065.

Washington County

• Gerald and Georgianna Griffith, Cross Creek and Jefferson townships, 96 acres, $162,874.

Westmoreland County

• William and Jeannie Selembo, Salem Township, 104 acres, $207,317.

York County

• Glenn and Betty Brown, Chanceford Township, 87 acres, $110,664.

• David and Rebecca Hively, Chanceford Township, 60 acres, $75,060.

• Ross and Susan Leonard, Lower Chanceford Township, 112 acres, $160,930.

Under the County Easement Purchase Program, the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Board approved the preservation of five farms totaling 277 acres in Lancaster and Lehigh counties.

Don't Use Soy-Diesel Blend Fuel In Your Engines

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Recently people have been using the terms "soy-diesel" and "biodiesel" interchangeably, according to an expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, who warns that there is a major difference between the fuels.

Failing to recognize that difference will spell disaster for diesel engines if run on soy-diesel, said Dennis Buffington, professor of agricultural and biological engineering.

Soy-diesel is a 20/80 blend of filtered and clarified crude soybean oil and diesel fuel.

"According to the U. S. National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL) in Colorado," Buffington said, "no one should be mixing any crude vegetable oils into fuels for vehicle use."

The glycerin in soybean oil acts like sugar in the fuel tank and will eventually ruin fuel injectors, according to the NREL. Engine durability also is poor. The laboratory points out that no long-term studies exist on engine performance and maintenance requirements because the engines don't last long if run on soy-diesel fuel.

"The NREL states that even if crude soybean oil is first filtered and clarified, it's still a vegetable oil," Buffington said. "It should not go into a compression ignition engine until it has been refined to the point where it meets American Society for Testing and Materials minimum standards for diesel fuel."

Buffington cautions that diesel engine owners may initially be misled if they try to use the soy-diesel fuel.

"The engines will run on soy-diesel for the short term until the fuel injectors foul," he said. "You may be lulled into a false sense of comfort when burning soy-diesel because everything appears to be fine for a while. You also need to recognize that most, if not all, engine manufacturers will void the engine warranty if soy-diesel (or any blend of crude vegetable or animal oil) is burned in an engine.

"A company representative," he said, "can easily document if an engine has been fueled by a crude oil/diesel blend by examining internal engine parts."

By contrast, a process called transesterification is used to prepare soybean oil for blending with diesel fuel to make biodiesel. Alcohol is added to soybean oil with a catalyst and stirred vigorously. The ester (biodiesel) will rise to the top and glycerol and alcohol will settle on the bottom. After several washings, the biodiesel then can be marketed as a fuel.

Establishing an economically viable biodiesel production operation, according to the University of Nebraska, requires a $20 million chemical processing plant that will handle about 100,000 gallons of soybean oil per day (about 2,500 tons of beans per day). Buffington believes a plant may be economical today if scaled back to a $5 million dollar operation processing 20,000 gallons of oil per day.

If the glycerol also can be marketed, he says, then biodiesel fuel could be produced for about $1.75 per gallon, including the costs of 40 to 50 cents for alcohol and 15 to 20 cents for a catalyst per gallon. However, there are large capital costs involved in starting to process biodiesel fuel.

Penn State's Energy Institute is conducting both short-term and long-term research to determine if filtered and clarified soybean oil can be used as a diesel fuel supplement. Until the long-term results are analyzed and replicated, Buffington said soy-diesel blends should not be burned in diesel engines.

Super Cash Prices To Put A Quality Case IH Grain Drill to Work from Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today!

The Goal: Uniform Seed Distribution
Case IH 5300 Grain Drill

Designed for precision planting in solid or extra-narrow row patterns to maximize yields

- Exclusive diagonal-lipped fluted-roll seed cups ensure uniform seed distribution.
- Close-coupled maneuverability
- Large-capacity seed hopper to cover extra acres between refills
- Special press wheels eliminate air pockets to promote faster germination and emergence

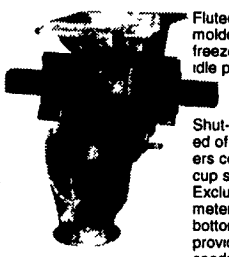
A Special Feature For All Case IH Grain Drills

Fluted Roll Feed Cup Assemblies Save Seed and Save Time A known fact that Case IH die-cast zinc alloy feed cups are superior to other competitive brands Long life comes from oil-impregnated, molded sintered metal inserts act as a positive bearing surface to surround and support the fluted roll



Large throat clearance allows the handling of big seeds and prevents seed damage

Fluted roll is precision-molded and won't freeze up during the idle periods

Shut-off block is molded of steel and delivers consistent cup to cup seeding accuracy Exclusive tapered metered edge at the bottom of the feed cup provides unexcelled seeding accuracy, even seed flow, and more uniform spacing

For replacement parts for your existing drill, buy Case IH quality from our Parts Dept. Now! Precision engineered to fit your grain drill exactly!

And you get more than a precision grain drill You can count on us for genuine, value-priced parts, professional and reliable service support, and flexible financing

SEMINAR I

10 AM From Field to Feed Bunk – The Handling & Storage of Forages

Presented By: Kevin James - Ag Bag Intl.
Robert L. Francis - Sollenberger Silo

Bob is a native of West Virginia, but as a young man his family moved to a farm in neighboring Southwest Virginia, where his formal education then took place He received his B S and M S degrees from Virginia Tech in Agricultural Education, Extension Education, and Agricultural Economics

After graduating from VA Tech, Bob began his career by teaching Vocational Agriculture and then serving as County Agent and Farm Management Agent for the Cooperative Extension Service He later moved into the business arena to manage a large dairy and livestock farm of over 2,000 acres, and up to 1,500 head of livestock The farm had 6 upright silos and 6 bunkers with some feed being stored in large round bales He experienced first hand the advantages, disadvantages and problems associated with various methods of feed storage and handling

Bob also served four years as an Agricultural Banking Officer before moving to Pennsylvania to become associated with SOLLENBERGER SILOS CORP in 1984

Always associated with agriculture, Bob believes the future is good for those in agriculture who gather information, plan ahead, and make sound decisions

SEMINAR II

1 PM Creating A TMR – The Methods And Mechanics Of Mixing

Presented By: Tony Hall - TMR Specialist - KEENAN USA

Born in England, Tony graduated with a B.Sc. in Biochemistry, and an M.Sc. in Animal Nutrition. He worked for 14 years with the British government's agricultural extension service (ADAS), specializing in forage quality, dairy cow feeding systems, and milk component (butterfat and true protein) production He is a member of the British Institute of Biology

Tony spent 2 years in the British feed supply trade, and joined Keenan as a TMR Specialist in 1993 At Keenan, he worked alongside dairy farmers in Britain, Ireland, Germany, Denmark, Chile, Argentina, and Australia, on a wide range of issues related to rumen health and milk components

His professional ambition is to promote as much information as possible to help farmers manage out "sub-clinical rumen acidosis" in their herds

SEMINAR III

2 PM 2001 Corn Silage Quality – Results of a Capital Region Project

Presented By: Virginia Ishler - Penn State Dairy and Animal Science
Tim Beck, Capital Region Dairy Program Coordinator

Capital region agronomy and dairy agents collected corn silage samples in each of the seven counties in the region this past fall Both harvest samples and feed-out samples have been analyzed to assess the quality of this year's corn silage crop. Neutral detergent fiber is a key regulator of dry matter intake in dairy cow rations A cow's capacity to consume feed is primarily regulated by NDF in the ration Both the rate and extent of NDF digestion influence how quickly forages are digested and to what extent Virginia Ishler will address these concepts of NDF digestibility and its influence on dry matter intake during the opening presentation.

This year's corn silage on average has higher than normal NDF levels and lower than normal starch content The data collected from these samples also included lignin, in vitro NDF digestibility data and starch analysis. Using these numbers to calculate Milk2000 ratings for the forage samples showed some interesting results Samples with the same NDF values and similar starch levels, show very different energy values when the extent of lignification and thus the resulting reduced digestibility are considered. Almost 900 lbs. of milk per ton difference was noted between the high and low samples in the analysis. This could result in vastly different cow performance from these samples. Some additional forage testing may be warranted to more accurately assess the value of your corn silage crop Tim Beck will present this information during the second half of this session.

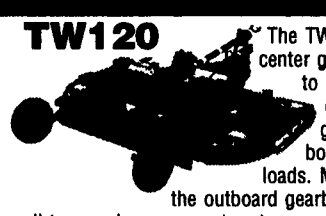
SE15 Rhino Batwing Cutter With 160 HP Gear Boxes

Heavy-Duty Features!
15' Cut, 540 or 1000 RPM, Cat 5 Main Drive-line, Cat 4 or 5 Wing Drivelines, Pan Blade Carriers, 6' Blade Overlap, Mechanical Level-Lift Axle; 10-Gauge Deck; 1/4"x10-1/2" Side Skirts, Full Swivel Clevis Hitch, Replaceable Skid Shoes; Wing Operation 90" Up and 22" Down, Rated for 2" Diameter Material Fully-Shielded Drivelines; Safety Deflectors Standard 15 Foot and 20 Foot Models In Stock

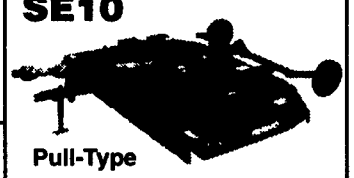
TW120



The TW120 cuts a 120" swath of material. The center gearbox, rated at 120 HP, transfers power to the 100 HP outboard gearboxes. Torque dampeners on both sides of the center gearbox help prevent driveline and gearbox damage caused from sudden shockloads. Massive 2-3/8" diameter output shafts in the outboard gearboxes help provide optimum service. The pull-type and semi-mount units require a 50 HP (min.) tractor and the lift-type unit requires a 60 HP (min.) tractor (with adequate front weights).

TW120 - 10' Cut • TW84 - 7' Cut • TW72 - 6' Cut

SE10



Pull-Type

The pull-type SE10 requires only a 45 HP (min.) tractor for economical, wide-cut mowing. A hydraulic cylinder or ratchet lift screw is available for raising and lowering the mower A spring shock absorber is optional to help cushion shockloads to the mainframe when operating in rough terrain. (Unit shown with optional chain guards Deflectors are standard.)

TW96

Medium-Duty Cutter with Heavy-Duty Features!

96" Cut; 120 HP Center Gearbox, 90 HP Outboard Gearboxes; Pan Blade Carriers; Updraft Blades; Cat. 4 Driveline; Slip Clutch Protection; Lift or Pull-Type; 540 or 1000 RPM; Replaceable Skid Shoes, Rated for 2" Diameter Material, Safety Deflectors Standard

Binkley & Hurst Bros. has Rock Pickers to Save your Back and Machinery

Rakes to Gather Rocks into a Swath for your Picker

Ask About Good Financing!

The SIGNATURE 6000 may be the only rock picker you'll ever need. This is the most rugged rock picker on the market. Some of the SIGNATURE 6000 features include:

Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips - This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time. The unique grill provides five feet of clean sifting and virtually jamless performance.

Grated Hopper Bottom - We use spring steel straps in the hopper, engineered to bounce back in shape

Hydraulic Drive - The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000 We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive.

Reel Assembly - The three paddle reel has a large diameter, hard surfaced teeth and heavy duty paddles.

Flotation Tires - The 16.5L x 16.1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction.

Swing Pole - Easy to maneuver in both working or transport position

Degelman

In the Degelman tradition of quality rock removal equipment, here is the RR1500 rock rake, another example of Degelman's continuing commitment to excellence.

The RR1500 rock rake includes a unique auto-fold system which provides safe, easy transport no wider than most tractors (8 feet in transport position) with full use of the 14 foot width in the working position And with hydraulic angling, it can take full advantage of the 10 to 30 degree angling range.

Degelman Rock Rakes are excellent machines for grooming fairways and conditioning soil for the construction of golf courses. It leaves a beautiful final finish preparing the course for seeding They are also used for reclaiming gravel on gravel roads. And the heavy duty construction and quality workmanship means that it is built to last.

UPTIME PLANTER SERVICE NOW!

Mr Planter Owner

Thank you for taking a minute to consider our services

Binkley & Hurst Bros Inc is offering a preseason inspection and evaluation of your planter for the purpose of identifying worn, broken, or malfunctioning parts Many times, seemingly insignificant wear will affect the accuracy of your planter more than you realize If nothing else, it may be time to have your finger pickup meters checked on our test stand Also, new innovations, attachments and options are constantly being introduced which may be of interest to you for installation on your planter

Binkley & Hurst parts and service personnel are specifically trained and informed planter specialists, ready to examine your planter with you! If you determine that the planting proficiency of your planter could be improved with our service, we would be happy to provide that service for you, and a technician would return at a later date to assist you in doing the work We encourage you to be part of the actual servicing so that any pointers or insight, which the technician may have for you with regard to planter operation, could be conveyed at that time

If you set up an appointment for a planter evaluation, you will be charged a flat fee

At time of inspection we will recommend to you any item needing attention, also at that time we will remove your seed meters to take in for testing if you so desire

If you have any questions, please contact the planter service department at 717-626-4705 or 800-414-4705

Thank you

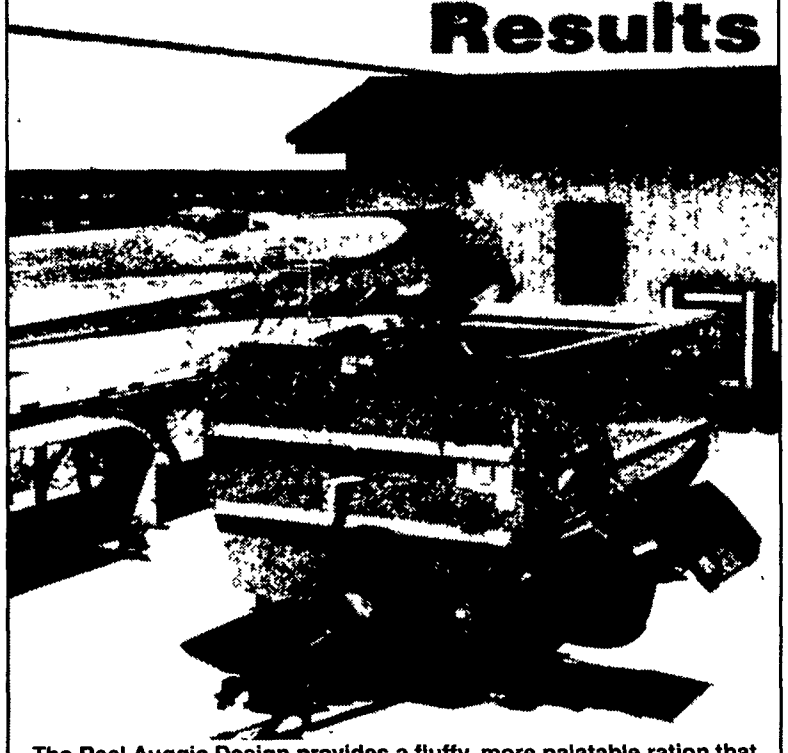
Reel Auggie = Results



The Reel Auggie Design provides a fluffy, more palatable ration that promotes feed consumption. When your cows consume more high quality feed, they'll produce more milk.

MORE MILK IN THE TANK, THAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE!

You're Invited To Be Part Of The Mid Atlantic Area's

2002 AG DIRECTORY

This exclusive publication will serve as the ultimate resource guide for county agents and state agricultural agencies, and also serve as a "Yellow Pages" for farmers all across the Mid Atlantic.

The 2002 Ag Directory will be included in Lancaster Farming's December 29, 2001 Issue, and be distributed at the Pennsylvania and Keystone Farm Shows. That's more than 55,000 booklets in circulation! This Directory is the only one of its type to be distributed in this area.
Be a part of it.

When it comes to durability in a mid-sized tractor, nothing weighs in heavier than a Massey Ferguson 4200 Series tractor. Heavy-duty components, like a long-stroke Perkins Fastram™ diesel engine and available Powershuttle transmission, tip the scale toward unmatched performance and durability. For more hefty reasons to buy a 4200 Series tractor, visit your Massey Ferguson dealer today.

SEMINAR I

10 AM From Field to Feed Bunk – The Handling & Storage of Forages

Presented By: Kevin James - Ag Bag Intl.
Robert L. Francis - Sollenberger Silo

Bob is a native of West Virginia, but as a young man his family moved to a farm in neighboring Southwest Virginia, where his formal education then took place He received his B S. and M.S. degrees from Virginia Tech in Agricultural Education, Extension Education, and Agricultural Economics.

After graduating from VA Tech, Bob began his career by teaching Vocational Agriculture and then serving as County Agent and Farm Management Agent for the Cooperative Extension Service He later moved into the business arena to manage a large dairy and livestock farm of over 2,000 acres, and up to 1,500 head of livestock. The farm had 6 upright silos and 6 bunkers with some feed being stored in large round bales. He experienced first hand the advantages, disadvantages and problems associated with various methods of feed storage and handling.

Bob also served four years as an Agricultural Banking Officer before moving to Pennsylvania to become associated with SOLLENBERGER SILOS CORP in 1984

Always associated with agriculture, Bob believes the future is good for those in agriculture who gather information, plan ahead, and make sound decisions.

SEMINAR II

1 PM Creating A TMR – The Methods And Mechanics Of Mixing

Presented By: Tony Hall - TMR Specialist - KEENAN USA

Born in England, Tony graduated with a B Sc in Biochemistry, and an M Sc in Animal Nutrition He worked for 14 years with the British government's agricultural extension service (ADAS), specializing in forage quality, dairy cow feeding systems, and milk component (butterfat and true protein) production. He is a member of the British Institute of Biology

Tony spent 2 years in the British feed supply trade, and joined Keenan as a TMR Specialist in 1993 At Keenan, he worked alongside dairy farmers in Britain, Ireland, Germany, Denmark, Chile, Argentina, and Australia, on a wide range of issues related to rumen health and milk components

His professional ambition is to promote as much information as possible to help farmers manage out "sub-clinical rumen acidosis" in their herds.

SEMINAR III

2 PM 2001 Corn Silage Quality – Results of a Capital Region Project

Tim Beck, Capital Region Dairy Program Coordinator

Capital region agronomy and dairy agents collected corn silage samples in each of the seven counties in the region this past fall Both harvest samples and feed-out samples have been analyzed to assess the quality of this year's corn silage crop Neutral detergent fiber is a key regulator of dry matter intake in dairy cow rations. A cow's capacity to consume feed is primarily regulated by NDF in the ration Both the rate and extent of NDF digestion influence how quickly forages are digested and to what extent Virginia Ishler will address these concepts of NDF digestibility and its influence on dry matter intake during the opening presentation

This year's corn silage on average has higher than normal NDF levels and lower than normal starch content The data collected from these samples also included lignin, in vitro NDF digestibility data and starch analysis Using these numbers to calculate Milk2000 ratings for the forage samples showed some interesting results. Samples with the same NDF values and similar starch levels, show very different energy values when the extent of lignification and thus the resulting reduced digestibility are considered Almost 900 lbs of milk per ton difference was noted between the high and low samples in the analysis This could result in vastly different cow performance from these samples Some additional forage testing may be warranted to more accurately assess the value of your corn silage crop Tim Beck will present this information during the second half of this session

GEHL

BETTER CONDITIONING!
HIGHER FLUFFIER WINDROWS!

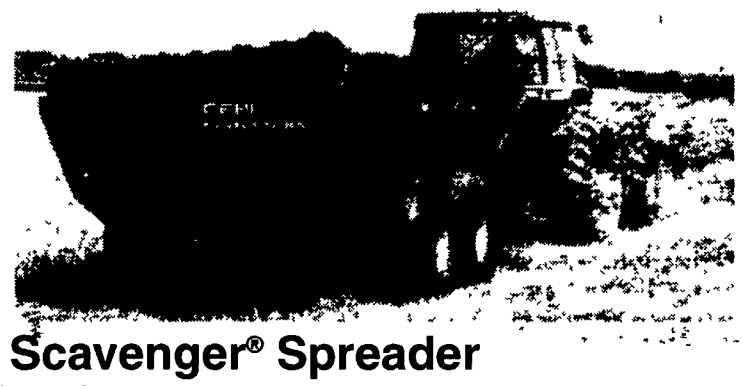
Gehl Models: 2345 2365

With the Simplicity You Want!

GEHL DELIVERS HIGH SPEED PERFORMANCE AND MORE RELIABILITY, TOO!

Gehl disc mower conditioners feature a simple drive system with fewer moving parts to power both the cutterbar and conditioning rolls from a single gearcase New cutterbar design delivers consistent performance in the toughest crops and conditions Full-width skid shoes and the patented Protectadrive™ system protect cutterbar gears Disc drive assemblies are individually removeable for quick servicing
Wider rolls provide more consistent conditioning while Gehl's unique forming chamber delivers fast-drying higher-standing, fluffier windrows or full-width swaths

PROVEN PERFORMER



Scavenger® Spreader

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features.

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging.
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure.
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure.
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose.
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system.

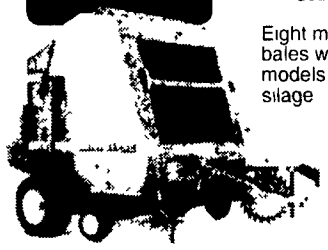
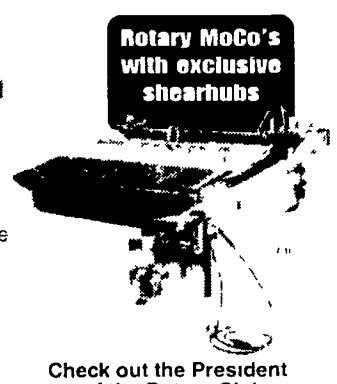
America's most popular round balers

Nobody does hay better than John Deere!

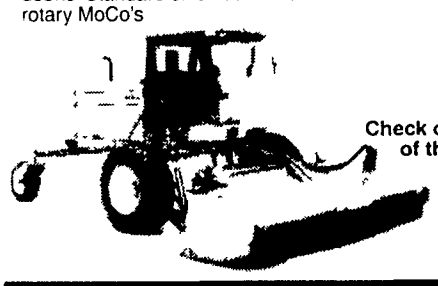


Eight models make tight 4x4- to 5x6-foot bales weighing up to 2 200 pounds Two models are designed specifically to bale silage

Rotary MoCo's with exclusive shearhubs



Do you have collision insurance? Exclusive shearhubs minimize cutterbar damage from rocks or debris Standard on all John Deere rotary MoCo's



Check out the President of the Rotary Club, the all-new 4990 Rotary Windrower!

Solid. Stable. Still John Deere.

Bales wet or dry

For making 4-ft.-by-5-ft. hay, straw, or silage bales, there's nothing better than the New Holland Model 648 Silage Special. This Roll-Belt™ round baler has everything you need to bale crops your way:

- Bale-Slice™ option (on Fastnet™ models) cuts crop as the bale is formed, making it more dense and easier to feed or grind
- Wide, floating pickup swallows large windrows
- Endless belts – covered by three-year Bonded Protection – provide added durability in tough crops

Cut faster... condition better

For greater maneuverability and higher efficiency, nothing beats the Model 1431 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner from New Holland. It features a 13' cutting width, and operates at high ground speeds in wet, heavy grass without plugging. Fire anthills and gopher mounds won't stop the new Model 1431 either. Outstanding features include:

- A center pivot-tongue design
- Independent modular cutterbar with ten small-diameter cutting discs
- 102" wide conditioning rolls
- A full range of vertical and lateral flotation
- A torsion-bar, roll-pressure system
- A cutterbar driven from both ends

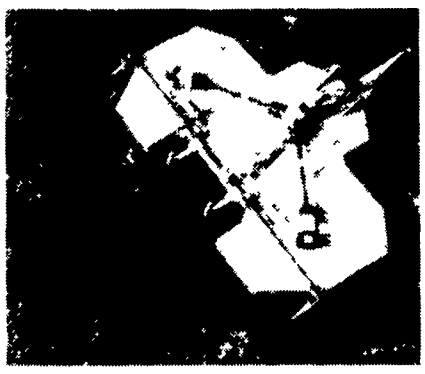
PUT A BAT IN YOUR BARN
BATWING 3180 - 3 SPINDLE MOWER



The Woods model 3180 is the toughest Batwing® mower we've ever built. A "clean deck" design that resists cut material build-up, innovative Intra-Drive™ gearboxes engineered and built by Woods, and the fastest blade speeds of any mower in its class. The 3180 Batwing® cuts through brush, up to three inches in diameter. A blade overlap of over six inches, and you have a mower that delivers a quality cut, without streaking. From its heavy-gauge deckplate to its heavy-duty drivelines, we build the 3180 to last. What's more, they come complete with a 36-month gearbox warranty.

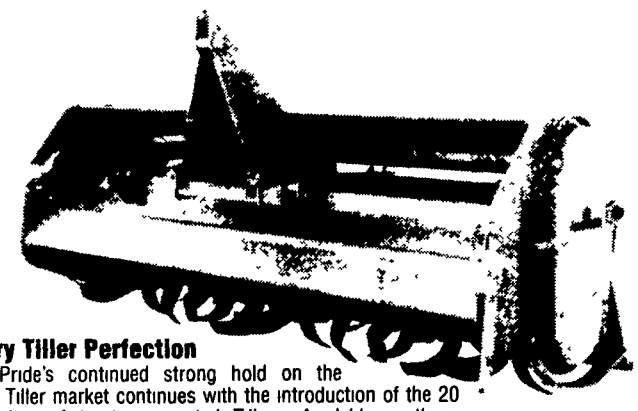
Land Pride
20 Series Rotary Tillers
Conventional or Reverse-Till


Rotary Tiller Perfection
Land Pride's continued strong hold on the Rotary Tiller market continues with the introduction of the 20 Series line of tractor mounted Tillers Available in three widths, this eye appealing Rotary tiller effortlessly turns up hard packed ground, leaving a perfect seedbed for gardens to grass
Forward or Reverse Tilling
Various conditions can demand various tilling methods Land Pride's RTA20 Series Rotary Tillers are available with a forward rotating tilling action The forward rotating tiller can work in all types of ground conditions, with best results being obtained in fairly mellow conditions
New in 2001!
The RTR20 Series Rotary Tillers feature a reverse tilling action for tougher ground conditions Able to perform superbly in all types of soil or ground cover, the reverse rotation of the tiller tines tackle tough ground with ease The reverse action 'sucks' the tiller into the ground, which prohibits the tiller from 'walking' on hard ground
The RTR20 Series Tiller also incorporates spring loaded 'shifting' rods behind the tines to help bury large rocks and debris The reverse action of the rotor brings material up and over the top Rocks and vegetation cannot get through the sifting rods so they fall first Soil continues to get sifted before it falls, building a layer of large to small dirt clods burying the rocks and vegetation Reverse tilling can reduce the number of trips needed to turn the soil over!

Nominations Sought For AE50 Award

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. — Nominations are still being accepted for the 2002 AE50 Award, and manufacturers of products engineered for agricultural, food, biological and related industries are encouraged to nominate their new products for consideration.

The AE50 Award program, now in its 15th year, is sponsored by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE). The award is intended to spotlight the engineering achievements represented in innovative products brought to the marketplace, achievements that can require years of planning, tests and revisions.

Past winners have included a barn system that allows cows to choose when they are ready to be milked, a machine-vision device that color-sorts berries, and even a newly automated cassava grater. Winning products have varied widely in complexity and price points, from a 45-cent irrigation drip fitting, to on-farm equipment costing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The 2002 competition will highlight products made available on the market for the first time during 2001. Entries will be judged by an ASAE committee representing all factions of the agricultural, food, biological and related systems engineering professions.

Nomination information can be obtained by contacting AE50 Coordinator Jackie Elowsky at (616) 429-0300 ext. 313, fax (616) 429-3852 or elowsky@asae.org. Information is also available at www.asae.org. Nominations will close Dec. 31. There is no entry fee. Winning companies receive a personalized, engraved plaque, and the product, including a photo, will be featured in a special AE50 issue of Resource magazine in June 2002.

Brassicas Are Valuable Annual Forage Crops

TANGENT, Ore. — An increasing interest in forage brassicas has led Ampac to introduce new varieties of kale, turnip, rape, and swede.

For those not familiar with brassicas, they are highly productive and digestible annual forage crops, which are typically used in a grazing scenario to extend or supplement traditional grass/legume pastures.

Brassicas can easily be used as a break crop to give the farmer a bigger window to eliminate the old undesirable forage through the use of herbicides, tillage and the competition of the brassica crop itself. Brassicas are small seeded similar to mustard.

Equipment Revamps Mowing, Conditioning

The 1030 DiscPro® Mower Conditioner cuts a clean 13-foot 3-inch swath from either side of the tractor and features the new, exclusive Dynaguard® Protection System — designed to reduce damage to the cutter bar.

Using forward-positioned springs, the DiscPro Mower Conditioner pulls and "lifts" the header over obstacles, dramatically reducing structural fatigue caused by rocks and other immovable obstructions. This differs significantly from other mower conditioners which use "push-type" design that tends to drive the cutter bar into obstacles. As a result, the entire weight of the mainframe is carried over the top of the header, creating undue stress on the machine.

The exclusive modular conditioning system is equipped with an intermeshing steel roller conditioner, which features a roller tension breakaway arm. The arm helps relieve pressure as the rollers separate to discharge plugged material. Vermeer also plans to offer free-swinging V-style tines as another crop conditioning option. As a result, operators will be able to switch between the two conditioning systems to handle different crop conditioning needs or preferences.

Learn To Speak Your Banker's Language

MADISON, Wis. — Knowing and understanding the vocabulary of the banking industry is as important as knowing and understanding your dairy operation, when you're asking for a loan.

Gary Sipiorski, executive vice president of the State Bank of Loyal, spoke to a packed meeting room at World Dairy Expo on what your lender wants to hear when you come in to see him.

"When someone comes in and they say, 'Gary, I have my current balance sheet and cash flow right here, I have figured by ROI and ROE on my idea, and if you'll lend me the money to invest in this enterprise plan I have developed, I think we'll see returns like this,' well, you can bet I am sitting up straighter in my chair and listening."

To be successful financially you have to understand the language of money and have what Sipiorski calls a "money mentality." Working sun up to sun down and sweating hard used to be an important key to success, but it is not anymore. Now your day has to include at least an hour of financial management work for every 100 cows you have.

Sipiorski recommends doing a balance sheet at the very least once a year — some managers do them monthly. Cash flows should also be figured monthly or at the very least quarterly. Other operation benchmarks that you should have figures for include the return of assets (ROA), return of investment (ROI), asset turnover, operating expense rate, investment per cow, ownership equity, and the real cost of producing 100 pound milk on your operation.

Some of the first questions your lender will be looking for the answers to is why do you want to borrow, do you have the business skills to manage your operation effectively, do you have the patience to make it grow and do you enjoy working with hired labor. Lenders are also looking for borrowers who understand marketing, can handle and plan for price swings and can take final responsibility for what happens in the operation.

Your lender will be looking for signs that you know and use enterprising, an accounting of what each of your operation costs to operate and also generates for income. Land and machinery are notoriously poor enterprises, while your cows are very profitable. The better manager finds ways to lessen the investment in enterprises that have poor returns and put more of that money into increasing the income producing parts of the operation. Figuring strategies like this should not be done alone.

Meet at least semiannually with what Sipiorski calls your key supply partners. These include your lender, nutritionist, vet, key personnel and others to address problems, brainstorm improvements and talk about the operation. Your lender will be looking at your willingness to learn and at the opportunities you make for increasing your knowledge and skills.

"There seems to be three layers of profitability in farming today," Sipiorski said. "The top third always ask questions and the bottom third always think they have all the answers."

Your lender may be very interested in knowing where else you get your information. Are you reading up on management skills? Are you attending roundtables, meetings, and organizations that offer training and advice in better management? Are you meeting regularly with your peers to discuss issues and ideas? Can you let go of the past and learn new skills for the future?

In addition to what you are doing to improve your skills, your lender will be looking at how you offer that opportunity to your employees. One question Sipiorski asked was "Can your operation fly like a flock of geese?" The analogy he offered to explain this was that geese take turns leading the flock and the leaders make the flight easier for those who follow. Giving employees responsibility and making them accountable takes pressure off you to make every decision.

Lenders are also looking at your ability to keep informed about rules and regulations that affect your operation and your ability to make a profit. Sipiorski asked about "environmental mentality" which he explains is knowing what the EPA is doing and having the plans and permits in place to keep your operation in compliance.

Many of the things your lender is asking you are really focused on how well you can communicate. Lenders especially want you to communicate with them. Sipiorski encouraged his listeners to be in monthly contact with their lender, sharing what is happening in your operation and asking for the lender's advice. Don't let the only time your lender hears from you be when you need something. "Bring me good news," Sipiorski told the audience, "I want to hear your victories." Monsanto Dairy Business sponsored this World Dairy Expo education seminar.

Case IH 2500 Rip-Bed Combines Ripping, Disking, Bedding

RACINE, Wis. — When it comes to getting the most out of every pass, the new Case IH 2500 Rip-Bed tillage tool does it with ease. Designed as a combination tillage tool to handle the yield deteriorating problems of compaction while laying-up consistent, even beds, the new 2500 Rip-Bed provides maximum yield and productivity potential for the cotton and vegetable farmer.

"In a single pass the Case IH 2500 Rip-Bed tillage tool rips, disks and beds," says Kent Senf, Case IH marketing manager for tillage products. "Uniform soil flow through the implement allows for better seed placement, improved seed-to-soil contact and more uniform beds and plant stands."

The 2500 Rip-Bed tillage tool is the perfect combination of deep tillage and bed building for crops in areas where bedding is essential. In a single pass, it can greatly improve soil tilth for the plant, by laying-up the ideal bed directly over the fractured zone, while keeping the area between the rows firm for traffic stability.

The Case IH 2500 Rip-Bed tillage tool combines the tasks of three implements into one.

"This machine and its features were developed to create a better seed bed for the cotton producer who wants to maximize the potential of every plant," says Senf.

The Case IH 2500 Rip-Bed offers 22-inch diameter flat coulters that operate at a uniform depth to cut and part residue and roots. This action reduces residue wrapping around the shank and prevents bed blow-out. Additionally, both no-till and minimum residue disturbance (MRD) shanks are available. The no-till shank and its patented point offer great soil fracture while maintaining uniform soil flow and bed consistency. The MRD shank with the patented tiger® point is the ideal choice when more soil disturbance is preferred.

New Resource For Dairy Producers, Industry Professionals

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Dairy Enterprise Services, a separate entity of Purina Mills, Inc.'s dairy business, was launched in spring of 2001.

Dairy Enterprise Services will supply the dairy industry — producers, lenders, processors, agricultural businesses and industry influencers — with information, technology, knowledge, and services to proactively manage their dairy business enterprises.

On a fee-for-service basis, DairyES offers a broad array of highly specialized consulting services. Dairy producers might utilize DairyES as a resource for risk management, financial plans, expansion or environmental planning. The DairyES team also offers consultation on a variety of other services from nutrition to human resource and estate planning, to milking systems and health programs.

Agricultural lenders can work with Dairy Enterprise Services experts on biological and financial performance benchmarks, financial projections and plans for distressed operations.

DairyES provides milk processors with milk component control modeling, nutritional consultation and develops relationships with producers. Even feed manufacturers and dairy industry influencers can benefit by using Dairy Enterprise Service's risk management programs and financial and biological modeling.

In the evolving dairy industry, managing change within your dairy business is crucial to maintaining profits and meeting goals. Dairy Enterprise Services provides innovative technology and knowledge to lead dairy businesses through change and on to new ventures.

Deere Offers 0 Percent Interest For 5 Years On Select Tractor Models

JOHNSTON, Iowa — John Deere is offering zero percent APR financing for five years on select tractor models.

The program runs through Dec. 31, or while inventory is available, and encompasses all 8010 Series tractors (both wheel and track models) and 9000T Series tractors.

"This is a great opportunity for our customers to upgrade their tractor lineup in a very cost-effective manner, said Mike Sheehy, manager of agricultural market development for John Deere Credit. "This special financing program gives producers access to first-rate tractor technology that can enhance their operation's productivity and efficiency, at a significant cost savings."

To illustrate the savings available, consider that a good interest rate for 8000 Series tractors financed in 1998 and 1999 could have been 6.55 percent. A customer who financed $80,000 at this interest rate over five years is looking at an annual payment of $18,091.73. By comparison, the purchase of a new 8010 Series tractor, financing this same $80,000 amount over five years at zero percent interest, results in an annual payment of $16,000. That's a saving of $2,091.73 per year and $10,458.65 over the life of the note.

Sheehy recommends customers interested in capitalizing on this special financing offer visit their local John Deere dealer as soon as possible, as availability may become an issue.

"Your John Deere dealer can provide all the details on our zero percent interest program," he said. "Even more important, your dealer can help you determine which tractor model and options best fit the special needs of your operation."

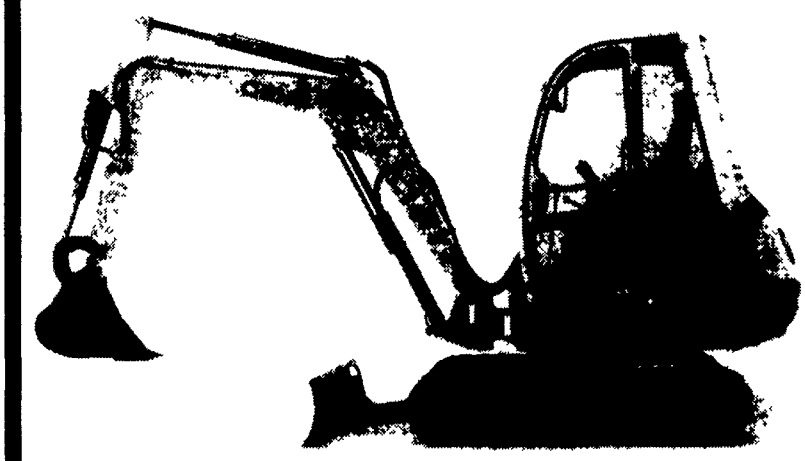
IF YOU REALLY WANT TO DIG YOU NEED TO SEE BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC. FOR A NEW GEHL MINI EXCAVATOR!
Stop In Soon! In Stock!

CLIMB IN...STRAP IN...AND DIG IN – WITH THE ALL NEW LINE OF EXCAVATORS FROM GEHL!



When excavating your job site you need it all – digging power, maneuverability, operator comfort and visibility. Together they add up to maximum productivity, and that's what you get with the new line of Gehl excavators. Designed to be extremely user-friendly, Gehl excavators bring together a total package of precise performance and convenience features previously not found on excavators of this size.

For over 25 years Gehl skid loaders and Dynalift® telescopic handlers have been earning a reputation for rugged reliability, performance...and style. Gehl's new excavator line continues that tradition by delivering an outstanding return for your equipment investment.

Twelve Gehl excavator models from 1.4 to 8 tons. Horsepower ranging from 14 to 62 with digging depths from 6'10" to 14'5". Dozer blades, a two-speed drive system and rubber tracks standard equipment with steel tracks optional. All models feature Gehl Force Hydraulics – an advanced high-output hydraulic system that allows simultaneous multiple hydraulic functions without loss of power or speed. Auxiliary hydraulic couplers for operating attachments also standard.

Gehl excavators lead the way in product innovation, performance and reliability. Ask your dealer for a demonstration and see for yourself what it's like to operate the best

GEHL COMPACT EXCAVATORS DELIVER BIG EXCAVATOR FEATURES AND PERFORMANCE.

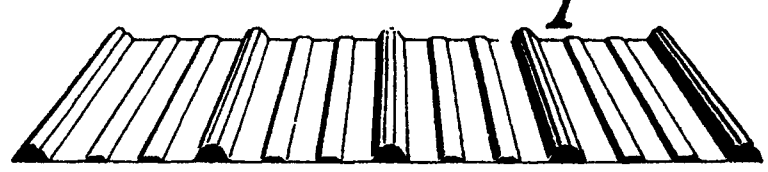
Rural Economy


Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.
Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

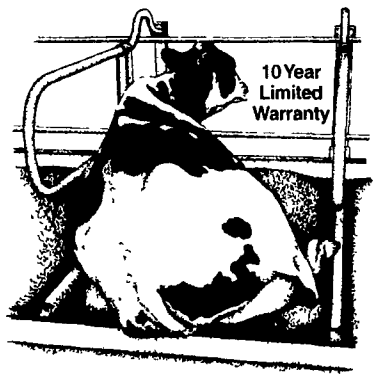
Waterbeds for Cows



ALANTA™

A member of the LimPoly group of companies Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

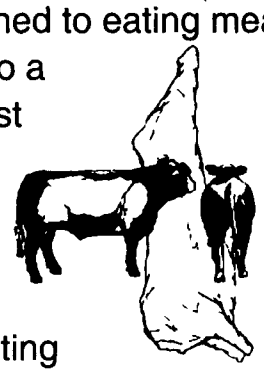
BEEF TIPS

Vegetarians return to meat

Researchers have studied women who became vegetarians, but returned to eating meat. One third of them returned to a meat diet because eating just vegetables they experienced "...weakness, fatigue or anemia, all symptoms of iron deficiency, as factors in their decision to return to eating meat." One fourth said they missed the taste of red meat.



Beef is one of the best sources for iron and zinc, both necessary for energy. Simmental influenced beef is known for tasty, lean meat. Those wishing to produce a fatter meat often cross the Simmental with an Angus, Hereford, or other British breed.

THE TIME IS RIGHT!

To Feed

ROASTED GRAIN

Its time to lower those feed prices.
With extremely low grain prices and the modest price for roasting, your grain can be turned into a valuable feed commodity.

Its time to trim away those extra cost factors.
Custom roasting on your farm... gives you the ability to feed your own grain, not someone else's.... eliminates trucking expenses... no mill charges, shrinkage, storage and handling.

Its time to value feeding grains that have been purged.
Only flame roasting can effectively remove molds and reduce toxins to tolerant levels Better herd health will... reduce veterinary and breeding bills .. enhance production of milk... increase weight gains in beef and swine.

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

• High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
• Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

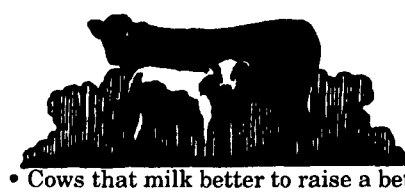
Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef



- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -
